THE BOSTON PLAN: ITS PURPOSE

Part 4

III. YOUTH DEVELOPMENT: HYDE PARK. CONCLUSION

A. Major Issues

Community leaders and residents identify serious problems with Hyde Park's young people that threaten the future of the neighborhood. Inhabitants cite various examples of youth problems: groups of teenagers, hanging out in Cleary Square, appearing disruptive and threatening; visible drug and alcohol abuse among younger teenagers; and confrontations between groups of young people.

These problems and their immediate consequences for the use of public areas, feelings of personal safety, and racial tolerance are serious. Youth problems, an important aspect of a community's perception of its own well-being and confidence in its future, have not been given sufficient weight in traditional community development strategies.

Those who work with youth in Hyde Park emphasize that limited education and job opportunities contribute heavily to misbehavior. The familiar school and job paths have been altered by events much larger than the neighborhood itself — school desegregation and economic slowdown and unemployment — and opportunities for resident youth have been curtailed.

(1) School Desegregation

The young people in Hyde Park were among those individuals most directly affected by the court-ordered desegregation process. They are the first generation of Bostonians to be educated in fully integrated schools. As a part of this major social change, their school days were marked by national attention, administrative confusion, and widespread public concern about their safety. In this community, already greatly threatened by economic pressures, public support for school integration through busing was limited. Sporadic confrontations and violence in the school resulted in over 100 separate calls for police assistance during each of the 180-day school years, 1974-75 and 1975-76, and the school was shut down twice while order was restored.

These changes took place in a school that has always been viewed as "second best." Hyde Park's best students went to Latin or English High Schools, city-wide schools with admission based on competitive examination. While proud of its traditions, Hyde Park High, unaccustomed to educational or social change, was unprepared for a major alteration in its student population.

Calm and order have returned to the school in the past year. While it is difficult to assess the impact of this three-year history of school desegregation on the skills or aspirations of Hyde Park youth, facts about their educational environment suggest that a price has been paid:

- A high percentage of young people boycotted school for extended periods of time or dropped out.

- An average school day, shortened to confine problems, remains only 4-4½ hours.

- Extracurricular activities, eliminated in 1974-75 and 1975-76, have been only partially restored.

- Absenteeism is high enough to be considered a major problem.

(2) Economic Slowdown and Unemployment

Employment opportunities are also described as a problem by those familiar with neighborhood youth. The absence of jobs for teenagers was cited by a city-wide advisory group, the Mayor's Committee on Boston, as the principal underlying cause of continued sporadic violence in the schools and neighborhoods. Hyde Park observations support this conclusion. The school dropout can't get a job or, if lucky, does piecework at a local factory, a deadend, low-paying job. While 75% of the area's high school graduates seek work after graduation, the graduate has a narrow view of possible career choices and restricted access to hiring systems. The limited and traditional vocational training offered may result in the preparation of students for jobs in a trade where high unemployment continues. The young adult who left high school in the midst of the turmoil over "forced busing" and who has never held a full-time job is the newest and most disturbing of the unemployed. In a working-class community, whose values so clearly state that a skill and hard work will buy security, this joblessness produces anger and a deep pessimism about the future.

The ways in which teenage misbehavior affects a neighborhood is a recurrent subject in the literature of urban social planning. A recent seminar at the city's Parkman Center for Urban Affairs raised this subject once again, in the context of neighborhood preservation strategies. A group of judges, youth workers, police, neighborhood leaders, and academic experts, reviewing the changing national programs to combat delinquency, agreed that no one of these strategies had provided a solution for youth problems. There was agreement that a mix of programs and public actions, most of them traditional, a few innovative, can make a difference; that while youth on street corners may be a permanent part of the urban scene, their negative impact on neighborhood life can be limited. Increased police protection will deter vandalism in the shopping centers. Jobs will cut down on the number of teenagers spending long days in playgrounds, drinking. Recreation programs will bring younger people together in positive settings. Building neighborhood organizations' ability to attract new outside resources will expand opportunities for youth to make money, learn and have fun.

Boston Plan . . .

Hyde Park's resources to deal with the problems of teenagers are the traditional ones — churches, schools, recreation workers, and youth organizations such as the Scouts; all are relatively unaccustomed to adapting to changed social circumstances or to new opportunities from outside the community. The few public and social agency personnel feel that outdated images of Hyde Park held "downtown" limit the availability of support and resources.

The community's youth-oriented resources include:

— Hyde Park High School: With about 1,800 students, grades 9-12 the school is now 60% white and 40% black. The white students are all from Hyde Park and the blacks are from several Roxbury and Dorchester neighborhoods. The Hyde Park High School is an older structure. It has not undergone any recent physical alterations nor has there been significant curriculum changes or developments. The school's vocational focus is on the metal trades.

— School Partnerships: As part of the second-year court plan for school desegregation to outline business-university-high school cooperation, Stonehill College and the First National Bank of Boston were paired with Hyde Park High. These institutions participate in a local group of parents and teachers, the CEDAC, and work with a city-wide organization overseeing the pairings, the Trilateral Council for Quality Education.

— Youth Services Agencies: The YMCA in Cleary Square, has not had the resources to play a central role in the community and has recently lost membership. Its programs are largely recreational: the structure, the oldest of all of the YMCA's in Boston, needs improvements.

The Youth Resources Center (YRC), operated by the City of Boston as part of its Youth Activities Commission, is part of a city-wide network of small, multi-service, delinquency prevention units. With limited resources, the YRC provides counselling, crisis intervention, job referrals (e.g., to the Summer Program to Employ Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY)), and educational placements, and sustains a bi-racial youth-worker team in the high school. The Center also participates in a city-wide juvenile justice-diversion program, with a liaison worker located in the District 5 Police Station.

The People's Task Force, a small agency, works with severely troubled teenagers, many of whom are involved in the juvenile justice system. One of its youth workers is stationed in the Hyde Park High School.

— Other Community Agencies: Southwest Boston Community Services, a multi-service and planning agency for the southern section of the city, is seeking funds to initiate a vocational development program serving three neighborhoods: Hyde Park, West Roxbury, and Roslindale.

The Hyde Park Information Center, a community group originating as part of the anti-busing movement, is seeking substantial funding from CDBG or another source to run a multi-faceted youth program.

Ohrenberger Community School, a new elementary-grade community school, is located on the extreme western boundary of Hyde Park. While it offers a good mix of recreational and cultural programs for young people, its use by Hyde Park residents is limited because of its location.

Parks and Recreation activities, organized at playgrounds and ball fields, are an important resource; however, these programs lack neighborhood-level coordination.

In addition, informal groups, such as an affiliation of clergy, educators and businesspeople, have indicated their concern and interest in participating in efforts to deal with youth problems.

This proposal's comprehensive youth development program for Hyde Park would strengthen these community groups and institutions in their current efforts, while building a shared capacity to reach outside the community for new resources and opportunities. The thrust of this program would be to extend education, job, and training opportunities to neighborhood youth. It would also seek a variety of new programs and services for recreation, counselling and other assistance. The proposal's strategy would attempt to build strong links between jobs and school, to provide additional or compensatory opportunities for learning, and to offer equal access to resources for both black and white young people in Hyde Park.

The recommended comprehensive approach would have the following elements:

- A stronger, more visible Youth Resources Center

- A coordinated youth development staff team

- New job programs and services

- Expanded recreational programs

The total budget required for the programs described in detail below would be, at the least, approximately $500,000. Minimum funding, to secure job-related staff for the YRC and to provide additional jobs in the community, is $100,000. In addition, one of the goals of this plan's strategy is to build the community capacity to develop new ideas, to cast them in a proposal, and to seek funding from a variety of public and private sources. If successful, the effort would tap not only Department of Labor youth employment funds, but also the LEAA-Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, the National Institute of Drug Abuse and the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Addiction, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Education and Vocational Education Offices, Governor's Discretionary funding from the Department of Labor, and many others. Local matching shares from Boston foundations, businesses, and social and cultural institutions would supplement the city's effort.

B. Strengthening of the Youth Resources Center

The YRC, relocated to a better location in Cleary Square, would serve as a point of contact for the recruitment and placement of youth for current and future job programs. While the YRC now recruits from Hyde Park for SPEDY, there is presently no other youth job capacity in the community.

This Center, which can move beyond the youth services bureau concept, has the capacity to integrate diversion employment programs and access to the school. The YRC will plan an active role in organizing and catalyzing community interest in securing new resources and coordinating existing activities for youth.

C. A Coordinated Youth Development Staff Team

Housed in the YRC, but possible drawn from other agencies, this team would include:

- A community organizer, to help coordinate and focus the efforts of groups and agencies interested in youth problems;

- A vocational counselor, who would work exclusively with older youth, 18-22, to find training and job opportunities in the manpower services system and private institutions;

- a vocational counselor for high school students, to support the in-school job and summer work programs;

- A business coordinator, to work with the business partner and to develop opportunities for jobs and other programs through the pairing network;

- A job developer to seek a specified number of jobs, at certain periods of time, both in community and in downtown businesses. This job developer would work closely with the special Business District staff described in the Cleary Square section, and could use stipends or on-the-job training assistance to facilitate job placements.

Such a staff could be financed from a combination of sources, including CETA Title VI, the 1977 Youth Employment legislation, and local foundations.

D. New Job Programs and Services

New job programs and services, which can be housed in existing facilities, such as the YMCA, municipal building or community school, might include:

- A career exploration or "world of work" program (an introduction to the working environment) for high school students. The successful program of the Boys' Club of Boston in other areas of the city could be replicated in Hyde Park, and be jointly sponsored by the YMCA.

- Vocational and educational enrichment, initiated by the university and business partners, would be strengthened by modest funding and improved coordination with cultural institutions. Such a program would be a source of internships, career exploration, and new resources for use in the school itself.

- Jobs for Youth could locate its second Boston unit in Hyde Park. Through its intensive job development activities and ongoing involvement with the youth it places, this group has successfully located many young people in entry-level positions in smaller businesses.

- New training programs for the 18-22-year-olds in new or growing professions, such as the allied health professions, could be developed as a flexible satellite for programs now run by local colleges and housed in the community school. A complete information and referral capacity to other community college and alternative school programs, to be available through the YRC, would support these locally operated training programs.

- A Hyde Park Youth Conservation Corps. A corps of 20-25 people would be drawn from Hyde Park High School students to work on projects identified by the community. The Little City Hall would develop a work program from its meetings and records of complaints. This schedule for part-time in-school work, and full-time summer work should support a variety of community activities identified elsewhere in this proposal. The Corps members would provide assistance in maintenance of sections of Cleary Square and in cosmetic improvements in abandoned store windows; assistance to the HIP in providing maintenance services to elderly homeowners; outreach assistance for the health center; and, special summer park maintenance, focusing on the playing fields. The Youth Conservation Corps program would have the potential to accommodate youth referred from the court or police, and it would be supported by counselling and information and referral services at the YRC.

Boston Plan . . .

E. Expansion of Recreational Programs

Providers of recreational activities would be supported by the city, with CETA Title VI slots being used wherever possible to extend programming and activity levels. Businesses and city personnel (such as the police) would be encouraged to take a more active role in community youth activities through donations of time or money. Proposal and fund-raising assistance could be offered by the YRC, using staff provided by CETA funds.

The YMCA would be a focal point for upgraded recreational programs, and particular attention would be paid to supplementing its staff and assisting with physical improvements (some work assisted by CDBG funds is scheduled for this year).

Recreational programs drawing from areas of racial transition or at playgrounds should be fully staffed and funded, with special staff provided as necessary.

IV. CONCLUSION

This proposal for Hyde Park offers a preventive approach to neighborhood deterioration. It recommends an integration of federal, city, and private investments and actions that will preserve Hyde Park's existing strengths, respond to early signs of distress, and develop a local capacity to manage the impact of changes within the neighborhood. The proposed programs will:

— Revitalize the neighborhood's commercial core, Cleary Square. Physical improvement and marketing activities will develop a more favorable climate for commercial enterprises in the Square. Revitalization of Cleary Square will significantly enhance Hyde Park residents' confidence in their community.

— Preserve and strengthen the neighborhood housing stock through an image improvement program and various other activities that will increase property owners' capacity to invest in home maintenance and repairs. These efforts will support residents' feeling that Hyde Park is a nice place to live.

— Expand and link education, employment, training, and recreational opportunities to neighborhood youth. Achieving this goal will not only improve the potential earning power of area youth, but also enhance the community's perception of its own well-being and confidence in the future.

— Arrest the trend of economic decline in the Hyde Park industrial area and create conditions suitable for expansion of existing, and development of new, firms. Industrial development, while not solving the area's underemployment and unemployment problems, will secure the jobs most needed in the city, the jobs that have been lost in the long-term structural changes in the economy of the region.

Citizen participation has been a critical component in the development of this proposal. The issues and problems identified in the plan have been brought to the city's attention by local residents at numerous community meetings and in individual conversations with planners and city officials; strategies for addressing these issues will necessitate further refinement and more intensive community participation to achieve the goal of neighborhood preservation in Hyde Park. As the specific projects become more defined and funding opportunities more specific, active community development will be sought. Such citizen involvement will support the overall goal of continuing this proposal's neighborhood preservation strategy through community capacity to define problems, organize around common goals, and succeed in securing new resources.

CITY FILES APPEAL WITH LEAA — CLAIMS FUNDS LOST DUE TO STATE PRACTICES

The City of Boston has announced it has filed an appeal with the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) in Washington, charging that the state's distribution of federal grant money is depriving Boston of about $444,000 in much-needed funds.

The city is protesting administrative practices of the Massachusetts Committee on Criminal Justice, which dispenses LEAA funds to the state's cities and towns.

The state agency must pass through 70.5 percent of LEAA grants to cities and towns, under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act. The city claims that the committee's practice of holding back for its own "discretionary" purposes one fourth of the 70.5 percent it is obligated to pass through is illegal, according to Joseph D. Alviani, special counsel to Mayor Kevin H. White.

Alviani said the city is asking LEAA to hold up the granting of 1978 funds for new projects until its claim is answered. He said LEAA's office of General Counsel has informed the city it is reviewing the state's procedures for passing LEAA funds to the cities and towns.

DAY CARE PROGRAM FOR CHILDREN

A new family day care program offering 40 hours per week of supervised care for children in local homes begins this January under the sponsorship of the Virginia Howard Ehrlich Child Care Program of the Boston YMCA.

Geared towards the needs of the individual child and the working parent, the family care program expects to place up to 75 children, ages 3 months to six years, in the homes of trained and licensed child care workers in four Boston neighborhoods (South End, Back Bay, Roxbury, and North Dorchester).

The program provides a secure "home away from home" for each child, according to Farrell L. Gonsalves, director of the child care center, thus increasing the earning capabilities of those who provide child care services and of parents who use the service.

Family day care, according to Ms. Gonsalves, allows parents to have a choice in selecting the person who will actually care for their child and in arranging flexible hours, including the possibilities for some evening care. No more than three children will be placed in a single home, thus ensuring personalized attention and activities for each child plus the opportunity to develop creative relationships between the child, other youngsters, and the "provider" of care.

The overall program, which will be regularly monitored by staff of the Virginia Howard Ehrlich Child Care Program, includes social services, education, maintenance of health records, referrals to health and social services, nutritional education, and opportunities for parent involvement.

Children will be placed in the home of providers licensed by the Massachusetts Office for Children after successful completion of an in-depth, two-week training program coordinated by the Virginia Howard Ehrlich Child Care Program.

At present, providers homes are located in the Back Bay, South End, North Dorchester, and Roxbury communities.

Fees for child care services are set at $50 per week per child. Parents must provide transportation to and from the provider home as well as all lunches, snacks, or formulas for young children.

Complete information and enrollment applications are available by calling the Virginia Howard Child Care Program, Boston YMCA, at 536-9040, ext. 21 or 23.

Founded in 1974, the Virginia Howard Ehrlich Child Care Program is the first licensed child care service in Boston for preschoolers whose mothers are pursuing careers, educational opportunities, or taking courses at the Boston YWCA. The center is named in memory of Virginia Howard Ehrlich, a long-time member of the board of directors of Boston YWCA and a past president of the association. A limited number of openings are now also available for children ages 2 years, 9 months to 4 years, 9 months, at the Center's Copley Square location.

BEACON HILL'S MALL DEDICATED

Mayor White salutes "planning and cooperation" evident in Temple Street pedestrian mall.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on Dec. 16, called the designation of Beacon Hill's Temple Street as a pedestrian mall "a real triumph of neighborhood vision and commitment."

The Mayor presided at the dedication of the mall at a ceremony attended by city and state officials, President Thomas A. Fulham and other officials of Suffolk University, and representatives of local civic organizations.

"The Temple Walk" mall concept for the street was introduced in the late 1960s by the Beacon Hill Civic Association, based on plans of local resident and architect James McNeeley.

The plan subsequently received the endorsement of other neighborhood groups and city and state agencies and received funding by the city using federal Community Development Block Grants. Suffolk University contributed $25,000 toward the project, along with sycamore and linden trees for planting along the pedestrian mall.

Mayor White congratulated the parties involved for their "excellent planning and cooperation in making Temple Street a model for urban living.

"The combination of forces working to convert Temple Street from a congested, over-used access road into an intelligently designed pedestrian mall has presented the city with a prototype for future neighborhood projects and has contributed to the revitalization of Beacon Hill," the Mayor said.

"Boston's past and future is embodied in this street," Mayor White said. "And to serve our contemporary conception of what constitutes a viable neighborhood, Temple Street should be relatively free of automobile traffic, and it will be under this plan. I congratulate everybody involved in this project for turning the mall concept into reality."

Temple Street slopes from behind the State House northward to Cambridge Street. The street was laid out as a "Tay" street in 1737 and named Temple Street 30 years later after former Governor James Bowdoin's daughter married Boston aristocrat Sir John Temple. Renowned architect Charles Bulfinch was born there and designed and built many of his most famous houses and gardens along the street. The development of the south slope of Beacon Hill and the Back Bay signaled the decline of the neighborhood in the mid-1840s, just as recent housing restorations in the area signal its revival.

CURRICULUM KIT REVIEWED

"Some Ways the Same. Some Ways Different," a new special needs curriculum kit developed at the Children's Museum will be previewed at a January workshop for teachers, parents and group leaders.

At the workshop, participants will explore ways to use the kit in the classroom, try several activities and simulation exercises, and discuss with the museum staff questions that children may raise during the course.

The multimedia kit provides simple, straightforward information to elementary school children about disabilities and remediation methods and devices. Units deal with visual impairment, learning disabilities, hearing problems, mild emotional problems, mental retardation, and mobility problems and related physical handicaps.

The workshop is offered on Thursday, January 5, 7-9 p.m. and repeated on Saturday, January 14, 1-3 p.m. Preregistration is required and there is a $5 fee. To register, call the Children's Museum at 522-4800, extension 49.

CONTEMPORARY ART COURSES

The Institute of Contemporary Art, 955 Boylston Street offers 6- and 12-week courses on the currents in contemporary art. Students will study the influences and innovations of major modern artists through slide lectures, visits to museums, galleries and private collections. Call 266-5152 for details.

MAYOR DEDICATES FIRST PHASE OF NEWLY RENOVATED FANEUIL HALL MARKETS

Mayor Kevin H. White has joined the new tenants of Faneuil Hall in dedicating the first phase of complete renovations to the ground floor market area.

Montilio's Pastry and Colman's Mustard opened their shops today as Mayor White sliced the giant Montilio's cake which was baked as a scale model of Faneuil Hall. Dembro's Meats and Produce and Brigham's Ice Cream, the next two tenants of the ground floor market, also joined in the dedication.

Mayor White characterized the renovation project, which was largely carried out by the tenants, as a glowing example of successful cooperation between the city and the private business sector.

"This project is successful for many reasons. It has faithfully maintained the historic nature of this fine old building. But it has also made the area commercially viable for retail users. Those retail uses are as much a part of the Faneuil Hall tradition as the Bullfinch design. And the city is pleased to see both those traditions perpetuated."

Faneuil Hall, known as the "Cradle of Liberty" because of the many humanitarian gatherings held in its upper meeting chamber in the 19th century, was donated to the city by Peter Faneuil in 1742. The noted architect, Charles Bullfinch, substantially enlarged the building in 1805. The ground floor markets have remained a tradition since.

Architects for the renovation of four shop areas in the hall are Oldham, Soforenko and Priestly.

That firm, retained by the four tenants, designed the renovation to comply with city design standards. The city is the landlord for the markets. The renovation was supervised by a design review committee consisting of: the Public Facilities Department, the Landmarks Commission, the Boston Redevelopment Authority, Deputy Mayor Katharine Kane's office, and the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities.

Dembro's will be ready for business in early January. Brigham's plans a March opening.

WE'RE EIGHTY YEARS OLD!

The City Record, the present official chronicle of municipal affairs, will be celebrating the eightieth anniversary of its publication on January 6, 1978. On January 6, in 1898, when it was first published, it was known as the Official Gazette of the Executive Departments of the City of Boston.

The paper was edited under the direction of the Board of Municipal Statistics, Edward M. Hartwell, Secretary, in the old City Hall on School Street, and was capably printed (as it is today) by members of the City of Boston Printing Section. In the old days (1898) a single copy of the paper was only 5 cents and a yearly subscription $2. If one would compare the present-day cost (15 cents per single copy or $5 per year) he would realize the city has been quite fair to its subscribers by not increasing the cost of the publication, nor does it intend to at this time.

OFFICIAL CHRONICAL. MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS
HON. KEVIN H. WHITE. MAYOR OF BOSTON

LAWRENCE S. DICARA
PRESIDENT, CITY COUNCIL

VOL. 70

MONDAY, JANUARY 9, 1978

NO. 2

MAYOR DELIVERS ANNUAL ADDRESS

Mayor White's State of City Address was given at Faneuil Hall, January 2, 1978.

Before I begin, let me welcome the new City Council and School Committee members to the government. This is really more your day than mine — though it may serve as a proper introduction to the sacrifices of public service to spend a holiday in this hall listening to me. I won't keep you long.

For those renewing their oath of office today, and for those taking it for the first time, it is a significant moment. You have won the right, through a legitimate process, to help govern this city, and with your knowledge, to make decisions that will affect the life of this city.

But since I have been here as long or longer than most, let me risk a more historic perspective on the "State of the City"—and it is this: After five of the most difficult years in our history, this city is in better condition, its prospects are brighter, its potential is larger, than at any time in recent memory. By any measure, by any standard one could choose, we are back on our feet, as a city and as a people, and we are going to stay there.

I do not suggest that there are no serious problems ahead at this critical level of government — there always are.

In fact, on this occasion, in some previous years, I have delivered speeches couched in the language of Armageddon, or the Apocalypse — not to ring false alarms or to stir panic — but because the seemingly fatal threats to our community were all too apparent, the obstacles in our path, all too awesome. I need not recount the crises of the recent past today — they are fresh enough in all our memories. But we endured and a new cycle is beginning, a new phase, and if there is one way to characterize it, it is "A City in Balance."

This city stands on two legs: the downtown, and the neighborhoods. When both have been weak, we have fallen. When one or the other is atrophied or lame, we lurch, and stumble, and move ahead slowly and unevenly. Only when both are sturdy, stable, and strong, can we be sure of our progress. For the first time in this century, together, we have begun to achieve this balance.

Our older citizens will remember that thirty years ago the economy of this city was given up for dead. Our proud merchant past was in a shambles, our economic base had dissolved. The only question was how much time the long, slow, slide into oblivion would take.

But in the 1960s two mayors who are not here — and some city councillors who are here — committed themselves and their energies to the restoration of the vitality and growth of Boston. They began to convert the corpse they inherited into the dynamo Boston is today. The fruits of these efforts can be seen in our skyline, our marketplaces, and in the statistics that show a billion dollar economy that is the hub, if not of the universe, then still of this state, and the region.

Now this administration and this council have more than maintained that commitment to economic revival. In the last year alone, we have compiled a record that will not be surpassed by any older city in the country.

We — held the tax rate

— lowered the crime rate

— gained almost 3,000 new manufacturing jobs

— opened the most successful and exciting urban shopping center in America outside this very hall — brought almost 1,000 jobs back in ship construction at the army base

— And signed an international developer for fifteen hundred units of housing in the navy yard, which is the largest land acquisition in this city since the Back Bay infill.

These achievements are remarkable, because this city still operates in the confines of the most restrictive, and anti-business, state tax structure in America.

Ten years ago, while downtown was growing, our neighborhoods were given up for dead, forgotten, neglected, and ignored by policy makers and planners — by everyone except those who lived in them.

But an extensive poll of city residents has revealed an interesting fact: that there is today a genuine sense of optimism about life in the neighborhoods and this administration was conceived — and will continue on the precept — that if you forget about the neighborhoods, you can forget about Boston.

To illustrate the magnitude of our commitment, let me show you some comparative figures. In public capital construction; in the things that show a city is physically committed to survival and growth; parks, police stations, firehouses, health centers, libraries and schools; we have invested nearly a half a billion dollars since 1968.

Mayor's Address . . .

— Between 1960-68 less than four million was spent in Dorchester. We have invested 52 million in Dorchester alone since 1968.

— Less than two million was spent in Jamaica Plain — we spent 21 million.

— Less than two million was spent in Roxbury — we spent 59 million.

— And less than a million was spent in West Roxbury — we spent 33 million.

And the list goes on. It has all paid off. The return is already evident: and a single factor makes it undeniably clear. Population.

While every other older city in the east continues to lose jobs and people to the suburbs and beyond, Boston alone is stable. Most older cities in this country are hemorrhaging. They are losing their middle class. Boston is not. And few cities have endured a fraction of the social upheaval we have.

But it is not an accident. It is neighborhoods: the neighborhoods we have worked to save — have been our salvation.

The final credit goes not to a government, nor to a mayor . . . but to the people. People who never bought the siren song of suburbia. People who never gave up on this city — even when many opinion leaders were urging them to do so.

That is why, in the coming months, we will try to repay that faith, that resilience, with all the imagination, energy, and effort we can muster . . . to invigorate and sustain the neighborhoods.

Before the next two years are out, we will fight to force the federal government to fund the Boston Plan. It will mean millions for Hyde Park, Blue Hill Avenue and Columbia Point.

Before the next two years are out, we will go forward with housing projects like the San Marco in the North End, conceived and carried out with neighborhood involvement.

Before the next two years are out, we will build the Marine Industrial Park and bring hundreds of blue collar jobs to South Boston.

Before the next two years are out, we will build a new police station for West Roxbury, which residents have needed and deserved for a long time.

Before the next two years are out, we will have REHAB housing for the elderly on Peterborough Street, in the Fenway.

Before the next two years are out, we will construct a new two million dollar park on Sumner Street in East Boston.

Before the next two years are out, the Charlestown Navy Yard will be reopened with new jobs, homes, and the promise of an economic potential double that of the present waterfront.

And before the next two years are out, we will increase black and Hispanic employment in city government, and we have already begun — with a new police recruit class of 70% minorities.

But we can do better and we will. As the recent School Committee election shows, this city can belong to all of us.

Obviously, our resources are not endless: our ability to control our own fate is not without limit.

I will tell you what we can do and what we cannot.

We cannot control national inflation from City Hall, but we can control city expenditures and we will.

We cannot end unemployment in this city but we can lobby for federal funds for jobs, and business for Boston, and we will.

We cannot banish crime entirely from city streets, but we can lower the crime rate, and we have.

We cannot eliminate fiscal strain under the present tax structure, but we can hold the tax rate — and we will hold it at or under the cost of living.

Our limits are most sharply defined by action — or inaction — at other levels of government.

Our affairs are profoundly affected — not usually for the better — by federal and state policy.

Things should be changing for the better. We now have a President willing to aid the cities of America. It is my sincere hope that his promise will be fulfilled. Our test will be the response to the Boston Plan.

We have a state that can do much to aid the cities and towns within it. It is also my fervent hope that that obligation is honored.

But whether or not the federal and state governments meet their commitments, we will be prepared to wage the battle from within and from without.

This year, we will carry on the fight for property tax reform, and it shouldn't be necessary to tell anybody why. It's been put off, postponed, and swept under the rug for too long. It's becoming an ancient tradition at the State House to ignore the No. 1 issue in the Commonwealth.

I don't have to tell you: both major newspapers have featured informed and enlightened columns and editorials on the subject.

I don't have to tell you: elderly who have to meet rent bills, newlyweds trying to buy a home, a business struggling to stay in Massachusetts: they all know that property tax reform is No. 1. Until we have property tax reform, court reform — or any other kind of reform — it is a joke; a sham.

This year, we will fight again for every piece of fiscal legislation we have filed and, this year, we will fight for a just share of the surplus accumulating in state coffers — money drained from cities and towns — that should be pumped back in a formula fair to Boston.

Finally, this year, I will fight to pass the classification amendment, which, because of our efforts, is on the November 1978 ballot. If passed, it will kill the ugly spectre of 100 percent valuation. And short of wholesale property tax reform that amendment is our only hope for long term tax stability in the neighborhoods.

These will not be easy battles, but I believe we will win them.

My words have been of optimism this morning, warranted by more, I believe, than the ritual of acknowledging a new year. The simple reality is that our self-confidence is back, our condition is stable; and we look, for the first time in a long while, to a future made of more than gloomy alternatives and dark possibilities.

We are in a position now, not merely to articulate visions, but to act on them — not merely to be victims of events, but to shape them — not merely to accept our fate, but to master it.

"The city is the flower of civilization," Charles Lamb said. "It gives to men means to make their lives expressive. It offers a field of battle, and it could be made a livable place if its sons would stand and fight for it instead of running away."

Let that not be a quotation, but a description of this city, in 1978. Thanks.

EARLY LICENSE RENEWALS

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey has announced that the early Boston opening of license renewals would continue.

On November 7, 1977, the Registry began a trial program, opening the main office at 100 Nashua Street, Boston at 8:00 a.m. for license renewals. This is forty-five minutes earlier than the usual Registry opening time. "Because of the favorable response during this trial period, we will continue to open the Boston office at 8:00 a.m.

for license renewals," the Registrar stated. Mackey also said that on-street parking is readily available at this hour. "Also," he said, "our clerical and photographic employees note that people tend to photograph better first thing in the morning."

It was noted by Registry employees that persons who come in early have their license renewal processed in about five minutes. "We will also continue to renew registrations beginning at 8:00 a.m.," Mackey concluded.

COMMISSIONER JORDAN ANNOUNCES RENOVATIONS TO POLICE DISTRICT 5 STATION

Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan has announced that Mayor Kevin H. White's office of Federal Relations has allocated funds for the complete renovation of District 5 Police Station at Cleary Square in Hyde Park.

Commissioner Jordan said, "These renovations will assure Hyde Park residents that we are committed to staying in the community as opposed to centralization. Residents will also be assured of better delivery of police services."

The renovations will consist of electrical work, plumbing, heating, carpentry work and structural rehabilitation of the station's exterior.

Mayor White said, "It is important that the city maintain a strong physical presence in the neighborhoods. When we renovate a city-owned building, we add to the stability of the area."

Planning for the project was carried out by the city's offices of Program Development, Development and Construction and Public Service, in conjunction with neighborhood organizations.

The station renovation contract was awarded under the supervision of the city's Public Facilities Department to Solimando Construction Co., of Milton.

The cost of the renovations will be $447,427. This will be paid for by a local Public Works grant from the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

STUDY REVEALS SUCCESSFUL TRAINING PROGRAM

An evaluation of training programs run by the City of Boston indicates success in job placement and substantial wage increases.

The study, conducted by Northeastern University, evaluated the results of 21 courses offered by the Employment and Economic Policy Administration (EEPA) to 1,118 participants. Training was provided in such diverse fields as welding, machinery, clerical, food preparation, homemaking, and medicine. Following completion of the training, approximately two-thirds of the program participants obtained employment at an average hourly wage of $3.49 (as compared to a pre-training hourly average of $2.67) and nearly all of these jobs were directly related to the trainee's field of study. In addition, over two-thirds were employed six months after training.

The findings suggested further that the EEPA training programs neutralized job discrimination associated with sex, race, education, and language.

"This evaluation is encouraging in our efforts to combat the city's high unemployment rate," said Mayor Kevin H. White. "Now we need to expand such programs to train more of our unemployed and underemployed. This past fiscal year over 15,000 Boston residents received employment services in EEPA programs. This 'follow-up' study confirms the fact that most of these people obtain meaningful employment and remain in their jobs for a significant period of time."

The report was presented at the Fifth Annual New England Business and Economic Development Conference in November. Charles M. Atkins, EEPA Administrator, noted that the survey was part of a larger follow-up study and will continue during fiscal year 1978 to identify further successful aspects of employment training programs.

Doby Flowers, EEPA Director of Employment and Training, added that another important consequence of the training was its psychological benefits: 70.5% of the participants reported an increase in self-confidence.

DEPARTMENTAL COMMU—NICATION

To: All Department Heads.

From: Walter W. Merrill, City Auditor.

Subject: City of Boston and County of Suffolk Deferred Compensation Programs. Effective At Once:

Three companies have permission to solicit City of Boston employees (after obtaining Department Head approval) for the purpose of signing up, or changing the deductions of City and County employees in the Deferred Compensation Program.

The program has been delayed in part by problems in coordinating the efforts of the three companies.

Aetna, Aetna Variable Annuity Life Ins. Co., Code 70 (formerly Code 10).

Valic, Variable Annuity Life Ins. Co., Code 80 (formerly Code 33).

Capital Life, Security First Marketing Group, Code 90 (formerly Code 40).

The solicitation period for deductions to be made in 1978 will start at once and will close on Friday, January 20, 1978.

All applications must be in the hands of the payroll clerks no later than January 24, 1978 and will be effective for the payroll period starting February 8, 1978.

While the Deferred Compensation Plans for the City and County are official City programs, the following should be pointed out:

I. Deferred Compensation is not a short-term savings account — it is designed for those who can afford a long-term retirement commitment under strict regulations of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. Employees who cannot afford to make this commitment should not consider this plan.

II. Frequent questions arise on the ability of the employees to withdraw from the plan. This is a serious problem.

1. Under IRS rules, employees must sign up for a minimum period of one (1) year.

2. While they may withdraw at the end of the year this does not return the money they have already paid in. Refunds can only be made in cases of:

Extreme financial hardship such as:

— Sudden unforeseen medical expenses

— Loss of income (complete)

— Death

Invalid reasons might be:

— Cost of living escalation

— Taxes

— Tuition increase

— Budgetable items

In order to provide for ample consideration of what this means to an employee, we have built in to this year's program a short cooling off period of thirty (30) days. Withdrawals within thirty days of the signing will be treated as refunds rather than as withdrawals.

III. The Deferred Compensation Plans and the servicing of the employees must adhere to the rules established by U.S. Internal Revenue Service procedures, State Statutes and City of Boston, County of Suffolk regulations.

Some of these rules are not being followed. Therefore, effective immediately:

1. Employees may only have one agreement with the City or County during any one calendar year, and are only permitted to have a deduction made to a single company.

2. Employees may terminate the deduction at any time after the minimum enrollment period of one (1) year with thirty (30) days notice to the Treasurer through the payroll section.

3. The plans provide only one open enrollment period per year. In future years this will be during the months of September, October and November. Employees must be enrolled before December 1st of the year prior to the beginning of the deduction which will commence in January.

4. Employees may terminate the deduction any time after the minimum enrollment period by providing written notice to the Treasurer (through the payroll section) thirty (30) days in advance of the requested effective date. Once an employee terminates his plan, he cannot rejoin until the next open enrollment period. Termination does not refund monies previously deducted. These monies will remain in his account frozen until he retires, terminates employment or dies.

5. An employee may make only one change to his plan in any calendar year. (By change is meant increase, decrease of the amount deferred or change of insurer.) Changes will be accepted only during the next open enrollment period and made effective for the following calendar year.

6. Withdrawal of funds can only be specified in the plan and in accord with IRS regulations.

7. All withdrawals from the fund are subject to Federal taxes in the year received.

Further information will be furnished as it becomes formalized.

NEW MDC "ACCIDENTS" PROGRAM

Metropolitan District Commissioner John F. Snedeker today announced the success of a new program between the MDC and insurance companies involving motor vehicle accidents on MDC property.

According to Commissioner Snedeker, "For too long a problem has existed in getting funds to repair damages caused by motorists.

"In many instances repairs were neglected for a considerable period of time. However, a recent report indicated that repairs which may otherwise have been awaiting budget approval are completed and paid for.

"We are very confident that a workable solution has been found."

Initiated in September of 1973, insurance companies pay for repairs or replacements to MDC property as a result of damages caused by motor vehicles.

The Commissioner stressed that, "This allows the MDC to have repairs made at no loss of money from the MDC budget"

Work done by previous MDC contractors is evaluated and a list is submitted to the insurance companies for their selection.

When the police submit an accident report we then notify the insurance company to "replace in kind" the damage to MDC property as a result of the accident.

Payment is made when an MDC inspector gives written approval of the job's satisfactory completion.

Previously, the insurance company sent a check to the MDC to cover damages. It was then put in a General Fund. The next step was for the commissioner to ask for the repair money under a Supplemental Budget. In many instances, the work was not done right away. Now the insurance company is responsible for the work and hiring the contractor.

Commissioner Snedeker notes, "So far 53 claims have been completed and paid by insurance companies totaling $41,821.97.

"The efficiency and expediency of this program result in improvements that otherwise may have been delayed under the old system. In addition, the immediate repairs are another step closer toward our goal of providing proficient service to the public."

MAYOR'S TASK FORCE RELEASES COLISEUM STUDY

Mayor Kevin H. White's Task Force has released a study demonstrating the financial feasibility of the proposed coliseum concept submitted to the state legislature last month.

The task force, headed by developer Mortimer Zuckerman of Boston Properties, has submitted a bill proposing an authority to build, own and operate the facility, which would seat 18,000 and cost approximately $35 million.

The arena authority, under proposed legislation, must raise revenues sufficient to cover debt service and provide the city with annual in-lieu-of-taxes payments.

The study, conducted by Economic Research Associates, shows net revenues of $2.9 million available for annual debt service, and an annual debt service of $2.3 million, an annual surplus of $600,000.

Economic Research Associates concluded that with "aggressive private management," estimated revenues from building rentals, concessions, sky box rentals, advertising and other revenues would be about $4.8 million.

Estimated expenses for the proposed coliseum, including labor, utilities, direct operating expenses, administrative costs, insurance and other costs, would be about $1.9 million, the study showed, leaving about $2.9 million per year available to cover debt service.

The Economic Research Associates Study, headed by David C. Peterson, manager, Southeast Region, studied operations of comparable existing facilities in Philadelphia, New Orleans, Long Island, Atlanta, Houston, Indianapolis and Washington, D.C. in evaluating the proposed coliseum's financial characteristics.

City Hall will be closed all day.

JOHN E. MURPHY, JR.,

SUGGESTIONS FOR 1978

Here are seven simple ways to begin living a more abundant, exciting, productive and rewarding life:

Memorize at least one great truth every day. It may be an inspiring poem, an especially helpful verse of Scripture, an affirmation or a favorite quotation. What you memorize becomes a part of your life, your character and your future.

Crystalize your goals, your aspirations and your ambitions. Write them down and include a workable timetable for their accomplishment.

Specialize in some particular field of endeavor. Become an expert, and you will soon become indispensable. Become an authority, and you will inevitably become sought after.

Neutralize your fears, your doubts and your anxieties through the power of prayer, meditation and a positive mental attitude.

Minimize your shortcomings, your liabilities and your deficiencies. Because you were designed by a Master Architect, you are greater than you think!

Maximize your abilities, your talents, your potentialities and your possibilities. Accentuate your positives!

Recognize the good in others, the beauty of friendship, the splendor of love and the joy of service. Train your eyes to look for the best in others, and invariably others will see the best in you.

Personnel Order No. 77-301

The Boston Police Department Awards Board, consisting of Deputy Superintendent James J. McDonald, Deputy Superintendent Anthony J. Leone, Deputy Superintendent Paul E. Johnson, Lieutenant Joseph P. Sheridan, Police Officer James A. Donadini, and chaired by Captain Morris V. Allen, convened for the purpose of selecting officers who have distinguished themselves in the performance of duty so as to merit the award of the Schroeder Medal for Courageous Police Service, the Walter Scott Medal for Valor, the Department Medal of Honor and other awards.

After Due deliberation, the Awards Board selected each of the following named officers as being entitled to the Medals and Awards designated.

The Schroeder Brothers Medal for Courageous Police Service, the Department Medal of Honor, The Boston Police Relief Association Memorial Award, The Thomas F. Sullivan Award, and The Boston Bank Award — To: Detectives Arnold James and John J. McManus, District Three.

About 1:30 P.M., Friday, April 29, 1977, Detectives James and McManus, while patrolling the Mattapan Square area and on Fairway Street, nearing the National Shawmut Bank parking lot, observed a holdup in progress. In an effort to abort the robbery and arrest the perpetrators, the detectives maneuvered their vehicle up on the sidewalk, cutting off the escape route of the felons, with Detective James driving while Detective McManus was drawing his service revolver. The response from the felons was an immediate fusillade of firepower at the two detectives. Detective James was struck in the face, causing him to lose control of the vehicle which collided with the bank building and came to a stop on top of a brown leather attache case containing the currency taken at the robbery. Detective McManus was struck on the wrist, elbow and shoulder, causing his firearm to fall from his grasp just as the felons were fleeing the scene.

Throughout the incident, the primary motive and concern of both of the officers was the protection of the victim and the apprehension of the felons without regard for their own personal safety. Both officers sustained critical wounds and required extensive hospitalization. The bravery of these two men is best exemplified by the fact that they nearly sacrificed their lives in the course of executing their sworn duties. The culprits were ultimately captured after an intensive investigation.

POLICE DEPARTMENT ORDERS

The Walter Scott Medal of Valor, the Department Medal of Honor, The Boston Police Relief Association Memorial Award, The Thomas F. Sullivan Award, and The Boston Bank Award — To: Officer Thomas F. Pollard, Jr., District Fourteen

About 1 p.m., December 21, 1976, Officer Pollard, off duty, in civilian attire and about to enter a variety store at 411 Washington Street, Brighton, was approached by the excited store owner who knew Pollard to be a police officer.

The owner stated to him that a male wearing a white lumberjack shirt had entered his store with what appeared to be an automatic rifle on his shoulder wrapped in rags. The man had caused an uproar by acting in an irrational manner to the owner and the customers present and had just left the store.

Officer Pollard immediately began searching for the suspect and observed him entering the Budget Beauty Salon at 385 Washington Street. He followed the man into the salon and observed him holding four terrified female employees at bay with a large double-edged lumberman's axe. The man ranted: "I want a haircut, have no money but I am going to get it."

Officer Pollard approached the man, identified himself as a police officer and instructed him to take the weapon off his shoulder and put it gently on the floor. At the same time Officer Pollard instructed the owner to call the police for assistance. Officer Pollard's experienced demeanor calmed the suspect down to the point where he placed the weapon on the floor. At this point the suspect attempted to flee, whereupon he was restrained by the officer with the officer being repeatedly kicked and punched by the assailant.

Investigation revealed the suspect to be a 21-year-old Roslindale patient of the West Roxbury Veteran's Hospital Psychiatric Unit. His parents were contacted and responded to make arrangements to have him returned to the hospital.

Officer Pollard's quick response obviously rescued the four women from a most terrifying experience. There is no doubt a potential tragedy was averted due to the officer's actions.

The Department Medal of Honor, the Boston Police Relief Association Memorial Award, The Thomas F. Sullivan Award, and The Boston Bank Award — To: Officers Thomas R. Clifford, Jr. and Robert C. DiPasquale, District Four.

About 8:10 a.m., Friday, February 4, 1977, the 4-8 sector car with Officers Clifford and DiPasquale, while cruising on Westland Avenue, observed a large quantity of dense smoke and flame emanating from the top floors of 68 Westland Avenue. The officers immediately notified Operations and without hesitation, entered the burning four story brick apartment building and began banging on all the apartment doors on the first and second floors to alert the occupants; and forced some of the doors where there was no response, in order to rescue any sleeping occupants. The officers were subsequently forced to retreat from the burning building due to the intense heat, smoke and fire. The officers then proceeded to 66 Westland Avenue, where they repeated their procedure of alerting occupants to the danger. After this building was completely evacuated, the officers returned to 68 Westland Avenue and forced open a closed and locked door and found an unknown male sleeping or unconscious, and carried him from the building.

An off duty Boston firefighter stated to Sergeant Philbin of District Four: he had been driving on Westland Avenue after most of the rescues had been made and saw the two officers helping about ten or twelve people into the street and commented: "Those cops must have really taken a beating from the smoke in there."

Captain Collins of the Boston Fire Department stated that of the thirty-one apartments in the building, twenty to twenty-five were occupied, and estimated that a total of forty to forty-five people were evacuated by the officers.

The officers, even though suffering from smoke inhalation, remained at the scene, assisting the firefighters in setting up fire lines, then were removed to the Boston City Hospital.

The actions of the two officers at the scene of this massive conflagration, in which four persons perished, undoubtedly prevented further tragic loss of life.

The Department Medal of Honor, the Boston Police Relief Association Memorial Award, The Thomas F. Sullivan Award, and The Boston Bank Award — To: Officer Edward R. Gaughan, District Two.

About 8:10 p.m., Wednesday, September 28, 1977, Officers Thomas McDermott, Robert Maffeo, and Sergeant Gerald Doucette of District Two responded to a grocery store holdup in progress at 147 Centre Street, Roxbury. Upon arrival the officers learned that two individuals, one carrying a handgun and the other armed with a sawed-off shotgun, had just robbed the store owner of $482. The suspect carrying the sawed-off shotgun had fired one round in the store to intimidate the owner.

All of the witnesses were taken to District Two where they were questioned by the above mentioned officers and assisted by officers Joseph Poggi and Edward Gaughan.

Officer Poggi's expertise in the Spanish language enabled him to determine the identities of the two suspects as Saul Diaz and Juan Ramirez of 106 Heath Street, Roxbury. The five officers responded to that address and sighted the getaway car parked outside. Officers Gaughan, Maffeo and Poggi proceeded up the stairs to the second floor apartment, while Officer McDermott and Sergeant Doucette watched two open windows from the outside of the building. Upon entering the building, and then the apartment, the three officers observed a door closing at the far end of the hallway. At this point Sergeant Doucette observed one of the suspects raise a screen in an attempt to climb out. Sergeant Doucette and Officer McDermott warned the suspects that they would be shot if they tried to escape, whereupon the culprits closed the screen.

Outside the closed door, the officers heard the sound of a shell being put into the chamber of a shotgun.

Officer Gaughan then flung open the door and observed Juan Ramirez standing there aiming a loaded shotgun directly at him. Also in the room were the second suspect and two small children.

Officer Gaughan then threw himself against the entrance of the doorway and pointed his service revolver at Ramirez's head, and shouted, "Drop the gun!" A standoff between Officer Gaughan and Ramirez persisted for several long seconds until Officer Gaughan again instructed the culprit to drop his weapon. At this point Ramirez lowered the shotgun and he and Diaz were quickly subdued and arrested.

This department is indeed proud to recognize the courage and professionalism shown by Officer Gaughan in averting gunfire with the presence of two small children, while facing an armed felon holding a cocked sawed-off shotgun.

The performance of all the officers involved exemplifies the essence of team work in policing and they are to be commended.

William J. Taylor Award — To: Officers Joseph Mugnano and Robert Gallo, District Seven.

These two officers are partners, nights, in a sector car in East Boston, and over the past two and a half years, have performed in a professional and exemplary manner.

In the past year alone, they have made over fifty-one arrests resulting in convictions on a multitude of offenses involving armed robbery, narcotic sales, larcenies, receivings, stolen vehicles, breaking and entering in the nighttime, rape and many other offenses.

It is a pleasure to recognize the kind of quality exhibited by these two officers daily.

Special Citations — To: Detectives Francis Sheehan and Thomas J. Connolly, District Four.

About 5 p.m. Wednesday, March 2, 1977, Detectives Sheehan and Connolly of District Four, received a telephone call from a woman suburban resident who stated to them that her 18-year-old daughter had been the victim of a kidnapping and rape on March 1, continuing through March 2, 1977.

The woman stated that her daughter, while walking along Beacon Street, near Bay State Road, about 11 a.m., Tuesday, March 1, 1977, was assaulted by two males who forced her at knifepoint to enter a blue sedan with blue interior. She was ordered to put her head down between her legs while they drove to either Roxbury or Jamaica Plain, where she was brought into a building and taken to a second floor apartment, held for 24 hours and raped. About 10 p.m. that evening, two other men entered the apartment and raped her while the other two looked on and laughed. After the interview with the girl, the mother became reluctant to have the detectives pursue their investigation, but the professional manner displayed by the officers allayed the fears of the parents, allowing the investigation to proceed with painstaking searches of various neighborhoods to identify the area of the city where the young girl had been taken.

As a result of their perseverance and dedication in retracing the vague movements of the victim, including the combing of an unfamiliar neighborhood, the two culprits were ultimately arrested and brought to trial, much to the credit of the police department, and the satisfaction of the victim and her family.

To: Captain Albert L. Flattery, Field Inspections Unit, and Officers James C. Lawler and Michael W. Feeney, District Four.

About 2:16 p.m., Monday, August 8, 1977, the 4-12 car, with Officers Lawler and Feeney, was dispatched to 171 West Newton Street, on a report of four males breaking and entering in the rear of that location. Captain Flattery notified Operations that he would also respond. About one minute and forty seconds later, the officers and the captain arrived simultaneously and were met by a female resident of 169 West Newton Street, who stated to them that four males had just forced open the window of 171 and had entered the four story brick dwelling house, residence of five nuns who were Sisters of the Order of Saint Joseph.

After having been provided with this information, Captain Flattery and Officer Feeney proceeded to the rear to prevent the escape of the culprits. Feeney at this time, observed two of the males who had hidden themselves behind the tall hedges in front of the building. Suddenly, realizing Feeney had seen them, the two males fled on foot down West Newton Street with the officer in pursuit.

Meanwhile, Captain Flattery had entered the front door of the residence to determine if the occupants were safe, and was met by a hysterical and frightened nun who was a resident of the house. The captain escorted the woman from the house then reentered the address, drawing his service revolver and confronted a male on the second floor landing. At the same time that Captain Flattery was placing the first culprit under arrest, Officer Lawler had confronted another of the suspects who was exiting from the rear. Both suspects were placed in the sector car while Officer Feeney was pursuing the third of the four culprits. All three of the suspects were returned to the dwelling, where they were positively identified by the resident nuns, who stated that they had confronted one of the nuns in her third floor bedroom, there they demanded money, put a long handled brown knife to her throat, and threw her to the floor. They then dragged her bodily down to the dining room, where out of fear for her life, she produced a check book, which only seemed to provoke the culprits further; for they became quite angry and dashed the nun to the stairs leading to the second floor. At about that time, the fourth culprit reentered the home to alert the other three that the police had arrived.

There is no doubt that the excellent response by Captain Flattery and Officers Lawler and Feeney prevented a much more serious and dangerous situation from developing, for the culprits had assaulted one of the nuns twice and were becoming more agitated and dangerous with each minute that passed. Additionally, the leadership qualities displayed by the captain in coordinating a teamwork approach to the apprehension, the directing and the controlling of the situation at hand, was in keeping with the highest traditions of the department.

To: Officer Leo C. Parker, District Three.

About 12:20 a.m., Thursday, January 20, 1977, Officer Parker was en route to District Seven to perform a last half tour of duty when he observed smoke coming from a group of attached dwellings located at 99-101-103-105 and 111 Maverick Street. The officer entered the above dwellings and going from door to door, aroused the residents of each occupied apartment. In the second floor hall of 109 Maverick Street, he found a Spanish woman who spoke no English. The woman was carrying a small child and was apparently confused by the heavy smoke in the hall. Officer Parker led the woman to the street where she was cared for by a neighbor. Parker then reentered the burning building, and continued to knock on the doors until he was certain there were no persons left in the building.

Although this fire resulted in four alarms being sounded on the arrival of the fire department and caused heavy damage to the buildings involved, there were no injuries to any of the residents. Officer Parker's quick action and complete disregard for his own safety were undoubtedly responsible for the fact that all of the residents escaped unharmed. Upon arrival at District 7, Officer Parker, although visibly effected by the smoke he had inhaled at the fire, refused medical treatment and continued on his scheduled tour. He is eminently qualified for this citation.

To: Officers Robert A. Buccafusea and Anthony T. Landry, District Two.

About 8:05 p.m., Thursday, December 23, 1976, the 200 wagon, with Officers Buccafusea and Landry, while on routine patrol on Maywood Street, observed a two-story wooden dwelling on fire. The officers immediately notified Operations then forced the front doors and the rear doors of 40 Maywood Street, and entered the premises. Within the premises were five children that were unaware that their home was on fire. They were quickly led to safety by the officers. The officers then returned to the second floor of the burning building and removed a thirty-year-old woman and her three sons. Damage was estimated at $20,000. Three alarms were sounded and there were no civilian injuries due to the alertness and spontaneous action by the officers. Both officers complained of smoke inhalation and were coughing, but refused medical assistance. The service provided by these officers was without due regard for their own personal safety. If not for their concerted effort, eight small children, as well as the other occupants would have been in peril.

Special Citations — To: Officers Mary L. Curran, Joseph Nolan, James Gorman, Dennis C. Thomson and Mr. Patrick Sullivan.

About 1:15 a.m., Wednesday, July 6, 1977, two persons died, one person was seriously burned, several injured, and more than twenty persons evacuated from their homes as a result of a serious fire which had destroyed a four-story brick dwelling house located at 35 High Street, Charlestown, and caused extensive damage to numbers 33 and 37 High Street.

Officers James F. Gorman and Dennis Thomson responding to an unrelated radio call for a disturbance at Cordis and High Street, observed the fire in progress at 35 High, sounded the alarm, immediately left their vehicle and entered the burning dwellings. While the responding firefighters entered 35 High Street, the officers fought their way through dense smoke and extreme heat and successfully alerted all of the residents. In one case, Officers Gorman and Thomson ascended to the third floor of 33 High Street, and broke down the door in order to rescue an elderly resident. At the same time, Officers Curran and Nolan, assigned to the 1500 wagon, responded to the fire, and upon arrival, observed two persons on a third-story ledge, calling for help. The two males and one female had escaped to the ledge from their fourth-floor apartment of the burning building at 35 High Street. Officers Curran and Nolan, together with Mr. Patrick Sullivan of 10 Lawnwood Place, Charlestown, went to the rooftop of 41 High Street, and rescued a male and the female from the ledge. One of the males had fallen from the ledge to the sidewalk, and was pronounced dead on arrival at Mass. General Hospital. The female had sustained second degree burns over 25 percent of her body and was placed on the Danger List. Her husband suffered first degree burns to both arms and hands, and was treated and released. Officer Nolan sustained injuries to his right thumb and left forearm; Patrick Sullivan sustained lacerations to both of his feet while assisting in the rescue. The prompt action taken by all of these officers as well as Patrick Sullivan, reflects an unselfish dedication to respect for human life and it is a pleasure to award these citations.

To: Officers John E. Ulrich and Albert LaFontaine, District Thirteen.

Over the period of August 28, 1976 through February 2, 1977, these two officers made a total of four hundred and forty-one drug related arrests in the Ja-

Jamaica Plain area, of which two hundred and ninety-three are pending in the various courts.

The manner in which Officers LaFontaine and Ulrich have conducted their investigations; the intelligence, persistence and overall competence, have resulted in a dramatic curtailment of illegal sales of narcotics in the Jamaica Plain area.

The performance of these officers has brought praise from the community and reflects upon the Boston Police Department as a whole.

To: Mr. John Arsenault of New England Telephone Company.

About 8:50 A.M., Friday, December 3, 1976, Officers Joseph Egan and Francis Benjamin, in the 402 wagon, responded to a radio call to Herald and Tremont Streets, relative to a man struck by a car. Upon arrival the officers assisted Boston City Hospital Ambulance attendants in removing a 69 year old male to the New England Medical Center where he was placed on the D.L. with head and other multiple injuries. Further investigation revealed that the man had been struck by a motor vehicle while crossing Herald Street, where he was knocked to the pavement.

At this time, a passing motorist, later identified as John Arsenault, an Installer-Repairman for the New England Telephone Company, 41 Belvedere Street, Boston, halted his telephone truck and placed it in such a way as to prevent other vehicles from striking Mr. Clark. Although in the midst of freezing temperatures, Mr. Arsenault removed his own coat and placed it over the victim to provide warmth, and requested nearby residents to furnish blankets. Mr. Arsenault then obtained a First-Aid Kit from his truck and administered a compress to a seriously bleeding wound on the victim's head. Residents in the area reported to the officers that Mr. Arsenault appeared very calm and professional while administering to the injured man. While in addition to caring for the victim he diverted traffic while kneeling over him.

There is no doubt that the quick action of Mr. Arsenault helped to save the life of the accident victim who ultimately was listed in critical condition at the New England Medical Center.

To: Detective John Ridlon, District Fifteen.

Detective Ridlon, assigned to District Fifteen and temporarily detailed to the Bureau of Investigative Services, Intelligence Unit, became involved in an investigation which concerned approximately twenty-five robberies. Members of the Mass. State Police were also involved in the investigation. The intense, difficult investigation was of seven months duration and required extensive travel outside of Massachusetts. Numerous interviews and interrogations conducted by Detective Ridlon show an exceptional degree of competency and were instrumental in convictions of armed robbers. In addition, the expertise of Detective Ridlon in protecting and maintaining witnesses who were in constant danger, was vital to the successful prosecution. Ten persons have been indicted for bank robberies in Middlesex, Norfolk and Suffolk Counties. A large number of weapons and silencers have been seized.

It is a pleasure to recognize the performance of an officer whose diligence and competence has resulted in the removal from society of ten dangerous felons.

To: Officer Robert Keenan, District Three (Retired).

Officer Keenan was a member of the Boston Police Department for more than thirty years, most of which he served as the Chief Clerk of District 3. The performance of personnel assigned to administrative duties is rarely recognized but is a vital function necessary to departmental efficiency. Officer Keenan was not content to just "do" his job, but with business acumen, made innovations to clerical procedures, many of which the department put into effect, resulting in a saving of material and time. Officer Keenan was a model for all to copy. His rapport with his fellow employees was exceptional and he went far beyond the required assistance to others.

To: Mr. Frank Scheffler, Security Guard.

About 10:10 P.M., April 17, 1977, Officer Thomas E. Lydon, Jr., of the Tactical Patrol Force, while performing a paid detail for the New England Telephone Company on Harrison Avenue, Boston, observed an armed robbery in progress in a parking lot at Essex and Harrison Avenue. Officer Lydon interrupted the robbery of two women by a knife-wielding suspect, and when he did, the culprit lunged at the officer, attempting to stab him in the stomach. The officer stopped the thrust with his left hand. The officer's left index finger was severely lacerated to the bone and bled profusely. Frank Scheffler, a security guard for Northeast Security, also working for the Telephone Company, came to the aid of the officer when he observed the assault and wounding of the officer.

The officer's hand was practically crippled and Mr. Scheffler assisted the officer in subduing and handcuffing the felon at great risk to himself.

It is a pleasure indeed to award Frank Scheffler this citation.

To: Jane Allston

Jane Allston was critically wounded in the Mattapan Square holdup of the National Shawmut Bank on April 29, 1977. Her testimony and cooperation in the investigation was of inestimable value in bringing the investigation to a successful conclusion. Jane Allston is eminently qualified to receive this citation.

THE BOSTON PLAN: ITS PURPOSE

Columbia Point — Part 1

Overview

A. Selection of Target Area

Columbia Point is ready for change. Over the past twenty years, this community has reflected many of the worst problems besetting urban areas across the country. Today, the community reflects not only the problems, but the renewed potential for the creation of a livable and well-planned urban environment as well.

Columbia Point is characterized by its 1504 unit housing project on a 40 acre site, the largest public housing development in New England. The project was considered an innovative physical and social environment when it was completed in 1954. Since that time, it has become evident that the high densities and high-rise buildings located on a mass of asphalt are both an urban planning and housing tenants' nightmare. The housing project now stands with over 66% of its units empty.

The one commercial district adjacent to the project, Bayside Mall, serves as a barometer for indicating the declining state of the development. The Mall opened in 1965 with 300,000 square feet of retail space and 33 stores; by 1977 only one commercial enterprise, a branch bank, remains.

Underemployment, unemployment and poverty are the rule, rather than the exception, in the Columbia Point Housing Project. This neighborhood is isolated from the rest of the city not only physically, but socially and economically, as well. At the very least the housing project requires partial demolition and rehabilitation of some of its units to make it more livable. And this effort is meaningless without real job opportunities for the residents.

The Boston Plan proposes creation of a new neighborhood at Columbia Point by transforming blighted, largely abandoned housing and reopening a commercial area abandoned to vandalism. Columbia Point will also serve as an example to the rest of the country of how a public housing project, long deemed a failure, can be made into a viable, mixed-income neighborhood with the rights of existing tenants still respected. Tenants will be given a written guarantee that will allow them, if they wish, to occupy the new low-income units.

Signs of Strength

Several major institutions recently moved to the area, indicating renewed potential for this neighborhood. The headquarters of the Boston Teachers Union recently leased (with an option to buy) and renovated a large section of Bayside Mall for their use.

The University of Massachusetts, completed in 1973 at a cost of $135,000,000, serves 8,000 students, faculty, and staff on the Peninsula. The University, besides being an educational focal point, also provides architectural interest to the area; the dark red brick and irregular form of the structure contrast with the monotony of the housing project design.

The future of Columbia Point became even brighter with the beginning of the Kennedy library construction. The library will open in 1979; and will cost approximately $12,000,000. Between 600,000 and 800,000 visitors are estimated to attend the library each year, thus adding to the active, positive use of the Point.

Other positive signs include the continuing interest of Boston College High School, the proximity of many major employers, and the recent beginning of an $8,400,000 modernization program in the project itself.

Another indication of the commitment to the Peninsula has been the work of the Peninsula Planning Committee, a group made up of all the various actors with a stake in the area's revitalization. Many of the ideas in this proposal have been the result of this group's work. Appendix B lists the Committee's members and includes a statement of basic principles.

These institutions have recognized that the waterfront location and the proximity of Columbia Point to downtown Boston make it a desirable place to build. With these institutions as a foundation and with federal funds as a catalyst, Columbia Point could become a thriving community.

B. Summary of Project Components

This proposal attempts to capitalize on the trends set in motion by the University of Massachusetts and the Kennedy Library, reinforced by the beauty of the coastal site, to bring about the total revitalization of the Peninsula. This program contains the following components:

- Completion of public housing modernization program

- Creation of a new 1,500 unit mixed-income housing development

- Reopening of Bayside Mall
- New waterfront park and marina

- New traffic circulation system on the Peninsula

- Major improvements to the existing MBTA station and bridges

- Creation of jobs and training programs.

At completion, this project will create 400 jobs annually during the new housing construction, 250 jobs at the new retail center, and housing units for 4,500 people. $2,000,000 in new property tax revenues will directly benefit the City's fiscal health.

II. Description of the Area

A. Area Location

Located only three miles southeast of downtown Boston, Columbia Point offers a prime waterfront location for development. This 351 acre peninsula provides two miles of shoreline, mostly in public ownership, as well as excellent views of downtown Boston, the Harbor Islands, and Dorchester Bay. About 5,000 jobs are within walking distance and with the transportation improvements suggested in this proposal; the Peninsula will be one of the most accessible sites in the metropolitan area.

B. Population and Income

The Columbia Point Housing Project is the major residential area on the Peninsula. This 1,504 unit housing project was originally built in 1954 for a population of approximately 5,000. During the first ten years of occupancy, the minority population increased from 13% to 44% of the total residents.

Since that time, the number of residents decreased substantially. Only 470 units are currently occupied, including 390 families and 80 elderly or handicapped households. With this decline in total population, the proportion of minority residents soared to the existing level of 86%.

The severe economic hardships which most Columbia Point residents endure are represented by the startling fact that 95% of the families have incomes below poverty level. The 1970 median family income at the Point was $4,107, compared to $9,133 for the City of Boston as a whole.

The median age of Columbia Point residents is 14. 36% of all youth and 20% of all adults, furthermore, are unemployed. These facts emphasize the need for job training and youth services at the Point.

C. Housing Conditions

The Columbia Point Housing Project is divided into 15 seven-story elevator buildings and 12 three-story walk-up buildings. Many of the structures are clustered together with extremely high densities, such as a group of six buildings on four asphalt acres containing 448 units with a density of 500 persons per acre.

The Boston Housing Authority (BHA) began to consolidate residents in 1975 into the better maintained structures in order to achieve 100% occupancy in these buildings (all of the three-story structures and a few seven-story buildings). Three buildings which contain about 80 units originally designed for residential use are now occupied by twelve social service agencies.

The housing units need extensive improvements to make them livable. An estimated $23 million total is necessary to bring the project up to just minimal state sanitary code standards. An $8,400,000 modernization program recently began, however, for 252 family apartments and 168 elderly units, utility improvements are also in this program.

MAYOR RENEWS PLEDGE TO PURSUE FEDERAL FUNDS FOR BOSTON

Mayor Kevin H. White, on January 2, renewed his pledge to bring millions of dollars in federal funds to Boston's neighborhoods by persuading the federal government to fund the Boston Plan.

In his "State of the City" address, the Mayor reaffirmed his commitment to the city's neighborhoods through the Boston Plan and other projects.

The Mayor said, "Boston is in better condition than any time in recent memory."

To further foster the city's renewal, Mayor White promised to increase existing neighborhood investment programs, spur downtown development, and fight hard for the completion of the many multi-million-dollar city projects now under way.

Closely linking the economic health of the neighborhoods with the downtown area Mayor White said, "This city stands on two legs: its downtown and its neighborhoods . . . only when both are sturdy, stable and strong can we be sure of our progress. For the first time in this century, together, we have begun to achieve that balance."

Citing stabilized population figures, Mayor White called strong neighborhoods the "salvation" of the city.

While every other older city in the East continues to lose jobs and people to the suburbs and beyond, Boston alone is stable. Most older cities in this country are hemorrhaging. They are losing their middle class. Boston is not.

Briefly reviewing his administration's record, Mayor White estimated that over half a billion dollars in public capital construction has been undertaken in Boston neighborhoods since 1968.

Mayor White pledged to aggressively pursue passage of his 1978 legislative package on Beacon Hill. Prime among those measures are legislation designed to reform the property tax and a bill which calls for the Mayor's property tax classification amendment to be placed on the 1978 ballot.

The Mayor added that tighter controls on expenditures, improved management, and cost-effective budgeting will prevent a sudden or drastic tax increase within the next two years.

He also said that improved training and neighborhood-based recruitment of police officers under a new police commissioner has greatly contributed to a reduced crime rate.

Mayor White characterized the state of the city this way, "After five of the most difficult years in our history, this city is in better condition, its prospects are brighter, its potential is larger than any time in recent memory."

IT'S GOOD NEWS!

HUD grants Boston $800,000 for low interest loans.

Mayor Kevin H. White announced recently that Boston has been granted $800,000 in Section 312 low interest home improvement loan allocations from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). In addition, the city received additional HUD-owned properties for rehabilitation as part of the city's Urban Homesteading Program.

These loans, at 3% for 20-year terms, are available to homeowners in the three Homesteading areas — Meeting House Hill in Dorchester, Codman Square in Dorchester and Wellington Hill in Mattapan. The 3% Rehabilitation Loan Program and Urban Homesteading Program are implemented by the new Mayor's Office of Housing.

Announcing HUD's award, Mayor, White said, "The demand for these funds in the first year of the Urban Homesteading Program has been very strong and is indicative of the growing vitality of our residential neighborhoods."

Craig Nickerson, director of the Mayor's Office of Housing, added, "Boston ranks first among the 23 participating cities throughout the country in the number of rehabilitation loans committed to the Homesteading area homeowners."

In addition to the home improvement loans, HUD has allocated $150,000 to the city to underwrite the cost of acquiring additional HUD-held properties prior to rehabilitation under the Urban Homesteading Program.

To date, 17 homesteaders have been selected. Ten properties have already been rehabilitated under the Program. Nickerson added, "The early kinks in the Program have been worked out so that 25 additional abandoned properties can be restored in 1978.

"The rehabilitation of these abandoned buildings serves as a catalyst. Once we restore a boarded-up building, owners in the area begin making improvements to their own properties."

Mayor White said, "Homesteading provides an alternative to abandonment and is an asset to the Homesteading areas as well as a mechanism for bringing properties back to the city's tax rolls."

REGISTRY ANNOUNCEMENT

"During 1977 the figure is one less than 1976, but anyone can understand that even one lost life is too many," said Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey recently. He was pointing out that during the past Christmas holiday weekend, (from 6:00 p.m. Friday, the 23rd to midnight Monday, the 26th) eleven persons were killed on Massachusetts highways as compared with twelve fatalities for the same period last year.

"As of December 28, 1977," Mackey explained, Massachusetts highway fatalities have decreased eight percent over last year."

"T" CREATING NEW SUBWAY SHOPPING CENTER

A new downtown retail center of small shops will open later this year in one of the busiest pedestrian ways in Boston: the underground concourse at the MBTA's Washington Station, where two transit lines meet to serve the two major downtown stores, Filene's and Jordan Marsh.

Chairman Robert Kiley of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, in making the announcement January 6, recalled pleasant experiences shopping in the subways of London and Montreal.

"One of the nicest things about the London and Montreal subways is the friendly feeling you get as you amble in and out of the underground shops at key stations," Kiley said.

"That is the kind of atmosphere we would like to create here — and if this works well, at other stations. Washington Station is really a unique underground cross-roads, where the Orange and Red Lines — used by nearly a quarter of a million people a day — have subway entrances directly to Filene's basement and the basement of the new Jordan Marsh store," Kiley said at a press conference at Washington Station.

Kiley said the MBTA is seeking letters of interest by February 10 from a wide variety of retail shops for the 3,700 square feet of space in 11 shops on the 200-yard-long concourse. The concourse at the Orange Line level features a long, four feet tall porcelain enamel mural of photographs of Boston at the turn of the century, when the subway was first opened.

About 150,000 people commute on the Red Line between Harvard Square in Cambridge, the City of Quincy and the Dorchester section of Boston. About 90,000 people commute on the Orange Line between Oak Grove — on the Malden-Melrose line — and Forest Hills in the Jamaica Plain section of Boston. The two lines represent about half of Boston's half million daily subway riders. A minimum of 60,000 people go through Washington Station each day.

"Through the Station Modernization program," Kiley said, "we are creating a fare-free shopping zone here, just an escalator away from what will become the car-free shopping area along Washington Street.

"These shops will provide the public, particularly MBTA riders, with new convenient services which will complement the above-ground shops and stores.

"We hope it will make using public transportation a more pleasant experience, yield us new riders and also yield revenue from a new quarter. And every quarter helps!" he said referring to the MBTA's low basic fare of twenty-five cents.

Kiley explained that the MBTA was taking great care to get a good mix of tenants with a high quality of goods and services which would draw shoppers to the area.

First, firms will submit by February 10 letters indicating their interest to the leasing agent, Anthony Gordon of Carpenter and Co., 175 Federal Street, Boston.

Then an MBTA selection committee will determine what are the best uses and request firms in those categories to submit sealed bids in mid-March. In accord with the MBTA's recent Affirmative Action plan, specific efforts will be made to solicit and involve minority business enterprises as tenants in the new complex.

As examples of the types of businesses under consideration, Kiley said transit passengers and shoppers could be conveniently served by a newsstand, a bank, a florist, coffee shop, book store, bakery, photo developing service, dry cleaner/shirt service, candy shop, optical shop, cheese shop, stationery store and other similar kinds of operations. Filene's has opened a delicatessen in the concourse now, and another space has been designed for banking services.

One shop the MBTA is particularly interested in putting into the complex is a "train and trolley shop," which would popularize public transportation and its history through the sale of items such as model trains and trolleys, historical books, transit magazines, old and new posters, post cards, souvenirs such as bus destination signs or uniform emblems, and such popular items as T-shirts and shopping bags printed with transportation themes.

Kiley said shops of a similar nature operate in London, New York and San Francisco. This shop might operate as a branch of a museum's shop or as a commercial venture. And it would carry out the Old Boston theme of the photomurals which were recently installed.

The photomural panels are the only major decoration placed in the concourse by the architects, Desmond and Lord. The station's colors and lighting were designed to direct attention to the displays in the shop windows.

The shops range in size from 55 square feet, suitable for a photo developing service, to 550 square feet. Leases will be from three to five years, with options for further time extensions.

The new concourse is part of the Washington Station modernization, which is one element in the MBTA's $15 million second phase of its Station Modernization Program. Two-thirds of the cost is funded by the federal government as part of its program to encourage use of mass transit.

MAYOR LAUDS JOB DEVELOPMENT AT BMIP

Mayor Kevin H. White on January 4, praised the attraction of new jobs, and the creation of complementing job development programs at the Boston Marine Industrial Park during a tour of that site, the grounds of the former South Boston Naval Annex.

Twelve industrial tenants employing approximately 800 persons, the majority of whom are Boston residents, have moved into the 102-acre park since its purchase by the city in June, 1977, from the federal General Services Administration for $4.7 million.

Mayor White said, "This park simply means jobs for the people of Boston. The businesses which move into this facility are dedicated to employing Boston residents in the kinds of industrial jobs that for too long we have lacked. One year ago, there were no industrial jobs here. Now there are 800. That's genuine progress by the city and by the businesses which have committed themselves to the park."

Underscoring the importance of the facility was the signing today of the first two leases by businesses in the BMIP.

New England Ocean Services, which constructs mini submarines, and Caldar Welding, both signed four-year leases, totaling 35 jobs for the park. Prior to today's lease-signing, the two firms had been tenants-at-will, as are the remainder of the occupants.

Complementing those new jobs is a new job training program designed to train or retrain Boston residents to fill many of the marine-related jobs the new industrial park tenants will provide, such as welding, machine tool operation, and industrial building maintenance.

Mayor White said, "One class of more than 90 has already graduated from this training center. Importantly, these trainees have all been placed in industrial jobs, and they represent the broadest spectrum of Boston's neighborhoods. What this training center means is that we are creating a pool of trained persons to fill jobs which we attract to the industrial park. Without this wedding of resources, many of the newly graduated of the training center which is funded by CETA, would still be unemployed or underemployed."

During his tour of the facility with Michael Westgate, the Director of the city's Economic Development and Industrial Corporation, which administers the park, Mayor White also inspected Drydock number four. The dilapidated drydock is the current home of Braswell Shipyard Inc. EDIC is now preparing an application to the federal government under the Boston Plan for $4 million in Urban Development Action Grant funds to renovate the drydock facility.

FREE ECONOMICS PROGRAM AT UMASS

A series of economic courses designed especially for community people who are employees or volunteers for Greater Boston community groups will be offered free of charge by UMass-Boston starting January 23.

Featuring a new approach to applied economics, the numerous courses and seminars and the on-the-job training will be supervised by the new Community Economics Learning Center at the university's College of Public and Community Services at the Park Square campus in Boston.

The courses are designed for the community practitioner and will be taught by experts in the various fields. Applicants need only reading and writing abilities at the high school equivalency level.

Professor Sandra Kanter, director of the Learning Center, says the program is being offered free of charge to members of community groups because of a Title I grant received under the Higher Education Act.

"Understanding economics is one of the keys to effective community action in the seventies," said Professor Kanter, "and the Learning Center will teach economic theory, pricing, policy, interest rates, lending practices, unemployment problems and all about cooperatives."

Additionally, the economics program will help community people understand state and local economic issues, property taxes, transportation issues, living costs, discrimination problems, politics of community control, cost-benefit analysis, accounting, finance and planning. College credits will be available for some courses.

Professor Kanter said that community people who desire intensive training in economic development should consider applying for the Fellows Program which consists of 36 weeks of courses and on-the-job training. The primary objective of the Fellows Program is to train full-time community development specialists in economic techniques.

Fellows must be sponsored by a Greater Boston community group which will employ them after completion of the program. All fellows will receive a stipend during the initial 21 weeks of the training program.

Inquiries about the economics programs should be directed to Professor Kanter at the UMass-Boston campus in Park Square or by telephoning 542-6500.

CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTORS: TAKE NOTE!

Estimating courses for construction contractors will be offered in Wareham by Southeastern Massachusetts University and in Boston by the Roxbury Community College. Both courses will be taught by professional estimators who have more than ten years of experience. The intent of the courses is to help the smaller contractors and subcontractors understand the estimating process and avoid expensive mistakes. The courses are co-sponsored by the Small Business Administration, the Contractors Association of Boston, and the State Office of Minority Business Assistance.

The course at Southeastern Massachusetts University will begin January 25th and meet at the Wareham High School on Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for ten weeks. Tuition is $110.

The course at Roxbury Community College begins on January 24th and meets on Tuesday and Thursday evenings 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for eight weeks. Tuition is $80.

Tuition fees for these courses are legitimate tax-deductible business expenses. For more information, call Susan Chan Egan at (617) 727-8692, Boston.

BOSTON DRIVERS "GETTING THE MESSAGE"

Boston Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan says a campaign started four months ago aimed at curbing traffic violations is showing results.

He reported that as of December 29, 1977, Boston Police and Registry of Motor Vehicles inspectors had issued more than 43,000 citations for moving violations.

A new program was started last year to crack down on traffic violators, illegal parkers, scofflaws and abandoned cars. The department has also announced plans for added programs.

Patrolman Norman Halliday, speaking for Commissioner Jordan, said, "We believe the average driver in Boston has now been educated to the fact that the Boston Police are enforcing traffic violations."

Twenty-five registry inspectors will aid Boston police to enforce the program.

POLICE DEPARTMENT ORDERS

December 1.

Special Order No. 77-130

To: All Bureaus, Divisions, Districts, Offices, Sections, and Units.

Copies to: All Superintendents, Deputy Superintendents, and Directors.

This Special Order establishes a schedule for the collection and distribution of Overtime Authorization slips (BPD Form 16-Rev. 10-76) and reports for the remainder of the 1978 fiscal year. This will enable the department to pay personnel during the third week of the following month in which the overtime was performed. This schedule will be strictly enforced, and if there is any modification to it, a Special Order will be issued to announce the change.

Authorization of Overtime Slips

Each day district and unit commander will sign overtime slips from the previous twenty-four hours, after clerks check them for accuracy and completeness. This must be done prior to the morning mail pickup by the B.F.S. mail car. District and unit commanders will be held accountable for failure to forward all OT slips from the previous twenty-four-hour period. Any such failure will be reported by the Bureau of Field Services to Staff Inspection along with the late overtime slips which will be audited. Supervisors certifying overtime (beginning and end) must sign the slips when those events occur. Failure or omission to sign the slips at the proper time will not be tolerated.

In the event of their absence, district and unit commanders will designate a superior officer to check and sign a unit's overtime slips in the section marked "signature of commanding officer of District/Unit." This procedure will insure that slips are not unnecessarily delayed.

After the commanding officer or his designee has checked and signed all the previous day's slips, a district clerk shall separate the copies and distribute them in the following manner:

White original, to (A) Bureau of Field Services from units assigned to the Bureau of Field Services; (B) Payroll Section, fifth floor, Headquarters, from Commissioner's Office, Bureau of Administrative Services, Bureau of Investigative Services.

Yellow copy — Retained by the unit for their recording and verification procedures.

Pink copy — Used by the unit detail clerk to record the hours of overtime worked by each officer. These hours are recorded on the overtime charts maintained by each unit. Upon completion of this process the pink slip will be returned to the officer.

Green copy — This copy may be discarded, except for those retained by the supervisor of cases at the various courts.

All white, original, overtime slips of sworn personnel (BPD Form 16) assigned to the Bureau of Field Services must be received at the Bureau of Field Services Office in Headquarters, within twenty-four hours after completion of the overtime performed. Overtime slips for overtime performed on weekends will be submitted in the Monday morning department mail. All slips from the previous day(s) must be ready for the mail pickup by the Bureau of Field Services mail car.

Procedures for Forwarding of White Original Overtime Slips

A. Schedule of Pickup by Bureau of Field Services mail cars for Bureau of Field Services Units.

Patrol, Tactical Patrol Force; 9:30 A.M., Academy; 9:45 A.M., District 7; 10:15 A.M., District 14; 10:45 A.M., District 4; 11 A.M., Return to Bureau of Field Services.

The Bureau of Field Services will, after checking all slips and verifying the hours, forward the slips to the Payroll Section, fifth floor, Police Headquarters for processing. This will be done by 1 P.M., Mondays through Fridays.

B. Forwarding Procedures for Other Units.

All white, overtime slips of sworn personnel, other than for those personnel assigned to the Bureau of Field Services, must be addressed to and received at the Payroll Section, fifth floor, Police Headquarters, within twenty-four hours after completion of the overtime performed. They will be forwarded in the department mail. Overtime slips for overtime performed on weekends will be submitted in the Monday morning department mail. Preliminary Authorized Additional Compensation Report

It will be the responsibility of the commanding officer of each district or unit to have the signed Preliminary Authorized Additional Compensation Report (the computer printout listing the number of hours or court and/or overtime for each officer; holiday/overtime hours for civilians) returned to the Payroll Section, Room 502, Headquarters, by the following deadlines:

For the month of December, 1977, Form 16, 1-3-78; send out Preliminary Additional Compensation Report, 1-6-78; return to Payroll, Headquarters signed Preliminary, 1-11-78; Authorized Additional sent to units, 1-13-78.

January, 1978, Form 16, 2-2-78; send out Preliminary Additional Compensation Report, 2-7-78; return to Payroll, Headquarters signed Preliminary, 2-13-78; Authorized Additional sent to units, 2-15-78.

If the Signed Preliminary Additional Compensation Report is not received in the Payroll Section by the established deadline, it will result in delaying the payment of overtime funds for all districts and units within the department.

After the Preliminary Compensation Reports are signed by the commanding officer of each unit, with corrections initialed and corrected overtime slips submitted, the payroll clerks at Headquarters will then verify, amend, and make the appropriate changes to the computer file. The units will then be sent an Authorized Additional Compensation Report to reflect these changes which does not have to be signed or returned to the Payroll Section.

All districts and units shall retain a copy of this order until July 18, 1978.

THE BOSTON PLAN: ITS PURPOSE

Part 2

III. The Columbia Point Proposal

A. Introduction

The new neighborhood will be developed emphasizing several broad components: housing, commercial activity, waterfront recreation, and creation of job programs.

1. Development of Mixed-Income Housing

1,500 new housing units will be developed with the guarantee to house existing tenants at Columbia Point as the lower-income sector of the new mixed-income development, containing 25% market rate tenants, 50% moderate income tenants, and 25% lower income tenants. The housing component will cost approximately $70,000,000 and will be financed through a variety of private, public, and semi-public sources (such as the Massachusetts Housing Financing Agency) using HUD Section 8 funds to supplement the rents of the low and moderate income units.

2. Reopening of Bayside Mall

The reopening of a smaller, better designed Bayside Mall, accomplished through partial demolition and redesign, will be oriented toward the new mixed-income development of the Peninsula as well as the presence of the major institutions in the area, nearby employment centers, and South Boston and northern Dorchester consumers.

3. Waterfront Recreation

The development of a major facility will take advantage of the excellent views and the two mile shorefront for the provision of boating and mooring facilities and waterfront recreation. In addition to providing recreational facilities the waterfront development will play a critical role in the marketing of the new housing development. Waterfront amenities will be physically linked with recreation areas in the interior portion of the Peninsula.

4. Jobs and Advocacy Programs

An important element of the Columbia Point proposal is creation of jobs and job training for Boston residents. Job programs will be geared toward existing employers and job opportunities as much as possible. An advocacy program will also be instituted to enable eligible residents to receive transfer payments, pension, and other benefits to which they are entitled.

B. Program Components

1. Modernized Housing

Implementation of the Columbia point proposal will begin with modernization of public housing units.

(a) Modernization (1977-78)

Phase I of the housing modernization program, costing approximately $8,000,000, is currently underway. It will include improvements to the electrical and heating systems as well as the modernization of 420 family and elderly units almost all of them low-rise structures. The heating system will have capacity beyond the needs of current tenants and will serve as the basic system for any new construction. Studies are currently underway to examine the electrical improvements and to assess their usefulness to the new construction program.

Phase II, modernization of another 168 family units will cost approximately $4,000,000 and will begin in 1978. Either HUD modernization funds or Urban Development Action Grant funds will be used to fund these improvements.

Modernization of these structures is obviously a more complicated process than total demolition of the housing project. However, any other alternative to modernization would be unacceptable, due to the deplorable housing conditions and the previous City commitments to the existing tenants. Tenants will be living in these units for another 5-8 years.

(b) Management and Maintenance

Quality management of the modernized public housing buildings at Columbia Point is imperative for effective maintenance and viability of the housing structures. The extent to which these units are maintained will influence prospective inhabitants' image of the Peninsula, as well as affect living conditions for the existing tenants.

Boston Plan . . .

The City of Boston is considering a number of procedures which will upgrade maintenance at the housing development including, but not limited to the following:

- Establishing resident-based management and maintenance system.

- Allowing each building to serve as the unit of management and maintenance functions.

- Reducing costs by changing the way in which routine maintenance personnel are classified.

2. Demolition

All Boston Housing Authority structures which are mothballed or are not needed to house existing tenants will be demolished at a cost of $1,500,000. This will include almost all of the high-rise structures from the site. The major rationale for the demolition of these structures, in addition to their adverse psychological image, is their substantial design flaws.

The siting of the existing structures does not allow sufficient light into the dwelling units, and the parking areas are not convenient to the individual units. Although the housing project is located on prime waterfront land, few of the apartments provide views of the water. No common rooms or planned public meeting spaces are available, and the poor site plan does not enable residents and security patrols to easily survey activities around the buildings, parking lots and lobbies.

The units slated for demolition would require an extensive investment of over $15,000,000 to bring them up to the minimum condition required by the State Sanitary Code.

Some relocation of utilities, particularly the heating system, will be necessary when the buildings are demolished. The cost of demolition reflects this cost as well as temporary beautification of the demolition site until those parcels are due for new construction.

3. Infrastructure (1979)

Major utility and road work will begin in 1979 for improvements to the local water and sewer system and for major new roadway reconstruction (including the underground component for a new street lighting system). Map 1 illustrates the new circulation system which will allow for an effective parcelization of the land and will emphasize access to the water. These improvements will cost approximately $12,000,000 and may be funded from a variety of sources: possible use of New Communities Funds, Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) Funds, Community Development Block Grant Funds, and/or City of Boston General Obligation Bonds, with the first two being used jointly or separately as well as constituting the major portion of the proposed funding.

New Communities funds will be used only if the Public Service Grants program in the existing New Communities legislation, which is currently unfunded, will be allocated resources by Congress. This section of the legislation allows grants rather than the usual guarantee of bonds. New Communities grant funds are more appropriate for the Columbia Point proposal than a guarantee since the projected cash flow to be generated from rents at the project will be insufficient to cover repayment of notes. In most New Town situations this repayment is usually handled through the sale of land, which would be an insignificant item at Columbia Point.

Although alternative energy technologies are less developed than other infrastructure elements, the city is beginning to pursue the site advantages of the Peninsula to develop new energy sources. Solar space heating and cooling and solar water heating are commercially feasible energy sources for a residential development of this kind.

4. Off-Site Transportation Improvements (1979)

To increase access, development, and marketing potential, a second transit stop is proposed on the Quincy subway line at Columbia Point. This would expand access to Peninsula residents as it would allow for travel to and from Boston's South Shore suburban areas. The cost for this station is approximately $5,000,000; the U.S. Department of Transportation — Urban Mass Transit Authority is the likely funding source.

Vehicular access for both construction vehicles and future residents will improve greatly with the upgrading of the bridges near the Peninsula. The bridges are also related to the rail lines and bus access, and thus their reconstruction and improvement should be linked with any new transit station. The cost of this improvement is an estimated $2,000,000. Infrastructure improvements (utilities and roadways) and the MBTA rapid transit station will be completed by 1980 or 1981.

5. Marina & Waterfront Recreation (1979)

The new development will also include a new 160 boat public marina and ferry stop. Funding for the dredging would come from Army Corps of Engineers (Section 107 of the 1960 River & Harbor Act); half of the cost must be funded by the locality. City Capital Budget funds may be used for this purpose and New Communities funds be used for the marina and ferry construction.

Another possibility currently being investigated is the institution of a "water taxi" that can be used to linkup the new waterfront-oriented housing and recreational developments throughout the city.

A major attraction of the Peninsula site is its location on the water. In addition to the marina, also to be established in 1980, an area along the beachfront will be developed for recreation. At least $2,000,000 will be necessary for this project. Half of the project cost will be funded from the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation fund, distributed to cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth. The city's share in past years has ranged from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. Matching funds would be generated by either UDAG or New Communities funds.

6. Bayside Mall (1980)

Reconstruction of the Bayside Mall will begin in 1980, resulting in approximately 100,000 square feet of modernized retail space, additional office space and a landscaped parking area. The Mall will also create 250 jobs. The market area will extend two miles, providing a supermarket, drug store, junior department store, a bank, student supply and book store, and a quality restaurant. Parking will be provided for 1,000 cars. Overall, the Mall will be reduced in size from its original 300,000 square feet of retail space through the demolition of one commercial building at a cost of $150,000.

The mix of stores will be developed so as not to provide excessive competition to older commercial centers at West Broadway in South Boston and in the Uphams Corner area.

MBTA RIDERSHIP INCREASING

Ridership is increasing on the MBTA, initial figures for 1977 show.

MBTA Chairman Robert R. Kiley said preliminary figures indicated that at least a million more passengers took the MBTA's subways, trolleys, trackless trolleys, buses and commuter trains in 1977 than in 1976.

"These revenue figures have to be adjusted for some unique situations before we determine our final passenger figures," he said. "For example, there will be more passengers on the Arborway line than indicated by the revenue. Arborway passengers for Symphony, Prudential and Copley stations frequently paid a 20 cent fare on the bus service which substituted for the trolley service, where the fare is 45 cents — 20 cents for the surface ride and 25 cents for the subway ride.

"Considering that the service — due to old vehicles — is still not up to the standard we want, that increase in ridership is heartening," Kiley said.

"Much of the increase appears to be on the Riverside Line, where the new Light Rail Vehicles have been gradually phased into service. That also is heartening, because it demonstrates that more people will ride if there are new vehicles.

"The Blue Line is getting new vehicles late this year, and the Orange Line is getting new vehicles in 1979.

"On the commuter rail lines, figures for most of the 1977 year show an increase of about 200,000 new riders. Considering the dilapidated equipment — which we are in the process of replacing substantially — those commuter rail figures also are encouraging," Kiley said.

MAYOR WHITE OUTLINES FIVE-YEAR HEALTH PLAN

Mayor Kevin H. White, on January 9, presented the city's five-year health plan. The plan, recently approved by the Department of Health and Hospitals (DHH) Board of Trustees, outlines five major goals toward which the city will direct its health resources in cooperation with other area health providers.

The five goals outlined by the Mayor are as follows:

- Improve the health status of the city's elderly population.
- Reduce infant mortality and improve the health status of the city's mothers and children.
- Improve the health status in city neighborhoods where the population has lower health and longevity.
- Provide access to fully developed Primary Care systems for all Boston residents.
- Improve the health status of city employees and their families.

Mayor White made this announcement inside Boston City Hospital's (BCH) new Ambulatory Care Center, which he called the most important health facility to be built in Boston since BCH was constructed in 1865.

"The goals I am announcing today provide the framework for completing the job that was started eight years ago," Mayor White said. "When I first became mayor, doctors were disappearing from the city's neighborhoods, patients were abandoning BCH and the hospital was losing its accreditation.

"Now, the city has one of the finest neighborhood health center networks in the country, BCH's emergency floor and its outpatients services are the busiest in the city, and the Long Island Chronic Care Hospital is just completing its ten-year, $7 million capital improvement program.

"We must build on this base to ensure that the health status of the people of Boston continues to rise," the Mayor said.

He said much of the work to achieve the goals he outlined has already begun. He mentioned a community-based arthritis program already under way at BCH, development of research, teaching and patient-care programs in gerontology at Long Island Hospital, and a number of new elderly health programs to be established inside elderly housing complexes throughout the city.

He also said that East Boston's new $3 million health center will open this spring, expansion or renovation of the Harvard Street, Roslindale and Allston-Brighton neighborhood health centers, to name a few, is planned; and a federally funded $5 million renovation of BCH's Dowling Medical Building is scheduled to begin later this year.

The Mayor noted, however, that all of the facilities the city has built and all of the programs it has initiated are jeopardized unless funding for individual patient care is restored by the state and federal governments.

He called upon the governor and the state legislature to move at once to restore medical assistance to those people on general relief.

DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION WEEK

Mayor Kevin H. White formally designated January 16-22 (last week) as "Drug Abuse Prevention Week," citing drug abuse as "one of the most complex urban problems in America today."

In an official declaration Mayor White paid tribute to the "outstanding efforts of both public and private agencies which have made great strides in the areas of drug abuse education, treatment, enforcement, and rehabilitation."

Since its establishment by Mayor White in 1970, the city's Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse has been effectively working toward the development of a comprehensive, drug-abuse, services network accessible to residents of all Boston neighborhoods. Through the Council's efforts over the past seven years, the city has gained a national reputation for its role as a leading advocate in behalf of greater state and federal support of broadly based drug abuse programming.

In concluding his declaration of Drug Abuse Prevention Week Mayor White called for strong public commitment by the people of Boston to the goal of completely eliminating the stain of drug abuse from the city's streets and neighborhoods.

TECHNOLOGY FOR KIDS

Take some milk cartons, a couple of aluminum pie pans, a bunch of staples and a coathanger. Apply a little basic technology, add a dash of ingenuity, and the result is a water wheel for kids.

That's just one of the many recipes for wind and water machines, pump drills and treadle latches that kids and adults will learn at a Children's Museum workshop, "Alternative Technology for Kids."

All of the machines and tools are made by applying principles of ancient technology to common household materials.

The workshop is offered for adults on Thursday, February 2, 7-9 p.m.; the family session is Saturday, February 11, 1-3 p.m. There's a fee of $5 for adults and $2 for children. To register, call the Boston Children's Museum at 522-4800, ext. 49.

MORE JOBS FOR HUB YOUTHS

Mayor White calls federal youth jobs funding major victory for the Boston Plan and Boston youth.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on January 10, called the awarding of about $20 million in federal funds to Boston for youth jobs "a major victory for the Boston Plan and for the youth of Boston."

Boston's proposal was developed by the city's Employment and Economic Policy Administration, in coordination with the Mayor's Office of Federal Relations.

The funding will provide jobs for about 5,000 youths in major areas of the Boston Plan, including Hyde Park, South Boston, Columbia Point and the Blue Hill Avenue section.

The Mayor said the funds will go a long way toward alleviating the nagging problem of unemployment among youth in Boston, especially among minority youth.

He paid thanks to the Massachusetts congressional delegation, House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, the Carter administration, including Presidential Assistant Jack Watson, and a "coalition of business, academic and civic leaders in Boston who helped us convince the federal government of our genuine need to solve the youth unemployment problem in Boston.

The Mayor also thanked: Lt. Governor Thomas P. O'Neill, III; Paul Parks, Massachusetts Secretary of Education; Gerhard Bleicken, Chairman of the Board of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company; Richard Hill, First National Bank of Boston President; Howard Johnson, Chairman of the Board of MIT; Dr. Charles Sanders, Director of Massachusetts General Hospital; and John Silber, President of Boston University.

REGISTRY ANNOUNCEMENT

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey announced today that, effective January 28, 1978, any operator intending to turn left in an intersection, across the path or lane of vehicles approaching from the opposite direction, shall, before turning, yield the right of way until such time as the left turn can be made with reasonable safety.

Also, any operator of a vehicle entering a rotary intersection shall yield the right of way to any vehicle already in the intersection.

These amendments to the statute of right-of-way at intersections do not apply if an operator is otherwise directed by a police officer, traffic signs, or traffic signals.

Still in effect is the law that states when two vehicles enter an intersection at approximately the same instant, the operator of the vehicle on the left shall yield the right-of-way to the vehicle on the right.

The films will be screened in the following sequence each week: Queen Christina (starring Greta Garbo), Adam's Rib (starring Katherine Hepburn), Brief Encounter (Celia Johnson), Saturday Night and Sunday Morning (Rachel Roberts), Juliet of the Spirits (Guilietta Masima), The Red Desert (Monica Vitti), Klute (Jane Fonda), and Persona (Liv Ullmann and Bibi Andersson).

Known in over 40 countries for his lectures on films and television, Dr. Manvell's course promises to be very popular. Although admission is free of charge, the public will be well advised to register early at the Central Library to insure a seat. The course is part of the year-long Learning Library program at the BPL on the "Individual and Society" which has been made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

FREE LEARNING COURSE AT BPL

Roger Manvell, noted author and former Director of the British Film Academy, will conduct the next NEH Learning Library course at the Boston Public Library beginning Thursday, January 26th at 5:30 p.m., in its Rabb Lecture Hall. Dr. Manvell will show how women have been portrayed in American and European films from the 1930s to the 1970s in eight three-hour lectures entitled "The Changing Face of Women on the Screen." The course will include discussions based on the screenings of feature films to show the increased realism in the psychological treatment of women as they confront the problems of modern society.

"But you keep a loaded shotgun near your chicken coop," the other man declared.

The mountaineer replied, "Yep, that keeps 'em honest."

NON-SMOKERS RESTAURANT GUIDE NOW AVAILABLE

"I went to a well-known Boston restaurant for lunch recently," states Louis Carvelli, Executive Director, American Lung Association of Boston. "The host asked me if I wanted to sit in the 'no-smoking' section. Finally, I thought to myself, fourteen years after the Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health (1964), some restaurants are offering an alternative to their customers.

"Now people can go into some restaurants," continued Carvelli, "and decide whether or not they want to be subjected to 'second-hand' smoke — smoke they breathe because someone else is smoking. Add to this the fact that many non-smokers do not like the smell of tobacco smoke and you have two good reasons to provide smoking and non-smoking sections in restaurants."

There are over 34 million Americans sensitive to cigarette smoke. Carbon monoxide and other toxic substances found in second-hand smoke can have serious health effects on some people.

But how do you find out which restaurants have special sections for non-smokers? Interested persons can get a free copy of "The Non-Smokers Restaurant Guide" by writing the Christmas Seal people, the American Lung Association of Boston or calling 426-8330. The Guide, now in its third printing, lists over 100 restaurants that give the non-smoker a choice — whether or not to inhale second-hand smoke.

The eye doctor patiently tried lenses on an elderly woman. Nothing seemed to be right for her.

"Now don't become discouraged," the doctor reassured her. "It's not easy to get just the right glasses, you know."

"It certainly isn't," the woman replied. "Especially when you're shopping for a friend."

THE BOSTON PLAN: ITS PURPOSE

Columbia Point

IV. Conclusion

This proposal for a new neighborhood at Columbia Point will have an impact both within and outside its immediate area. Eighty acres of abandoned, mothballed, public housing, as well as 150,000 square feet of abandoned commercial space will become part of a mixed-income community with recreational amenities and retail shopping. The tenants who now live at the public housing project will have the opportunity to live in substantially improved housing, and to participate in new job training and incomes programs.

The university and the Kennedy Library will be more integrated into the surrounding residential community, creating a more varied and stimulating environment.

The Columbia Point proposal will also impact the surrounding neighborhoods and the city as a whole. The new shopping center, for example, will serve both the South Boston and east Dorchester neighborhoods as well as the Peninsula.

The city will also have taken a major step to increase its numbers of middle- and upper-middle-income residents. The renovated housing at Columbia Point would be the first major, new, middle- and upper-middle-income units to be constructed outside of the downtown (and the first in the entire city) since 1973. Besides acting as a stabilizing force in Boston, the new residents will demand goods and services which will create a secondary source of jobs. In addition, approximately $2,000,000 in property taxes will be added to the city's treasury each year when the housing is completed.

Successful completion of this project will not be easy. The development plan is extremely complicated and will demand a high degree of coordination among the various parties involved. Perhaps the most difficult and sensitive aspect will be the phasing of the demolition, renovation, and construction inherent in all levels of the project. Another obstacle is the stigma of crime and deterioration associated with the name "Columbia Point." Marketing will also play a major role in the implementation of this proposal.

These obstacles, however, can be overcome. The flow of events at the Peninsula has changed over the years from stagnation or decline to a current period of cautious optimism due to the previously described developments. Private industry, the university, the library, the state, and the city, have all pledged to help make this proposal a success. The necessary element to implement these projects is a major funding commitment from the federal government. This document has described the rationale and process necessary to support the activities.

Basic Principles

The principles described in this section represent the basic assumptions about development direction from which the composite plan of the Peninsula Planning Committee was drawn.

Housing Development

Substantial new housing development geared toward mixed-income occupancy is an essential factor in the overall development success of Columbia Point. Within this emphasis, the commitment to assure housing for the existing tenant population will be sustained, with the successful execution of Phase I (420 units) of the modernization program and a significantly restructured management system providing the departure point for additional development.

Retail Development

Bayside Mall offers an optimum location for new retail development or revitalization, because of positive site qualities of visibility and accessibility and because of exhibited demand for better located and more competitive retail services by neighboring populations. 100,000-150,000 square feet of retail space here could be supported successfully by populations within a 1½-mile radius.

Institutional Development

A strong institutional presence should be maintained on the Peninsula because of the generally positive impact of present and proposed institutional uses upon land values, community quality, and development potential. Continued development of the U. Mass. Harbor Campus within the perimeter road, establishment of the JFK Library, and development of the State Archives be pursued, and the development of a cultural center or other additional institutional uses should remain possibilities within the existing area of primarily institutional land use on the eastern end of the Peninsula.

Development of Pumphouse Area: Mixed Use

A mix of commercial uses (including a hotel facility, conference center, restaurant facilities, and retail and student services) supporting nearby institutional and residential uses would be appropriate in this location. In addition, a community center providing services to the residential population would serve as a link to the university and other institutional uses.

Beachfront Development

The exceptional site qualities of Columbia Point, related to waterfront access and views of the island and downtown skyline, should be utilized both to provide areas for recreational and open-space use, and to provide the amenities of a waterside location for new residential development. These site advantages are also a major attraction for certain kinds of site-specific, commercial uses (e.g. hotel, restaurant) which are seen as alternate uses for waterfront development.

Circulation Improvements

Provision for improved access to development parcels on the peninsula is necessary to stimulate a meaningful level of private development activity. Immediate public planning attention and investment should be directed toward T-stop improvements and toward vehicular access improvements related to existing roadway modifications. Later modifications to internal street systems will become necessary as development plans are defined, with costs supported by both public and private investment.

Jobs & Economic Development

Significant employment opportunities are associated with both new commercial and residential uses and with the continued growth of existing commercial and institutional uses. Aspects of new development to be emphasized include environmental fitness as well as employment intensity and potential for career-related, skills development. On-the-job training in some instances may be tied to degree-granting, educational programs, and can make an important contribution to the economic development needs of both the local community and the total city. New construction also will create immediate job and training opportunities.

A Development Mechanism

A special purpose entity is required to direct future planning and development activities on the peninsula. Its structure and function should be designed to insure the active involvement of all with a direct interest in the peninsula's future, and to provide for a continuance of the public/private partnership that has characterized the work of the Peninsula Planning Committee. It should have the authority to adopt a plan and see to its execution; and to raise funds through bonding as well as from federal and state funding sources. It should complement the city's, broader community development efforts in the peninsula area and not absorb or compete with them.

"FACE-LIFT" PLANNED FOR THEATER DISTRICT

Mayor Kevin H. White has announced a series of physical improvements for Boston's Theater District designed to give the area "a new look and a distinct identity of its own."

Speaking at a news conference at the World Premiere of "On the Twentieth Century" at the Colonial Theater, the Mayor outlined short- and long-term projects for the area, which contributes about $12 million a year to the city's economy.

Mayor White said that "Boston is headed for one of its brightest, most prestigious eras in its theater history" after several years of struggling through the economically depressed mid-1970s.

The Mayor cited short-term improvements planned or in progress, including:

— Improved police protection and lighting throughout the district.

— The screening of parking lots near Tremont and Stuart Streets by a fence bearing painted murals.

— Improvements to the Theater Park at Tremont and Stuart Streets with tree planting along both streets, and the widening of sidewalks at their intersection.

— The closing of La Grange Street to vehicular traffic between Tamworth and Tremont Streets to create a buffer between the theater district and the adult entertainment district.

— Construction of a 50-foot pylon at Stuart and Tremont Streets to bear maps and graphics of the area and information on the theater district.

— Installation of distinctive banners at strategic locations informing motorists and pedestrians that they are entering the "Theater District."

— The MBTA's designation of the Boylston T stop as "Boylston Theater."

— Installation of historical plaques written by renowned theater critic Elliot Norton on each theater.

Long-term improvements (three to five years) include:

— Reconstruction of Stuart Street from Washington Street to Tremont Street to Charles Street.

— Reconstruction of Tremont Street from Boylston Street to Oak Street.

— Construction of New Charles Street between Stuart and Boylston Streets.

— Construction of a brick, pedestrian walkway.

The city is also committed to guide and coordinate substantial public and private investment that is committed and anticipated in the area within the next decade, including the state transportation office building, the renovation of the Music Hall (to be renamed the Metropolitan Center), and the expansion of Tufts-New England Medical Center.

The Mayor lauded the efforts of the Boston Redevelopment Authority in developing plans for the area, and thanked members of the Mayor's Theater District Committee, formed in 1974, and the Stuart Street Neighborhood Association for their assistance in helping the city upgrade the area.

"Over the past few years," he said, "this administration has worked through the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs with the theater community to improve conditions and enhance the district's image — and with extraordinary results. Downtown theaters are filled to capacity and the area is once again bustling. Boston has reestablished itself as a city in which the theater is not only alive and well, but prospering."

JOB TRAINING PROGRAM FOR WOMEN

A nontraditional, job-training program for women developed by the Boston YWCA is one of three federally funded programs in the country cited for national recognition by the United States Department of Labor's Women's Bureau. The Boston YW project is featured as a model for public funding agencies and service organizations in an extensive article in the January issue of "Worklife," an official national publication of the Labor Department.

Ironically, graduates of the Boston YW program may be the first and last of their kind for some time to come in the Boston area. Despite its 85 percent success rate and an enthusiastic response from enrollees and employers, the project's operations have stopped. "We're being held up as a model for other programs around the country, but we can't find the funds to continue this one which is a proven commodity," commented Juliet F. Brudney, executive director of Boston YWCA. Mrs. Brudney added that the association is exploring every avenue in hopes of continuing the NTO project.

One hundred women graduated last year from the NTO program and 85 percent of the first two graduating classes have already been placed in jobs in dozens of male-dominated fields such as locomotive engineering, shipbuilding, welding, and building maintenance. Average hourly wages have escalated from $2.91 for those women who were employed before training to $4.65 in the first placement after training. Some graduates have tripled their earnings.

"The Boston project provided the missing link in bringing together willing employers and qualified women," said Mrs. Brudney. "Two studies done by Boston YW under a planning grant from United Way of Mass. Bay showed that low-income women were interested in obtaining nontraditional work which usually offers good wages and on-the-job training. We also found a willingness on the part of employers, partly to meet affirmative action requirements, to hire qualified women for a hands-on kind of job."

The Boston YW program included sixteen weeks concentration on classroom instruction, work experience, occupational fitness, and career counseling according to Vivian Guilfoxy, project director. NTO enrollees received hands-on training in electricity, construction carpentry, painting, plastering, and papering. Taught by a union carpenter, a licensed electrician and a self-employed contractor, the classes introduced women to the major tools and techniques related to many nontraditional occupations.

Participants used YWCA's gym facilities to acquire occupational fitness, with exercises for strengthening muscles and instruction in the proper ways to lift, push, pull, carry, climb, and run.

Work in nonprofit buildings helped trainees test their classroom knowledge, plus gain the experience of working alongside of men and taking instructions from men. Trainees made actual repairs — fixing broken windows, patching plaster walls, replacing fuses, and monitoring heating and air-conditioning units — at YWCA workrooms, hospitals, and nonprofit offices and residential buildings. Instructors and counselors evaluated each student's progress on a biweekly basis.

Average age of trainees was thirty, with more than half being a head of a household. Of the participants, about one-half were white; one-third black; and the remainder from other minority groups.

Complete information on the NTO project is available from Vivian Guilfooy, Boston YWCA, 140 Clarendon Street, Boston, MA 02116; Tel. 536-2169.

MAYOR'S ANNOUNCEMENT

Mayor White announces task force to study Fields Corner and Grove Hall business revitalization.

Mayor Kevin H. White has announced the formation of a Neighborhood Retail Development Task Force comprised of private sector marketing and design specialists to assist merchants in Fields Corner and Grove Hall in revitalizing their business districts.

"These are pivotal areas in the sense that they could go up or down in the next few years depending on what type assistance they get from the public and private sector," the Mayor said.

Mayor White said the task force will define development needs within the two business districts, create a timetable for implementing development strategies, and create promotional schemes for helping local merchants market their assets.

He said if the task force concept for neighborhood business revitalization is successful, the program will be expanded to other city neighborhoods.

He pledged he would take a walking tour of both neighborhoods with task force members and local merchants to get a feel for problem areas and to commit the city's resources behind task force activities.

The program's goals, the Mayor said, are to keep local businessmen in urban areas, attract shoppers locally instead of defaulting to suburban shopping malls, and increase profits of local merchants struggling to stay in business in the city.

He said the city had committed resources such as the RESTORE rebate program to merchants making storefront improvements, increased police protection, lighting and other improvements funded under the Neighborhood Business Program, but that "private sector resources and business expertise" were needed to ensure progress in stabilizing neighborhood business districts.

Fields Corner was chosen as a target area because it is a highly populated, consumer area (63,000 people live within one mile; 186,000 live within two miles).

Grove Hall was selected because there is development interest within the community from two key groups — the Grove Hall Development Council and the Prince Hall Development Corporation — and because it is target area for investment in the Blue Hill Avenue section of the Boston Plan.

MAYOR'S ANNOUNCEMENT

Mayor White recommends School Committee rename Madison Park High School after Senator Humphrey.

Mayor Kevin H. White has recommended to the Boston School Committee that the Madison Park magnet high school be renamed after deceased U.S. Senator Hubert H. Humphrey.

"It's only fitting that Boston's prime magnet school be named after a man who dedicated his whole political career to giving the underprivileged a voice in government," the Mayor said.

Hubert Humphrey had a popular vision of people living together in harmony and in mutual respect. He fought all his career for civil rights, many times in opposition to established political powers who said, 'the time isn't right.'

"For Hubert Humphrey, the time for fulfilling human rights and dignity was 'right now.'"

"I am asking the School Committee to name the school that best represents our city's efforts to bring top-quality education and job skills to young people in our minority communities and neighborhoods citywide after this gutsy and far-sighted public servant."

Madison Park High School opened last September on New Dudley Street between Dudley Station and Roxbury Crossing. It attracts students from all Boston neighborhoods and is viewed by city officials as a primary vehicle for providing quality, integrated education and job-training skills to disadvantaged high school students. An Occupational Resource Center of similar dimensions is under way at an adjacent site for students planning to concentrate on developing vocational skills.

BCEH MEMBERS CONVENE

The meeting was held on December 15, at Boston City Hall. Present were: Louise Demeo, Goodwill Industries; Paul Fitzgerald, Department of Elderly Affairs; Donald Lipsitz, Work Incentive Program; Ken McKeeman, New England Telephone; Kathy Rolfe, CETA; Charles Small, National Alliance of Businessmen; Pat Whelan, Division of Employment Security; and Robert Williams, Boston City Hospital.

Kathy Rolfe, chairperson and CETA representative, distributed copies of the luncheon follow-up letter and questionnaire to be mailed to employers and another questionnaire to be sent to agencies in compiling an update listing of agencies which serve the handicapped. The listing would be sent to employers on the mailing list. This follow-up material has been mailed.

In a prior meeting Jim Greene of the National Alliance of Businessmen proposed a roast of Ted O'Brien, WNAC-TV newscaster and MC of our last two NETH Week luncheons. Ms. Rolfe suggested that if the proceeds from the roast go to sports for the handicapped, it would be a good project for the committee, possibly working with other local committees and the Governor's Commission on Employment of the Handicapped. The panel would be media people and it would be an evening affair. A tentative date for the roast would be in early March. Representatives from other local committees will be at the Governor's Commission's January meeting. A special meeting could be planned that day to get their input. Coaches for the Boston and Brockton wheelchair basketball teams will also be invited.

Paul Fitzgerald of the Department of Elderly Affairs has arranged with the Data Processing Department of the Boston City Hall to put the committee's mailing list on tape.

SNOW EMERGENCY PREPARATIONS

Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan and Public Works Commissioner Joseph F. Casazza have outlined preparations for the implementation of large-scale towing and ticketing to clear the way for snow removal in the event of a large snowfall over the Boston area.

If a major snowstorm strikes the area, a snow emergency will be declared by Commissioner Casazza. That announcement would mean the implementation of parking only on the odd-numbered side of the street in residential areas, and the complete ban of parking along major arteries which have been designated and posted as snow emergency routes.

Said Commissioner Jordan, "Police will move swiftly to ticket and tow illegally parked vehicles which impede the snow removal process along major thoroughfares. Meter maids and police will also tag cars in residential areas which do not heed the odd-numbered parking regulations.

Commissioner Jordan also revealed that the city will utilize some private towing companies to augment the city, tow-truck force.

"We have a public safety responsibility to uphold by keeping those streets open for emergency vehicles. We intend to keep them open."

Commissioner Casazza said that if a snow emergency is necessary, the announcement is generally made before 10 p.m.

Commissioner Jordan also warned property owners that snow must be shoveled from sidewalks abutting their property within three hours after a storm's end. The Police Department's Environmental Ordinance Enforcement Unit has sworn out thirty complaints against property owners along Commonwealth Avenue for violations of that ordinance after last weekend's snow storm, and expect to swear out another twenty complaints in connection with that storm by the end of the week.

Commissioner Casazza likened illegal parking during a snow emergency to "Russian Roulette."

He said, "People park illegally during a storm without thinking of the consequences. The consequences are going to be stiffer from here on in."

Commissioner Jordan reminded Boston residents that a number of parking garages throughout the city offer a 50-cent, all-night rate for Boston residents during declared snow emergencies.

"These garages offer a low-cost, reasonable way for residents to clear their cars off the street so that the roads may be plowed more effectively.

Eleven lots around the city offer the 50-cent rate. The Prudential Parking Garage charges $1. The reduced rates for snow emergency are from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m.

PROPERTY TAX STABILIZATION PROGRAM: HUB AWAITS DETAILS

Deputy Mayor for Fiscal Affairs James V. Young, on January 11, said that the City of Boston was very interested in the property tax stabilization goal outlined by Governor Michael S. Dukakis in his annual State of the State message and is waiting to see the detailed proposal.

Mr. Young noted that the city was pleased that the Governor, in his speech, had accepted the principle of state-local, revenue-sharing for the future.

"We are obviously happy that the Governor accepted this premise as a priority. The same proposal was contained in Mayor White's legislative package for 1978. We hope that the Governor also adopts the 50-50 ratio for the state-local, revenue-sharing, which was also part of Mayor White's legislative proposal."

Mr. Young spoke cautiously about the Governor's proposed $200 million, full property, tax stabilization program.

"We hope that the proper safeguards are built into the Governor's stabilization plan to insure that the money distributed to localities to offer property tax relief will be used for that purpose, and not used by local school committees to increase their budgets. Further we hope the money is distributed to the cities and towns with an equitable formula which considers the high proportion of the poor which reside in the Commonwealth's cities."

WANT A COLLEGE EDUCATION?

UMass-Boston offers area residents opportunity to pursue college work now in late afternoon or evening.

UMass-Boston is offering Greater Boston residents who have always wanted to pursue a college education, or even take a single course, another opportunity to fulfill this goal in the late afternoon or evening starting January 23.

In expanding its regular class hours during the second semester of the 1977-78 academic year at the Harbor Campus, the university has nearly 100 credit courses available in subjects as diverse as humanities, social sciences, mathematics, management, and natural sciences.

The courses for full- and part-time students will be taught by full-time, UMass-Boston faculty members at the low tuition of $66 per course on weekdays, except Fridays, between 4:30 and 9 p.m.

Frank Casey, registrar, says walk-in registrations will be accepted beginning January 23, the day classes start for the new semester. For further information about the program call the Registrar's Office: tel. 287-1900, ext. 2468.

The UMass-Boston Harbor Campus in Dorchester has parking for 1,800 vehicles. Cafeterias and other services will be open in the evening.

There is free, shuttle bus service between Columbia Station on the MBTA Red Line and the campus, and also to and from Park Square in Boston.

MORATORIUM IMPOSED ON CITY'S HOUSING IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

Boston's Housing Improvement Program (HIP) has spent its budget for the fiscal year and will accept no new applications, the Mayor's Office of Housing announced January 18.

Homeowners now participating in the program, which offers cash rebates, property tax protection and technical assistance to homeowners for repairs, will not be affected by the moratorium.

"Since we developed the idea of the Housing Improvement Program three years ago, the program has been successful beyond our expectations," said Andrew M. Olins, Special Assistant to the Mayor. "The $50 million in home investments HIP has generated has gone a long way toward strengthening residential neighborhoods."

"Housing improvement is part of a combined strategy of public and private investment to restore Boston's economic base," said Craig Nickerson, Director of the Office of Housing. "Demand this year has been so great that there is just no money left."

"We plan to use the moratorium period to study the program's operations and effectiveness and to think about new direction for the future," said Olins. "There are many lessons to be learned from the first three years of the program. I am hopeful of a late spring reopening as additional money becomes available."

HIGH COMMENDATIONS

At 0505 hours, December 2, 1977, Box 5332 (four alarms), District 11, Ladder Company 11 and Engine Company 29 had been dispatched to investigate a report of an odor of gas in the vicinity of Mt. Hood Road and Commonwealth Avenue.

Upon arrival, it was discovered that 592 gallons of gasoline had been discharged from a filling station pump and had run into the sewer system. Shortly after operations had commenced to flush the system and to continue the investigation in adjacent buildings, a series of explosions occurred down the street from the filling station. One of the explosions was in the basement of the building located at 1706 Commonwealth Avenue, where some of the basement windows had been blown out and heavy smoke was issuing from windows. Occupants who had vacated the other apartments informed the district chief that a woman and her child were trapped in the basement.

Fire Fighter (Alde to the District Fire Chief) Robert T. Gorman of Engine Company 29, without hesitation or regard for his own safety, entered the basement area. Tracing her screams, Fire Fighter Gorman was successful in locating the woman and her child. An unknown civilian outside the building assisted him in removing the woman and child from the basement apartment through the rear window. Shortly after he climbed out of the window, the entire basement erupted into fire.

This rescue was made under extremely dangerous conditions due to the possibility of more explosions. Fire Fighter Gorman made a search of the basement at extreme personal risk in a building heavily charged with smoke and heat before ventilation had been accomplished.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to highly commend Fire Fighter Gorman for this rescue and his case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

At 1300 hours on December 22, 1977, the K4 Arson Inspectors Lieutenant William P. Ahern and Inspector Lawrence P. Kelley were on arson patrol in the Jackson Square area of Roxbury. While proceeding on Centre Street towards Columbus Avenue, they observed a person running out from between two buildings and completely involved in fire. These two men immediately chased the victim with the car and simultaneously called in a still alarm to the fire alarm office and also for an ambulance. They both jumped out of the car and with their outer garments wrapped the victim and tried to get him to the ground. This was done with great difficulty due to the fact that the victim had been sprayed with gasoline and kept reigniting. They finally managed to put out the flames and due to the seriousness of the burns to the victim, they immediately placed him in the Arson Alert car and drove him to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Lieutenant Ahern and Inspector Kelley both received first degree burns on their hands, arms, and face, plus the fact that their coats were badly burned in the extinguishing process. The victim was transferred to the Shrine Burn Center and has third degree burns covering 60 percent of his body. The fast action of these two men and their utter disregard for their own safety resulted in the saving of this victim's life.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to highly commend Fire Lieutenant Ahern and Fire Fighter Kelley and their case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

LETTER OF THANKS

"Dear Commissioner Paul:

My family and I would like to extend our sincere appreciation to the officers and fire fighters who responded to the December 5th fire at 172 L Street. The loss of our father, Arthur F. Bullock, is the saddest of all in that South Boston fire, but thanks to the courageous fire fighters, our five-year-old nephew, Brian Bullock, our sixteen-year-old sister, Carol Bullock, and our brother, Arthur Bullock, Jr., survived and are doing as well as can be expected.

We heard that a fireman was injured. We do hope he is fine by now. Again, our thanks to Ladder 19, Engine 1, Ladder 18, Engine 39, and all others who helped to make our Christmas a little merrier than it might not have been.

God bless you all for all you do.

Sincerely in your debt,
The Bullock Families."

THE BOSTON PLAN: ITS PURPOSE

I. OVERVIEW: THE HARBOR PLAN

A. Selection for the Area

The Harbor Plan represents a decision on the part of the administration of Mayor Kevin H. White to capture the economic opportunity afforded by the lands and waters of the Boston Harbor. This administration would like to join with the federal government, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the private sector in attacking the closely interdependent problems of a catastrophic city unemployment rate of 10.8 percent in 1976 (33,000 jobless workers), and a narrowing tax base which, in the face of rising costs and demands, has severely hampered the ability of the city to deliver adequate public and community services and to invest in the growth of the city.

As well as severe unemployment, the city has experienced a major structural shift in the local economy away from blue-collar employment in manufacturing toward service-sector jobs. Employment opportunities in these jobs are severely mismatched with the skill levels of many Boston residents, which has resulted in an increase in the percentage of city jobs filled by a computer, labor force.

The decline of Boston's harbor has closely paralleled this structural shift in the local economy. The failing competitive position of shipping and fishing in the harbor has reduced the competitive advantages of the region's economy and thus the growth of job-producing enterprises.

The most substantial recent blow to blue-collar employment in the harbor was the closing of the Boston Navy Base in Charlestown and South Boston. This closure eliminated over 5,700 civilian, blue-collar jobs.

Clearly the city government must direct its efforts to creating jobs for its residents, as well as to enlarging the tax base to replenish its treasury. As a result of the decline in the harbor economy and the Navy Base closing, the harbor contains many acres of severely underutilized and vacant land. This land presents the city with major opportunities to create industrial development, housing, public recreational space, and integrated shipping and marine-related facilities.

The city has made significant studies in each of these areas and has already begun to address these goals:

— Boston created a Boston

Marine Industrial Park (BMIP) within South Boston.

— A new, job-training center has been set up at the BMIP with initial funding and programming in place.

— General agreement with the Massachusetts Port Authority has been reached for the development of a (third) container port to be located in South Boston.

— Planning and environmental review is under way for a major upgrading of the road transportation network into the South Boston area.

— A free trade zone has been designated at the Boston Marine Industrial Park.

— The Charlestown Navy Base has been added to the Charlestown Urban Renewal Area with new housing, commercial development, and public recreation sites proposed and major capital funds allocated, and a housing developer designated.

Each of these developments has or will lead to a major upgrading of the harbor.

Because of the potential offered by the harbor and the significance of blue-collar job creation for Boston residents, the city has determined that the full exploration of the harbor for direct job creation should be a priority focus.

B. Summary of Program Components Goals

The primary goals of the harbor plan are:

— The creation of nearly 10,000 new permanent jobs in ten years (4,500 in four years) as well as 2,000 temporary construction jobs. Through a strategically integrated commercial, industrial, and manpower development program Boston residents will strive to capture 50 percent or more of these jobs. These jobs will pay wages adequate to support a family and household in the city.

— Completion of public and private investment projects adequate to produce significant, new, tax revenue within two years, and a substantial increase within five years, with attendant pro rata amounts accruing to the state and federal governments.

— Expansion within five years of attractive, harbor-located units of mixed subsidized and market housing in order to provide 1,100 additional, attractive and integrated dwelling units to accelerate the return of the middle class to the city.

— Demonstration of a set of transferable experiences in integrated harbor redevelopment, coordination of manpower and economic development, and city/regional cooperation toward benefits for both areas.

Program Elements

The basic elements of the Harbor Plan are:

— The additional investment of $35 million of federal, state, and local funds over a five-year period in the harbor area in order to provide the physical base for private investment.

— The completion of land-use studies, infrastructure, transportation and environmental planning and engineering designs in order to clarify to public and private parties the overall harbor scheme.

Boston Plan . . .

— The delivery of a harbor redevelopment process which will insure consistent, timely, actions by a variety of agencies and interested groups in order to produce the highest possible public gain.

Program Activities

The major program activities for the near term of the Harbor Plan are:

— Renovation of the Boston Marine Industrial Park (BMIP), formerly the South Boston Naval Annex, at a cost of $8 million, to expand the ship repair and marine-related operations currently employing 800 workers to 1,200 workers in two years and 3,500 workers in five years.

— Development of a new container port facility at South Boston creating 150 jobs in two years and 250 jobs in five years, while providing a major new service to support business growth throughout the region.

— Completion of the Job Training Center located in the BMIP to provide 350 training slots in two years with a capacity to serve 700 individuals. Training Center programs will be for economically disadvantaged Boston residents, and will be directly linked to employers in the BMIP and elsewhere through a combination vestibule and OJT training program.

— Renovation of the Boston Fish Pier by the Massachusetts Port Authority at a cost of $10-12 million to stabilize the 75 fishing and 1,300 support and allied fish-processing jobs and to prepare land support facilities for anticipated expansion in the fishing industry, creating 1,000 new jobs over a four-year period.

— Development of the former Charlestown Navy Yard at additional cost of $4.22 million in public investment to provide a catalyst for $40 million of committed, private investment funds in a mixed housing, waterfront park, and manufacturing project which will employ 250 workers in two years, building toward total employment of 1,800 jobs at the end of ten years. This project will also create 1,100 additional units of market and subsidized housing and ultimately generate $4 million per year in new taxes.

I. AREA DESCRIPTION

Boston's inner harbor includes large areas of vacant or underutilized land. Until recently there was no private market interest in developing or upgrading these sites. Today conflicting interests are competing for waterfront land — either to develop it or to protect it for possible future need.

At one time, shipping activity of one kind or another took up virtually every inch of harborside land. Today many of the docks are empty and decaying. Now activities unrelated to commercial shipping are springing up on waterfront land including parks, housing, trucking warehouses, and yacht clubs.

The following is a description of specific areas within Boston Harbor and current land use and activities:

A. The Downtown Waterfront

The waterfront community is one of Boston's newest residential sectors, created through the urban renewal process. Formerly, the district was used for port-related commercial and industrial purposes and had few residents. Since 1970, 1,000 apartment units have been constructed or rehabilitated; 360 units are currently being constructed or rehabilitated; and approximately 800 units are planned. The population of 3,500.

The waterfront area received an investment of over $15,000,000 for major project improvements in the Waterfront Urban Renewal Area from 1968-1974, and $9,000,000 more in 1975. The major thrust of this investment went to improve the total environmental quality of this historic district. In many instances, efforts were made to encourage the restoration of the existing structures and to convert some warehouses into desirable residential units.

In addition to providing residential space, commercial, and institutional developments have been encouraged. The project also includes renovation of the Faneuil Hall Markets and a major new Waterfront Park near the Marketplace.

The overwhelming success of the Waterfront Urban Renewal Project in generating new interest and demand in both housing and commercial activity has led to serious interest in extending these activities into the Fort Point Channel and Charlestown Navy Yard areas.

South Boston

The northern section of South Boston is a large expanse of over 900 acres of filled land extending northward from East and West First Streets to Fort Point Channel and Boston Harbor. Land in the northern section is used primarily for industrial (warehousing and distribution), institutional, and commercial purposes. Approximately 510 acres are industrial/warehousing and 275 are vacant and underutilized land. The northern section is distinct from residential sections of South Boston in terms of land use and density; but the East/West First Street truck route which divides them is not a definite boundary and nonresidential uses are mixed into the northern residential neighborhood. The Summer Street, Congress Street, and Northern Avenue Bridges over Fort Point Channel provide access to the northern section from downtown Boston and points farther north. Access from the south is less direct, and many trucks use residential streets to get into the area, causing noise, air, and safety problems for residents. The great amount of underdeveloped land in the area in close proximity to the downtown and the construction activity across the Fort Point Channel in the South Station vicinity are creating development pressure in the northern section. The vast majority of land in the northern section is in the ownership of three private corporations: (Athanas-Pier 4, Town & Cities, and Gillette), the Massachusetts Port Authority, and the United States government. Two major commercial and residential developments have begun to be planned by the private investors for land near the Fort Point Channel. The recently closed South Boston Annex is being developed by the city's Economic Development and Industrial Corporation for industrial reuse.

Athanas-Pier 4 properties consists of a 32-acre parcel between the Fort Point Channel and Commonwealth Pier. Current plans call for a mixed-use, housing and commercial development within the next ten years. This development could be initiated after completion of a new Northern Avenue Bridge and would represent the physical continuation of activities characteristic of the Downtown Waterfront.

Town & Cities property consists of 33 acres along the Fort Point Channel. Further investment is contingent on access improvements and the cleanup of the channel itself. Plans exist for the development of commercial and mixed-income housing. Nearby is the newly renovated structure which will house the Children's Museum and Museum of Transportation. The Athanas and Town & Cities areas represent over 60 acres of waterfront property which are to be developed privately for nonport/non-manufacturing uses.

The Penn Central Rail Yards are inland and adjacent to these two development projects. This 48-acre parcel is currently available for sale at $6.4 million. Parking lots, warehousing, and other low-density uses may result if the development of this valuable site is not publicly controlled.

The Massachusetts Port Authority is the landowner for properties immediately east of Athanas and the Penn Central Yards. These include: the Commonwealth Pier, a passenger-ship facility and exhibition hall; Commonwealth Flats, a 24-acre, vacant parcel, formerly a rail yard; and the Fish Pier and related upland fish-processing activity. The Fish Pier is in poor repair, requiring an estimated $10- to $12-million investment for upgrading sanitary facilities, buildings, and off-loading equipment in order to maintain and encourage growth of the fish-processing business in Boston. Fish receiving and processing currently employ some 1,375 persons on the site.

The Boston Marine Industrial Park at the South Boston Naval Annex consists of 167 acres of land, piers, and water next to the Fish Pier. This facility contains two active dry docks (one about 700 feet long and the other 1,200 feet long), five, abandoned, finger piers, and seven major buildings. At the east end of the park is a peninsula which includes two jetties which can be used for docking ships.

The entire site is under the management of the city's Economic Development and Industrial Corporation (EDIC) which purchased the property from administration in June, 1977. The smaller dry dock is leased to a ship repair company and the larger dock is operated by EDIC and available to all ship repair operators in the port of Boston. Some of the structures are leased short-term for manufacturing and storage purposes. EDIC estimates that in excess of 800 persons are employed currently at the site. EDIC has received an EDA grant for $3.2 million and is in the process of upgrading dry docks and related facilities.

The Boston Army Base is a 43-acre site between the Annex and the Reserve Channel. The site is presently in federal use but plans call for the surplus of the facility in the near future. The site is comprised of 4,150 feet of berthing space and contiguous warehouse buildings currently leased to MassPort and a massive eight-story, concrete structure containing 1.6 million square feet of usable industrial space.

Currently the pier area is under consideration by MassPort for new container port activity in conjunction with backup land in Commonwealth Flats.

The Naval Recreation Area across Summer Street from the Army Base and Naval Annex consists of 17 acres which should become available from the federal government in the near future. The site could be suitable for additional manufacturing or port-support activity. At the easternmost end of the South Boston peninsula, is the Castle Island Port Terminal, a 101-acre facility entirely owned by MassPort and leased to private operators for the movement of containers, automobiles, lumber, cement, and fuel oil.

C. Charlestown

Present and anticipated land use in the Charlestown waterfront area follows a pattern similar to that of South Boston. The new Charles River Dam and Paul Revere Landing Park will extend the Downtown Waterfront to Charlestown.

Charlestown Navy Yard. The Charlestown Navy Yard became available as surplus federal land in July, 1974, after the closing of Navy Base activity. With the termination of the shipyard use 130 acres of waterfront land is available for redevelopment. (28 acres were set aside for the USS "Constitution" National Historic Site.) A mixed-use development is proposed for the site including a new waterfront park, a marina, over 700 units of new housing, 400 rehabilitated units, commercial activity (possibly a hotel) and 25,000 square feet of light manufacturing. The BRA has received $5.3 million in EDA development grants to begin work on the site.

Hoosac Pier, contiguous to the Navy Yard, consists of 8 acres under MassPort ownership. The site is presently underutilized and available for appropriate reuse.

The Little Mystic Area. The peninsula between Little Mystic Channel and the Mystic River is entirely devoted to port uses, including the 18-acre Schiavone Scrap operation, U.S. Gypsum, and other break-bulk operations.

Twenty-two acres of the site comprises the Moran Terminal, a container port, which can service two ships with the two, existing cranes. The distance of the facility from the outer harbor, the limitations of berthing space and upland area make the future of the container operation there questionable.

D. East Boston

Along the East Boston waterfront are scattered airport-related industries, two small, ship repair yards, Bethlehem Steel, and four piers. Because many of the old waterfront industries have given way to less intensive uses and due to pressure from housing expansion, attention has recently focused on reuses of waterfront property.

The city has encouraged new uses which support the predominantly residential character of Jeffries Point and has acquired and developed a 4-acre park at the end of the point. An important issue is the future of the MassPort-owned, Piers 1 to 4 on Marginal Street. This MassPort property is used little, although at times it has served as a general cargo berth and for the storage of imported automobiles. The East Boston community has expressed strong interest in the reuse of these 58 acres with jobs, housing, and recreation being possible goals. Completion of a new container facility should free this land for suitable future use.

LATE CATHERINE FORBES CLARK TO BE HONORED

A multi-million-dollar gymnasium complex on the Harbor Campus of the University of Massachusetts at Boston will be named in honor of a deceased, Dorchester community leader when construction is completed within several years.

University trustees unanimously voted to name the proposed structure the "Catherine Forbes Clark Physical Education Center" in recognition of Mrs. Clark's "substantial contributions to the university and her particular concern with developing a constructive partnership between the Harbor Campus and the Dorchester community."

A lifelong resident of Dorchester's Savin Hill, Mrs. Clark died on November 7, 1977, after a long illness. A member of the university's Board of Trustees, Mrs. Clark had been active for decades in numerous local and city-wide, political and community endeavors. She also had been an ardent supporter of efforts to build a gymnasium on the UMass-Boston campus to serve both students and neighborhood residents.

Chancellor Carlo L. Golino of UMass-Boston, who first had proposed that the complex be named for Mrs.

Clark, said she "was a strong supporter of the university long before her appointment to the Board of Trustees. As a community leader in Dorchester she foresaw the great potential of the Boston campus as a critically needed resource for higher education in the urban community of Boston."

In the struggle to make the physical education facility a reality, Mrs. Clark was truly an active and effective ally. She recognized the value of the project and never weakened in her support of it.

The Dorchester United Neighborhood Association (DUNA) had heartily supported Dr. Golino's efforts and circulated petitions to present to the Board of Trustees. Samuel B. Mullin, president of DUNA, said the complex named for Mrs. Clark "will be a constant reminder of one of our finest and most vital citizens."

ASSIST YOUR MAIL CARRIER

In an effort to reduce the danger of injury to mail carriers, Postmaster Philip L. Sullivan, of the Boston Postal District is appealing to all residents to remove ice and snow from porches, stairs, and sidewalks and to sand and salt walkways and steps when necessary. Carriers are not required to deliver mail if the approach to the mail receptacle is not kept clear.

Postal customers are responsible for keeping approaches to their mailboxes clear of any obstructions that would make delivery difficult or impossible. Failure to do so, after a heavy storm, may temporarily prevent carriers from making deliveries.

Suburban customers, who receive mail in curbside boxes, delivered by vehicles, are also asked to keep approaches to mailboxes clear of ice and snow so the carrier can easily reach the box from the vehicle. If a driver cannot reach a mailbox without risk of getting stuck or slipping off the road, the mail will be returned to the Post Office until the approach is cleared.

Postmaster Sullivan is also asking customers to deposit their outgoing letters in mailboxes on main streets or to give them to their mailman. Every effort will be made to pick up all collection boxes. However, in some residential areas, this may not be possible if the boxes are not accessible.

EMERGENCY SHELTER PROGRAM CONSOLIDATED FOR TRANSPORT CALL 725-4000

The City of Boston's emergency shelter network was consolidated as of January 21.

Two of the eight, city-wide shelters will remain open to accommodate those who do not have sufficient heat or food. The shelters which will remain open are: the Pilgrim Congregational Church, 540 Columbia Road, Uphams Corner, and the Shelburne Recreation Center, 2730 Washington Street, Roxbury.

Mayor White said, "These shelters are all staffed with experienced people, and equipped with soup, sandwiches, coffee, and cots. If you are in need of shelter, but cannot get to one on your own, call 725-4000. The people there will direct a senior shuttle van to bring you to the shelter."

The snow emergency shelters which exist in six other areas of the city will be reopened if needed. The demand, thus far, has not been significant for this service. City officials attribute this to the advanced warning of the storm, and the feeling of camaraderie generated by the storm. Many persons who have had storm-related problems at their homes have been helped out by neighbors.

REMEMBER THIS ADDRESS?

The Gettysburg Address was delivered by President Abraham Lincoln at the dedication of the National Cemetery on Gettysburg Battlefield, November 19, 1863. It is a masterpiece of literature. President Lincoln, our sixteenth president was born February 12, 1809, and died April 15, 1865.

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work they have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honoured dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

"T" ORDERS REBUILT LOCOMOTIVES

The MBTA Board of Directors has ordered seventeen locomotives at a cost of $6.4 million in its federally aided program to replace 118 commuter-rail vehicles over the next two years.

The new equipment is to be operated by the Boston and Maine Railroad, which operates the commuter service from North Station and South Station for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

The new equipment's cost will be funded 80 percent by the federal government.

The commuter-rail, rolling stock, replacement program includes the following elements:

Eight Budd rail diesel cars have been refurbished and given needed repairs.

Twelve more Budd rail diesel cars are due to be refurbished by September.

Twenty-five additional Budd cars are to get a complete rebuild on a bid opening which took place January 31. The rebuilt cars are slated for delivery between fall, 1978, and summer, 1979.

Five new locomotives are to be delivered between September, 1978, and February, 1979.

Seventeen rebuilt locomotives, today's order from the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad, are due between August and the end of the year.

Twenty-five new Pullman coaches are due between September, 1978, and May, 1978.

Thirty-five new coaches are yet to be approved by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration in Washington. Once they are approved, the order from Pullman is expected to be delivered between February, 1979, and June, 1979, possibly stretching to February, 1980, if the order of thirty-five Pullman coaches cannot be added to the production line for the twenty-five Pullman coaches.

The commuter-rail lines were ineligible for federal aid until the MBTA, a public authority, purchased the track and coaches and facilities from the private owners. The MBTA took over complete control of the commuter-rail lines on December 30, 1976, when the MBTA acquired the Boston & Maine track in eastern Massachusetts and its coaches and various facilities with the aid of a federal loan grant.

HOWITT TO STUDY BIG-CITY MAYORS

Big-city, mayoral leadership and its impact on urban government is the focus of a two-year study to be conducted by CRP Assistant Professor Arnold M. Howitt for the Twentieth Century Fund, a New York foundation that promotes public policy research.

Public attitudes about mayors fluctuate between expectations of heroic leadership and disillusionment that one person cannot significantly alter government performance. Both views caricature reality, Professor Howitt believes. By analyzing the basis of mayoral effectiveness, he hopes to provide a more realistic standard by which to gauge the quality of public leadership.

The study will concentrate on understanding the potential and constraints of a mayor's role in policy innovation, oversight of service delivery, the budget process, and management of political conflict.

Professor Howitt plans to analyze two sets of relationships that shape a mayor's job. The first is political: a mayor must take account of his electoral career, the demands of his constituents, and the structure of political power. The second is organizational: he must influence and respond to government bureaucracies, some of which he controls, others of which are independent. These relationships extend within his city and to other levels of government.

The study will also trace how patterns of political change in the past two decades — for example, expanding intergovernment grant-in-aid programs and changes in levels of public participation — have altered the potential for mayoral leadership.

Professor Howitt plans to focus on the problems of aging metropolitan centers in the northeast in the period since 1960. He will conduct field research in three large cities, studying the administrations of Mayors James Tate and Frank Rizzo in Philadelphia; John Collins and Kevin White in Boston; and Robert Wagner, John Lindsay, and Abraham Beame in New York City.

Advice is not disliked because it is advice, but because so few people know how to give it.

MAYOR WELCOMES POLICE AND FIRE RECRUITS TO CITY SERVICE

Mayor Kevin H. White, on January 25, welcomed the two largest recruit classes in terms of minority representation to service in the Boston Police Department and the Boston Fire Department.

In a combined swearing in at the Mather School auditorium in Dorchester on January 25, the Mayor said the recruit classes "represent the city's greatest minority hiring effort to date."

Of sixty-five police recruits sworn in by Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan, there were eighteen black males and nine black females, two Chinese males, five Hispanic males, twenty-seven white males, and four white females.

Of sixty-one fire fighters sworn in by Fire Commissioner George Paul, there were thirty-five black males, twenty-four white males, and two Chinese males.

"You will be a vital part of the city's commitment to increase the presence and visibility of public safety and service personnel in the neighborhoods," the Mayor said.

Mayor White told the recruits: "You enter public service at a time when the city and its neighborhoods are coming back from a period of economic and social distress."

The Mayor said both the Police and Fire Departments "are taking on a composition that more closely represents the ethnic diversity of the city's neighborhoods."

"There will be a lot of pressure on you not only to reduce crime and control fires, but to help this city maintain and improve community relations."

"You are equipped to do this," he told the recruits. "Most of you are from the neighborhoods and were educated in city schools like the Mather," which is on the site of the nation's first free public school.

"This city has a lot more invested in you than just the money it will take to train you, equip you, and pay your salaries," the Mayor said.

"In meeting your responsibilities, you will have the satisfaction of helping people in this city cope with their problems, and you will experience a lot of frustration."

"My advice to you during your careers is not to burn yourself out, but to maintain your optimism, your sense of commitment, your sense of pride, and even your sense of humor.

"I extend to all of you on behalf of the City of Boston congratulations on your appointment and a real appreciation of your service to the city."

MAYOR AGAIN SEEKS COUNCIL APPROVAL OF EQUALIZATION PROJECT

Mayor Kevin H. White, on January 25, again submitted for City Council approval funding of the Property Tax Review Project.

That project, for which the city has asked a $478,000 transfer from the Reserve Fund, is to design a new system for the assessment of real and personal property in Boston.

The search for new equalization techniques comes as a result of the 1974 Sudbury case in which the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth ordered equalization in Massachusetts.

Mayor White, in a letter to the City Council said, "These funds will enable the city, rather than a court, to control the process of bringing its assessing practices into line with Constitutional requirements. We must review our assessment practices and institute changes which will make them fairer. There is no question that some dislocation will occur — far less, however, if we control the process than if it is controlled by a court."

The city's latest request for funding comes in the wake of Judge Samuel Adams' remarks concerning two Boston assessing cases currently before him. Judge Adams questioned the validity of the city's assessment practices and indicated that if the city did not commence the review process, he would consider enjoining the sending of tax bills this spring.

This request for funding of the review project is the third the city has put before the Council. The first funding request was for $628,000. Because there are only five months remaining in the fiscal year, the funding request has been prerated to reflect that decrease.

If granted, the funding request would create a new fifteen-person agency within city government. Legal fees and contractual services of consultants form $354,000 of the request.

Referring to the task of defining the requirements for equalization that the current case law has drawn, Mayor White said that former Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin and his law firm bring special expertise to the case.

Said Mayor White, "At the moment, the law as articulated by the Supreme Judicial Court in numerous cases, is too simple to be applied to a taxing jurisdiction so complex as the City of Boston. It needs elaboration and modification so as not to burden our taxpayers harshly."

NOTICE

As a result of the snowstorm of January 20, 1978, confusion has arisen concerning employees who reported for work on January 20 and January 23, 1978.

All non-emergency service employees who reported for work during regular working hours on January 20 and 23 only will be given time off for hours actually worked. This time off shall be granted as soon as possible at the discretion of the department head.

Security is mostly a superstition. It does not exist in nature, nor do the children of men as a whole experience it. Avoiding danger is no safer in the long run than outright exposure. Life is either a daring adventure, or nothing.

My life is a gift, no matter what its conditions and circumstances. As long as I am conscious, master to any extent of my own world of inner choices, as long as in some way I can adore God and praise Him and thank Him, life is a gift.

The most deadly of all possible sins is the mutilation of a child's spirit.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT: ITS HISTORY

PART I

The City Record will publish a series of interesting data excerpted from the newly published hardbound book in color black and white, depicting the evolution of the Boston Fire Department.

The books are available to the public at a reasonable cost; they include action photos, including memorable fires, apparatus, fire stations and individual portraits of present members of Boston's capable Fire Department.

Information regarding the ordering of the book may be obtained by writing to: Boston Firefighters Book, P. O. Box 18404, Boston, Mass. 02118.

This book is dedicated to the 142 fire fighters on record as having given their lives in the line of duty since the year 1860 and to all members of this department that died in the line of duty that have gone unrecorded over the long history of this department.

We in the department today make the commitment that our efforts to improve the life safety for the fire fighter in the performance of his most hazardous profession will not be diminished.

GEORGE H. PAUL,
Fire Commissioner.

The City of Boston

Boston is the capital of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and, together with the Cities of Chelsea and Revere and the Town of Winthrop, is located in Suffolk County, the latter having been incorporated on May 10, 1643. A large part of Suffolk County was included in a newly established Norfolk County on March 26, 1793.

Boston has a land area of 43.9 square miles and an estimated 1976 population of 640,000.

Its greatest length is 13.8 miles from the northern tip of East Boston to the southern end of Hyde Park and its greatest width is 7.75 miles from the Marine Park shore at South Boston to the western end of Brighton. Median width is 5.75 miles from the Charles River at Harvard Bridge to the Neponset River at Matapan Square.

Boston was settled by Puritan colonists under John Winthrop, the first Governor, in the latter part of August 1630, the name of the original settlement being changed from Trimoun-taine to Boston on September 7, 1630 (old style calendar). Its new name was adopted from the Town of Boston in Lincolnshire, England, which had been the home of some of the leading colonists. To the Indians, the place was known as Shawmut.

September 7, 1630 also marked Boston's incorporation as a town, but with the adoption of the new style calendar in 1752, the date moved forward to September 17 which then became the official anniversary.

Boston was incorporated as a city on February 23, 1822 by an act of the State Legislature, the act being accepted by the voters on March 4, 1822.

Original Boston was confined to a small peninsula surrounded by tidewater, the area connecting with the mainland at Roxbury by a narrow neck of land. Its present size and shape was developed by the filling of tidal areas and by various annexations, the latter being as follows:

March 6, 1804 — South Boston, then known as Dorchester Point, from Dorchester.

March 25, 1834 — Thompson's Island from Dorchester.

May 21, 1855 — Washington Village from Dorchester.

April 25, 1859 — Parts of the Back Bay between Arlington and Hereford Streets, from Roxbury.

January 6, 1868 — City of Roxbury (a town since Sept. 28, 1630 and a city since March 25, 1846).

April 12, 1872 — Mt. Hope Cemetery from West Roxbury.

January 5, 1874 — City of Charlestown and the towns of Brighton and West Roxbury. (Charlestown had been a town since August 23, 1630 and a city since March 10, 1847. Brighton, formerly part of Cambridge, had been a town since February 24, 1807. West Roxbury, formerly part of Roxbury, had been a town since May 24, 1851).

May 8, 1874 — A small area in the northern part of Brookline to establish a physical connection between Boston and the recently annexed Brighton District.

May 29, 1874 — The southwestern portion of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir Grounds from Newton. This brought all of the reservoir within the limits of Boston.

January 1, 1912 — Town of Hyde Park, originally part of Dorchester and a town since April 22, 1868.

Boston Fire Dept. . . .

Boston has common boundaries with Hull (in the Atlantic Ocean), Winthrop, Revere, Chelsea, Everett, Somerville, Cambridge, Watertown, Newton, Brookline, Needham (for about 1500 feet), Dedham, Canton (at one point only), Milton and Quincy.

Several harbor islands are within the limits of Boston, namely Thompson's Island, Spectacle Island, Long Island, Rainsford Island, Deer Island, Gallup's Island, George's Island, and Lovell's Island.

Boston is composed of districts officially designated as City Proper, East Boston, Charlestown, Brighton, Roxbury, West Roxbury, Hyde Park, Dorchester, and South Boston.

Various local section names are in use within these districts.

The geographical layout of the city is unusual, some areas being more or less effectively separated from others. The East Boston District is an island, accessible from the City Proper only by tunnels under Boston Harbor (formerly by ferries) or by way of bridges via the Charlestown District and the City of Chelsea.

South Boston is a peninsula and so is Charlestown both of which are reached from the City Proper by bridges. Brighton is physically connected to the City Proper by a narrow strip of land along Commonwealth Avenue and the district is surrounded on three sides by Cambridge, Watertown, Newton, and Brookline.

These and other factors, including the existence of many hills, do not permit ideal distribution of or the best response routes for apparatus.

The Small Beginnings

In the days of the Great Roman Empire, the ancient City of Rome employed a large corps of men for the purpose of preventing and fighting fires. The Romans also built aqueducts by which water was conveyed to their city, an accomplishment which required a knowledge of hydraulics and considerable building skill.

The decline of the Roman Empire resulted in complete loss of these accomplishments and requisite knowledge. Interest was finally revived about 1600 when crude efforts toward better fire extinguishment were started, primarily in England and in Continental Europe. Thoughts had also turned to the prevention of fires, regulations being made prohibiting dangerous acts and providing penalties for violators.

So, in 1630, we find our colonists from England in a strange place with unusual climatic conditions, building their combustible wooden houses and structures, worrying about fires, about wolves which might attack their cattle, rattlesnakes and possible invasions by unfriendly Indians.

Reliable water supplies were non-existent, water for domestic and fire-fighting purposes being available only from brooks, ponds or wells. Fire-fighting was a civic duty incumbent upon all the inhabitants who at fires formed bucket brigades, conveying water from the nearest source to the fire. The results generally left much to be desired.

On April 11, 1652, a Water Works Company was incorporated, the company building a conduit with a reservoir, just north of the present Dock Square.

Crude manual fire engines having been introduced in England, we can point to 1678 as the birth year of the Boston Fire Department, because in that year one of these engines was received in Boston. Thomas Atkins was commissioned by the town to take charge of the engine and to select a company of reliable men to operate it. This makes Mr. Atkins the first Fire Fighter-Officer in America.

A rate of $4 per inch of 12 lines (set solid) has been established for such advertisements as under the law must be printed in the City Record. Advertising and other copy must, except in emergencies, be in hand at the City Record office by noon, Tuesday of each week to insure its publication in the Monday issue.

The town grew rapidly and with the increase in population and structures additional engines were procured and companies were organized to operate them. "Fire Wards" were appointed to take charge at fires and they were authorized, among other things, to compel citizens to assist in fire-fighting and salvage work.

Many destructive fires occurred and naturally thoughts were directed towards procuring a reliable supply of water.

On February 27, 1795 the Jamaica Pond Aqueduct Corporation was incorporated and it constructed a scattered network of about 15 miles of 3 inch and 5 inch wooden pipes which reached only a few places. While this was a good beginning, it did not really relieve the shortage of water.

The apparatus of the Boston Fire Department consisted entirely of hand engines and the only ladders available for use at fires were kept at a few fixed locations around town and they had to be carried to the fire by hand. To make them more easily available, the first Ladder Company was organized on August 4, 1820 on Friend Street at Warren Square and this company has been in continuous service ever since as Ladder Company 1; at only three locations.

When Boston became a city on March 4, 1822, no change was made in the organization of the fire department, the system of Fire Wards and loosely organized fire companies being retained.

On May 19, 1825 the City Government took its first action in regard to a reliable supply of water and on June 13, 1825 one thousand dollars were appropriated to defray the cost of a water survey.

A destructive fire in 1825 caused great dissatisfaction with the prevailing system of fire fighting and this resulted in the passage of a law abolishing the Board of Fire Wards and providing for the appointment of a Chief Engineer who would have absolute control of the department.

Improvements — The Chief Engineer

Samuel D. Harris was appointed Chief Engineer in 1826 and he took immediate steps to create a better disciplined and more efficient organization. The city appropriated money for the construction of new fire stations and for reservoirs from which the engines could obtain a supply of water. Reservoirs were located in streets and were filled by water from storm and house drains.

On March 19, 1833 an application was made to the General Court for authority to take land necessary for a water supply and on May 10, 1834 Colonel Baldwin was appointed to make a report which he submitted on October 1, 1834. The Colonel was apparently one of the early consultants. The Legislature, on April 16, 1836 passed an act incorporating the Boston Hydraulic Company giving it authority to supply the city with water.

In 1838 the citizens voted 3 to 2 in favor to proceed with the introduction of water and in 1840 a 10 inch iron pipe was laid from Jamaica Pond to Bowdoin Square.

After Long Pond in Wayland had been chosen as the source of water supply on September 3, 1844, the Mayor petitioned the Legislature on January 1, 1845 for power to proceed. On May 20, 1846 the Legislature authorized the city to take and convey to Boston the waters of Long Pond and on August 20, 1846 ground was broken for the aqueduct and the name of Long Pond changed to Lake Cochituate, its present name.

In 1847, the construction of the first storage reservoir, on Beacon Hill, was begun and on October 25, 1848 the first water reached the Frog Pond on Boston Common amid a general celebration. This then was the beginning of the Boston water supply which has undergone extensive changes and improvements ever since.

The fire department was again reorganized in 1837 as the result of a riot involving the department and citizens and its first annual report was published in 1838.

In connection with the reorganization of 1837, Rules and Regulations had been established on October 23, 1837 for the general government of the fire department. Article 11 covered the furnishing of mutual aid to adjacent communities and showed the engine companies permitted to respond to specifically named places.

Hydrant (Hose) Companies had been introduced so that now there were Engine, Ladder, and Hose Companies, all of them still operated by volunteers. Steam fire engines having been manufactured for some time, Boston purchased one in 1854 and named it "Miles Greenwood," but it was used only three times and sold in 1857.

Two smaller steam engines were purchased and these were delivered on December 16, 1858 to be used on a trial basis under contract with their builders.

At the end of 1858, there were 14 Engine, 3 Ladder, and 6 Hose Companies, all hand-drawn and the engines hand-operated.

GARDENING COURSE FOR "THUMBERS"

"A Green Thumb for a Greener Boston," a 10-week gardening course sponsored by the Boston Parks and Recreation Department, has already begun its seventh year, announced Assistant Commissioner Alan Austin.

The course, which meets at the City Greenhouses in Franklin Park, covers a wide range of gardening topics and techniques, including: seedage, soil, fertilizers, plant propagation, trees and shrubs, annuals, bulbs, roses, and vegetables.

Mike Connor, Boston's Superintendent of Horticulture, explained that students will be working in the greenhouse environment, raising seedlings and root cuttings, which become the property of the student upon completion of the course.

Two classes will meet each week for the ten-week period: Tuesday and Wednesday, from 1 to 3 p.m. There is a one-time registration fee of ten dollars per student. To register, interested Boston residents should mail their name, address, and day preference (Tuesday or Wednesday) to: Green Thumb, Boston Parks and Recreation Department, Room 802, Boston City Hall, Boston, Mass. 02201, attention: Karen O'Neil.

Class size is limited, so students will be selected based on the earliest postmark date. All applicants will be notified of acceptance by mail. Please do not enclose the ten dollar fee with your application. Don't delay, mail your application today, so that your "Green Thumb" will help toward "A Greener Boston."

LOEB LIBRARY RECEIVES MATCHING GRANT

During last September and October, 85 alumni, parents, and friends contributed $18,291 to the Frances Loeb Library Acquisitions Endowment Fund, bringing the total gifts matching the National Endowment for the Humanities challenge grant to $256,257.

Dean Emeritus Jose Luis Sert, chairman of the Friends of the Frances Loeb Library campaign, said, "We are heartened by this quick and generous response to the NEH challenge grant. We will need this same degree of commitment from a much wider circle of friends of the man-made environment to raise the $104,805 balance of matching funds in the months ahead."

A named acquisitions endowment fund for books or visual materials can be established with a gift of $5,000 or more. "The library has already received a number of commitments, and we are hopeful that many more professional firms and individuals will pledge name funds," said Howard Hall, director of development. Payments can be made as the donor wishes until April 30, 1980, to qualify as matching funds against the NEH grant.

A committee of faculty and students are working with Judith Auerbach, acquisitions librarian, and other members of the library staff to prepare a list of books and other materials that the library has long wanted to purchase. The NEH grant will enable them to make these purchases, and after 1980, income from the new endowment funds will enable the library to increase its annual acquisitions budget. "We hope everyone will respond to Dean Sert's appeal so that the library can be successful in this first step to increase its endowment," commented Angela Giral, director of the library.

To All Department Heads.

Subject: Sick Leave Records and Annual Redemption of Sick Leave.

Your cooperation is requested to prepare a Sick Leave and Vacation Report for all employees is your department. The Personnel Division is centralizing sick leave and vacation records for computerization. This report should be completed and sent to the Personnel Division by March 1, 1978. Directive 16 will explain the format and the procedure for submission of this report.

In accordance with contractual agreements between the City of Boston and the various unions representing city and county employees (a list of those unions are herein enclosed) an Annual Redemption of Sick Leave for employees who qualify is to be implemented for the redemption of the 1977 sick leave. This "buy back" payment will be made from each department's Item 10 account.

Eligibility for the redemption is as follows:

1. An employee having been employed on or before January 1, 1977, and having used less than five days of sick leave during the calendar year is eligible for "buy back" pay.

2. An employee must have been employed by July 1, 1977, to be eligible for the redemption on a prorated basis. Employees with less than six months continuous service are not eligible.

3. Employees with less than one year of service qualify for this benefit on a prorated basis.

4. Only employees on the payroll on December 31, 1977, qualify for this payment.

5. CETA employees in appropriate bargaining units are eligible for this payment, if they meet the above requirements. Payments will be made by CETA under each department's CETA account.

The procedure for implementation is as follows:

1. Each appointing authority is responsible for notifying each employee who is eligible for the "buy back" under the attached provision. The last date for filing the Sick Leave Reimbursement is March 1, 1978. No payment will be made after this date or until the Personnel Division receives the sick leave and vacation reports for that department.

2. The enclosed 1978 sick leave forms will be submitted to the Supervisor of Personnel and the completed skeleton payrolls will be submitted to the Auditing Department, Payroll Unit. These payrolls will not be processed until after the cutoff date of March 1, 1978, and until the Sick and Vacation Report is delivered to the Personnel Division. Sick leave payments should not be submitted on regular payrolls or any payrolls other than those dated January 1, 1978.

3. After the payment is made, the departmental payroll clerk will make the appropriate deduction from employee's sick leave records.

4. A Sick Leave Redemption Report will be submitted to the Personnel Division by the Data Processing Unit and available for the inspection for each department.

In conclusion, each department should immediately notify eligible employees regarding the optional sick leave redemption plan. The departmental sick leave and vacation practices and record-keeping practices should be reviewed and monitored to insure rigid controls of sick leave accounting procedures and maximum utilization of your work force.

MAYOR SEEKS PREFERENCE FOR BOSTON FIRMS IN CITY CONTRACT AWARDS

Mayor Kevin H. White on January 25 submitted an ordinance to the City Council which would give preference to Boston firms in the award of city contracts.

Mayor White said, "I am convinced that the adoption of this ordinance will enhance the city's efforts to encourage Boston business by increasing the number of Boston firms receiving business from the city itself. It will also have the desirable effect of enlarging the opportunity for minority firms to do business with the city."

To qualify for the preference, a Boston-based firm must: bid within 5 percent of the lowest bid in a particular invitation; qualify for the endorsement of the majority of an award committee composed of the Director of Administrative Services, the Collector Treasurer, and the Corporation Counsel; and receive the award of the Mayor.

Said Mayor White, "It is the policy of the city to do everything reasonably possible to encourage Boston business."

City of Boston,

In the Year Nineteen Hundred and Seventy-eight.

An Ordinance to Enable City Departments to Give Preference to City Firms in the Purchase of Certain Goods and Services.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Boston, as follows:

Section 1. For purposes of this ordinance the term "city firm" shall mean that for the term of the contract:

- a) in the case of a sole proprietorship, the person's principal place of business and residence are located in the city, or a majority of his/her employees are residents of the city;
- b) in the case of a partnership, a majority of the partners reside in the city, or the principal place of business of the partnership is located in the city, or a majority of the employees of the partnership reside in the city;
- c) in the case of a corporation, a majority of its shareholders are residents of the city, or the principal place of business of the corporation is located in the city, or a majority of the employees of the corporation are residents of the city.

Section 2. Whenever any officer or board in charge of a department of the city or county invites proposals to do any work or make any purchase, except work done or purchases made in accordance with G.L. c. 30, §39M, or G.L. c. 149, §§44A-L, and a responsible and eligible city firm bids a price no higher than five percent above a non-city firm which is the lowest bidder, said officer or board shall request the Mayor's permission to award the contract without further advertising to the city firm.

Section 3. The Mayor shall refer such request to a committee composed of the Director of Administrative Services, the Collector-Treasurer and the Corporation Counsel. If a majority of said committee recommends the award of the contract to the city firm notwithstanding that its bid was not the lowest, the Mayor may approve such award.

I hereby certify that the foregoing, if passed in the above form, will be in accordance with law.

Herbert P. Gleason, Corporation Counsel.

MANUFACTURING COMPANY RELOCATED: JOBS RETAINED

When the T. J. Edwards die manufacturing company was displaced from its Forest Hills area location last year to make room for the new high school, more than 50 jobs, the majority of which were held by area residents could have been lost to the suburbs.

But thanks to Mayor White's Office of Economic Development and the Economic Development Industrial Corporation, T. J. Edwards was relocated in another section of the city, accessible to its Jamaica Plain employees.

The company is now located and operating in the Brighton area.

Michael Westgate, EDIC Executive Director, explained that his staff had sought a suitable relocation site in the Jamaica Plain area, but a building suitable for T. J. Edwards distinct industrial needs could not be found.

Westgate said: "Although the company is now located in Brighton, all but one of its original employees have remained with the firm. EDIC is happy to have played a role in not only helping to keep jobs in the city, but in helping neighborhood people keep their jobs."

Westgate added that T. J. Edwards has expressed an interest in continuing to hire Jamaica Plain Residents.

It is when we all play safe that we create a world of utmost insecurity.

I wondered why somebody didn't do something, then I realized that I was somebody.

VIII. LETTERS OF THANKS

"December 28, 1977.

Dear Commissioner:

On December 16th at approximately 8:30 A.M., I was involved in a head-on collision on Corey Street in West Roxbury.

Thanks to the prompt and efficient response of the Boston Fire Department I was spared any undue pain and suffering. Their patient, competent, and professional attention succeeded in extricating me from a very mangled vehicle while at the same time, paying special attention to my badly broken ankle and battered knee.

I am happy to report that I am well on the way to a full recovery. I cannot help but think that I owe a great deal to the good men of the Boston Fire Department who came to my aid.

With sincere appreciation,
Jean M. Ball,
598 Weld Street, West Roxbury."

"January 6, 1978.

Dear Commissioner:

Please accept our profound gratitude and convey our sincere appreciation to the officers and members of your department who responded on mutual aid to Chelsea during the tragic, three-alarm fire at 174 Pearl Street, three alarms, Box 121, on December 31, 1977, and January 1, 1978.

All too often, our departments are called to duty and faced with the tragedies of people who are the innocent victims, but the toll in this particular situation included a brother, Fire Capt. James E. Trainor, who made the supreme sacrifice while in the performance of his duties.

We would like to particularly extend special tribute to Dist. Chief Joseph Houghton and his aide, Fire Fighter Thomas Goodwin and Boston Engine 50, who were instrumental in effecting rescues and providing critical assistance to Deputy Chief William E. Coyne in the extremely difficult initial operations at the scene. Once again, all the companies who responded to the multiple alarms demonstrated their highest degree of professionalism and were a great tribute to the Boston Fire Department.

Sincerely,
Herbert C. Fothergill,
Chief of Department."

"January 6, 1978.

Dear Chief, Officers, and Fellow Fire Fighters:

Please accept the sincere gratitude of Chief Fothergill, officers and fire fighters of the Chelsea Fire Department for your thoughtful expression of kindness during our tragic loss of Fire Capt. James E. Trainor, who made the supreme sacrifice in the line of duty on January 1, 1978.

The tremendous showing of brother fire fighters from near and distant communities served as a very solemn display of the highest traditions of the fire service — fraternal love for fellowman.

The entire community of Chelsea, and especially the family and fellow fire fighters will not forget your kindness ever.

Very truly yours,
Herbert C. Fothergill,
Chief of Department."

NO. 8

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT: ITS HISTORY

Change of Pace.

The year 1859 marked the beginning of the end for the hand-drawn apparatus and the conversion of the fire department to horse-drawn steam engines, hose carriages and ladder trucks. This also necessitated for the first time the employment of some permanent members although all the companies retained their call officers and call firefighters.

It is the writer's opinion that 1859 marks the real beginning of the modern Boston Fire Department and while lack of space does not permit a detailed story of its development, enough will be shown to make it understandable.

Progress.

The first regularly organized steam engine company, horsedrawn, was Engine Company 8, in service on November 1, 1859. Horse-drawn Hose Company 1 was the first of that branch of the service on April 1, 1860 and by November 1, 1860, all hand apparatus had been discontinued.

At the end of 1860 there were 9 Engine, 9 Hose, and 3 Ladder Companies. Ladder trucks carried only ordinary straight ground ladders, but in 1863 so-called "spliced ladders" were introduced, capable of being extended, the first of these being assigned to Ladder Company 3. In 1867, a steam-propelled steam engine belonging to the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company was operated for trial by Engine Company 5 from October 1 to December 24, after which date the engine was returned to its owner.

When the City of Roxbury was annexed to Boston on January 6, 1868, 3 Engine Companies, 1 Hose Company and 1 Ladder Company became part of the Boston Fire Department and additionally, with the annexation of the Town of Dorchester on January 3, 1870, 6 Engine and 2 Ladder Companies were acquired.

At this time all steam engines had straight frames which allowed the front wheels to be turned only as far as the frame. The Amoskeag Company introduced a so-called "crane neck frame" which allowed the front wheels to be turned under the frame, permitting turning of the engine within its own length. The first of this type to be built, Amoskeag Serial No. 337, was purchased and assigned to Engine Company 10 on February 1, 1870.

At the time of the "Great Boston Fire" of November 9 and 10, 1872, the Amoskeag Company sent to Boston one of their steam-propelled steam engines which was purchased and assigned to Engine Company 21 on November 21, 1872. It was used for some time, but was later converted to horsedraft for reasons not ascertained.

Agitation for a much needed fireboat had finally produced money for its purchase and the first fireboat was in service on January 1, 1873, followed by the first chemical engine, Chemical 1, on February 9, 1873.

The department was still in charge of the Chief Engineer who, together with the Assistant Engineers in charge of fire districts, constituted the Board of Engineers who determined all general policy. The only permanent employees in all companies were the drivers in addition to which there were also an Engineer and a Fireman in Engine Companies. Company Officers and Firefighters were employed on a call basis and they responded only when alarms were struck on the public bells.

The "Great Boston Fire" of 1872 and the "Memorial Day Fire" of 1873 resulted in demands for a complete reorganization. An order establishing a Board of 3 Fire Commissioners was passed on October 24, 1873, the board commencing its duties on November 20, 1873 when the Commissioners took control of the department from the Chief Engineer.

At the end of 1873 there were 25 Land Engine Companies, 1 Fireboat, 9 Hose, 1 Chemical, and 8 Ladder Companies.

The Board of Fire Commissioners.

These gentlemen started an immediate reorganization for the purpose of placing the department on a business-like and disciplined semi-military basis, designed to wipe away all traces of the past.

Plans were formulated to organize badly needed additional companies and to provide some of the high-value companies entirely with permanent men. It should be noted here that Boston, for reasons of economy, retained some of its callmen until 1909.

On January 5, 1874, the annexation of Charlestown, Brighton, and West Roxbury brought into the Boston Fire Department 3 Engine, 4 Hose, and 3 Ladder Companies, as well as two hand engines still being used in West Roxbury. Additional companies were organized and at the end of 1874 there were 29 Engine Companies, 1 Fireboat, 12 Hose, 4 Chemical, and 11 Ladder Companies, as well as one hand engine in the West Roxbury District.

Completely new rules and regulations had become effective on April 7, 1874 and they were published in General Order 1, the first ever issued. Changes continued to be made until the reorganization was complete.

On March 28, 1876, a "Scott-Uda" Aerial Ladder was in service and on September 21, 1876, the last hand engine in the West Roxbury District was discontinued.

On May 10, 1876 the first definite mutual aid arrangements, including signals and assignments, were in effect between Boston and Chelsea and this was the birth date of the present effective mutual aid systems in the Greater Boston Area.

In 1880, the first sliding poles and "quick-hitch" harness for the horses were installed at the quarters of Engine Company 4.

On March 20, 1882, the first Water Tower (Greenleaf Type) was in service and the first practical aerial ladder truck, a cable-raised Hayes type, started operation with newly organized Ladder Company 13 on June 30, 1883. Both of these units had a short life, they were destroyed by the falling walls of a building at the Thanksgiving Day Fire, November 28, 1889.

The Scott-Uda Aerial Ladder had proved of little value and it was placed in reserve status on April 25, 1884 and never used after that date.

By April 30, 1886, the last Chief Officer, not yet so equipped, had finally been furnished with a horse and wagon.

Changes of title took place on August 30, 1887, when the Chief Engineer became Chief of Department, Assistant Engineers became District Chiefs, Foremen became Captains and Assistant Foremen became Lieutenants.

All apparatus had been drawn by not more than two horses, but a Babcock Aerial Ladder Truck placed in service with newly organized Ladder Company 15 on February 20, 1888, had the first three horse hitch. To replace the Water Tower destroyed in 1889, a new modern tower, with hydraulic (water) raising mechanism, was in service on May 17, 1890.

Another new type of apparatus appeared on March 10, 1892, designated Combination Wagon 1, a horse-drawn horsewagon with chemical tanks, making it more useful than an ordinary chemical engine.

At the end of 1892 there were 39 Land Engine Companies, 1 Fireboat, 6 Hose, 9 Chemical, and 17 Ladder Companies, as well as 1 Combination Wagon and 1 Water Tower.

The Board of Fire Commissioners was replaced by a single Commissioner on July 1, 1895 on which date the new Headquarters Building at 60 Bristol Street was occupied. Headquarters had been in leased quarters at 94 Tremont Street.

The Single Commissioner.

The new Fire Commissioner, Colonel Henry S. Russell, introduced a new concept in personnel relations by rewarding outstanding performance with commendations and extra days off. This must have been a great morale booster in a department which had punished infractions by loss of days off, suspensions from duty without pay and in some cases involving officers by reduction in rank. In aggravated cases the penalty was dishonorable discharge and there were no appeals from these judgments. Recognition for good deeds was totally lacking. However, Commissioner Russell insisted on discipline and punishment was meted out when deserved.

To make available some large pumping capacity, two steam-propelled steam engines of double extra first size (1350 GPM) were purchased from the Manchester Locomotive Works, one of which was assigned to Engine 38 in June 1897 and the other to Engine 35 in January 1898.

There were only 17 Ladder Companies spaced quite thinly throughout the city and to fill the need for additional ladder and chemical service, a new type of apparatus called a Combination Ladder Truck was introduced in 1897, the first of these being organized as Combination Ladder Company 4 on December 24, 1897. This was a horse-drawn City Service Ladder Truck with chemical tanks.

On September 14, 1898 a salt water fire line with 11 hydrants was commissioned in the downtown area, salt water to be supplied to the system by a fireboat pumping into a connection at the Fort Point Channel. During its existence it was used only once at a fire in a building at Congress and Channing Streets on August 18, 1910, 4 alarms Box 44. It was later included in the High Pressure Fire System which will be referred to later.

In 1899 the first rubber tires were installed on the apparatus of Engine Company 4 and they proved to be a distinct advantage over the noisy and hard riding iron tires then generally in use.

At the end of 1901 there were 43 Land Engine Companies, 2 Fireboats (includes one in reserve), 10 Chemical, 17 Ladder, 3 Combination Wagon, and 8 Combination Ladder Companies, as well as 2 Water Towers.

On April 21, 1905, one of the Combination Wagon Companies was changed to a Ladder Company and the 8 Combination Ladder Companies were designated as ordinary Ladder Companies.

In 1906 the first gasoline automobile was purchased for the Chief of Department and the first quick-raising ladders hoists were installed on the aerial trucks of Ladder Companies 14, 15, and 17. A Motor Chemical Engine was lent to the department and used for trial from September 22 to November 17, 1906, but while its performance was very satisfactory, no funds were available for its purchase. It appears that budget difficulties are not a new contemporary invention.

The one and only "Dahill Compressed Air Ladder Hoist" ever used in Boston was installed on the aerial truck of Ladder Company 13, where it lasted from August 3, 1907 to May 19, 1922, during that company's horse-drawn and tractorized days.

At the end of 1909 there were 44 Land Engine Companies, 3 Fireboats (including one in reserve), 12 Chemical and 27 Ladder Companies, also 3 Water Towers.

All of the apparatus was horse-drawn with the exception of Engines 35 and 38 which had steam-propelled steam engines.

Rules of Civility — from George Washington's Copybook

Before he was sixteen years old, President Washington copied down 110 "Rules of Civility and decent behaviour in company and conversation" as an exercise in penmanship. Thus early did Washington learn the secret of gracious manners and apply it to his own gentlemanly conduct. The "Rules" cover ten pages in one of Washington's copybooks now in the Library of Congress at Washington. Originally published by French Jesuits around 1595, the "Rules of Civility" were translated into English with various changes and were published many times. The "Rules" do not follow exactly the text of these English versions. Here are some of the Washington "Rules," just as he spelled and punctuated them:

Associate yourself with Men of good Quality if you esteem your own Reputation; for 'tis better to be alone than in bad company.

Wear not your Cloths foul, unript or dusty but see they be Brushed once every day at least and take heed that you approach not to any uncleanness.

Be not hasty to believe flying Reports to the disparagement of any.

Shift not yourself in the sight of others nor gnaw your nails. Treat with Men at fit times about business and Whisper not in the company of others.

Be not curious to know the affairs of others neither approach those that speak in private.

Eat not in the streets nor in ye House, out of Season.

Read no letters, books, or Papers in company but when there is a necessity for the doing of it you must ask leave; come not near the Books or Writings of Another so as to read them unless desired or give your opinion of them unask'd also look not nigh when another is writing a Letter.

If You cough, sneeze, sigh, or yawn, do it not loud but privately; and speak not in your Yawning, but put your handkerchief or hand before your face and turn aside.

Let your discourse with Men of Business be short and Comprehensive.

Let your recreations be Manfull not sinfull.

Turn not Your back to others especially in speaking, jog not the table or Desk on which another Reads or Writes, lean not on anyone.

Think before You Speak pronounce not imperfectly nor bring out Your words too hastily but orderly & distinctly.

Undertake not what You cannot perform but be careful to keep Your Promise.

Speak not evil of the absent for it is unjust.

When You Speak of God or his attributes, let it be seriously & with Reverence. Honour & Obey Your Natural Parents altho they be poor.

MBTA'S NEW "TROLLEYS" PASSED TEST

The MBTA's new "trolley" cars, the Light Rail Vehicles (LRVs), have achieved the goal of 80 percent availability for passenger service in a three-month test of 33 modified cars, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority announced recently.

MBTA Chairman Robert R. Kiley said, "The latest test was completed last January 27, following a series of six snow, sleet and rain storms in 13 days, including Friday, January 20—the most intense one-day blizzard in the 106 years of recorded weather history in Boston. Through it all, the LRVs performed well in their second winter in Boston."

The 71-foot long, 67,000-pound Light Rail Vehicles were manufactured by Boeing Vertol of Philadelphia to the specifications for the United States Standard Light Rail Vehicle, the new generation of streetcar. A number of modifications have had to be made to the vehicles after tests and performance under normal operating conditions.

Since the modifications were made, the modified cars have been taking over the service. There were 11 modified cars throughout November, 22 modified cars throughout December, and 33 modified cars throughout January.

The availability rate was 83 percent in November, 86 percent in December, and a slight decrease—amidst the storms—to 82 percent in January.

Director of Operations David Gunn commented on the LRVs performance in the storms that "The Green Line subway and the elevated section to Lechmere would have been in sad shape without them."

The MBTA's 35-mile Green Line trolley system runs from Lechmere in Cambridge through the oldest subway in the U.S. at Park Street, out in the subway to Kenmore Station near Fenway Park, and then on the surface to Riverside at Route 128 in Newton; Boston College on Commonwealth Avenue in Newton; Cleveland Circle on Beacon Street in Brookline; and the Arborway in the Jamaica Plain-Forest Hills section of Boston.

The Boeing-built cars also have been ordered by the San Francisco Municipal Railway (MUNI) for their new subway.

FREE MINI-COURSES AT UMASS

Eight courses ranging from such diverse subjects as "Boston Politics" to "The Three-Decker as an Investment" will be offered free of charge by UMass-Boston's Community Education Seminars Program beginning in early March.

The courses are sponsored by the university at its Harbor Campus "as a community service to give enrichment to adults of every age," said John Larner, director of the Community Services Department at UMass-Boston.

Generally, he said, the courses are given once a week in the evening and most extend into May. Academic credit is not given for these mini-courses.

Registration should be made in advance by writing to the Community Services Department, UMass-Boston, Dorchester, MA 02125, or by calling 287-1900, ext. 2303. Interested individuals should list the course or courses in which they are interested. Places, however, will be reserved on a first-registered basis.

The following courses, with their instructors, will be held at the Harbor Campus off Morrissey Boulevard:

"Boston Politics," John E. Powers, clerk of the State Supreme Court; "History of Dorchester," Rev. James Allen, minister of the First Church at Meeting House Hill; "Investments: From Main Street to Wall Street," Henry Nelson, investment broker; "Grantmanship: To Assist Community Agencies in Making the Case, Preparing the Proposal, and Finding Funding Sources," H. Todd Eachus, director of the Grant and Administration Office, UMass-Boston (limited to Community representatives); "Basic Skills," Ms. Anne Larkin, Boston School System (for those who wish to develop limited reading and writing skills); "French for the Traveler," Christian Taconet, UMass-Boston staff; and "The Three-Decker as an Investment," David Salomon, director of the Neighborhood Housing Services, Dorchester.

A final course, "Cake Decorating," will be taught by Ms. Marge Muldoon each Saturday beginning at 10:30 a.m., March 11. Students will be required to provide their own baked goods and supplies in taking this course at the university's Dorchester Field Office, 932 Dorchester Avenue.

Larner noted that in registering for the courses by mail, individuals must include a self-addressed stamped envelope to receive a registration confirmation by return mail. Materials and texts must be obtained by students, he said.

There is ample parking on the Harbor Campus and the fee is $1.50. Free shuttle buses operate regularly during the evening hours between the campus and Columbia Station on the MBTA Red Line and Park Square in downtown Boston.

Several cafeterias are open until 7 p.m. while the campus Library is open until 9 p.m.

"DENTISTS" EXHIBIT FOR CHILDREN

Thousands of Boston-area children will be eagerly "going to the dentist" at the Children's Museum during the remaining days in February.

The children will be playing "dentist" and "patient" in a dentist's office that's complete with waiting room, reception desk, coats, dental chairs, and other dental equipment.

They'll also be learning about the importance of correct brushing, flossing, and good nutrition in taking care of teeth.

Periodically, "Dentists" will be staffed by hygienists, dental students, and dental assistants from Roxbury Dental and Medical Group, Forsythe Dental School, Mt. Ida Junior College, and Middlesex Community College.

Posters, dental puzzles, bibs, and disposable mirrors will be handed out to visitors.

"Dentists" is sponsored by the Massachusetts Dental Society as part of Massachusetts Dental Health Month. Michael Sheff, D.M.D., chairman of the Society's Council on Dental Health, is coordinating Dental Health Month.

"Today, preventive dentistry is a vital part of every dentist's job, and this exhibit is a marvelous way to encourage good dental habits in youngsters," says Robert Frank, D.M.D., chairman of the Society's Children's Museum Dental Exhibit Committee.

"Dentists" will be at the Children's Museum on the Jamaicaaway, through February 28. For museum schedules and travel information, call the What's Up Line, 522-5454.

BOSTON'S ANNIVERSARY

On February 23, 1822, Boston was incorporated as a city by an act of the State Legislature, the act being accepted by the voters on March 4, 1822.

MAYOR CREATES HEATING OIL "HOT LINE" FOR INDIGENT

Mayor Kevin H. White on February 10, announced the creation of a hot line number which indigent Bostonians may call to secure emergency heating oil during the current emergency. The number is 357-6000.

The hot line will serve only those persons whose regular oil deliveries are made on a "cash-in-advance" basis.

Said Mayor White, "The plight of 'cash only' heating oil customers is a special one. Those Bostonians, because of the special hardships which the storm has imposed, may either be out of cash, or too short of cash to secure an oil delivery."

Boston residents only, who are cash-in-advance customers, and in need of an oil delivery, should call Action for Boston Community Development at 357-6000, or their local APAC office. After meeting the necessary test of need, ABCD will expedite an oil delivery.

STRANDED ELDERLY AIDED BY LITTLE CITY HALLS

While most of us were huddling indoors recently, or trying to shovel out from under tons and tons of snow dumped on us during the "Blizzard of '78" the North End and East Boston Little City Halls were beehives of activity, coordinating the delivery of several essential services to the areas residents.

To a particular group of residents, the shut-in elderly, who couldn't venture outdoors even for the basic essentials such as food, the Little City Halls became a "life support system" for them.

In both areas, scores of youthful volunteers under the direction of East Boston Little City Hall Manager Alice Christopher, and North End Little City Hall Assistant Manager Joe Sgarano delivered hot lunch meals and shopped for other groceries for shut-in elderly residents who would have suffered without these volunteers. Through the deep snow they trudged bringing food to the anxiously awaiting seniors.

Said Mayor White, "The contribution of the Little City Halls during this emergency has been excellent."

HUB ELIGIBLE FOR FEDERAL RELIEF

Mayor White announces Boston's designation as a major disaster area; means low interest loans could become available.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on February 10, announced that President Carter has designated Boston as a major federal disaster area as a result of the damage caused by a record-breaking massive snowstorm February 6.

The "major disaster" designation makes Boston eligible for broader Federal relief from the storm damage.

Said Mayor White, "I am indeed grateful to President Carter, Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill and Lt. Governor Tom O'Neill for their help to Boston in the first days of the storm, and now this declaration. We will be closely examining the options for increased federal relief, and applying for many of the assistance programs available under this emergency act."

Stressing that his staff is examining the options under the program more closely and Boston's eligibility, Mayor White said that the most attractive aspect of the new designation is the possibility of low interest loans for Boston businessmen and homeowners who suffered storm damage.

The additional relief which Boston could apply to the Federal Government for under this designation include:

— Administrative support and assistance in disaster relief operations through the Federal Disaster Assistance Agency.

— Community disaster loans can be provided any local government which has suffered a substantial loss of tax and other revenues as a result of a major disaster.

— 100 percent reimbursement or repair of public facilities and private non-profit facilities.

— Reconstruction of urgently needed school facilities.

— All maintenance and operation assistance of school facilities.

All these programs must be applied for individually.

The city is now preparing application for these programs.

AND THERE WAS LIGHT!

Mayor Kevin H. White recently announced the completion of a new street lighting project along Newbury Street in the city's Back Bay.

Calling the project an "ambitious undertaking which benefits both the local merchants and the city overall," Mayor White praised the work of the Newbury Street League, a merchants group concerned with promoting business in that area, in making the project a reality.

Deputy Mayor Katharine D. Kane, who presided over the lighting ceremony, echoed Mayor White's sentiments.

She said, "These new street lamps are an excellent example of what can result from a citizen's group and the city working constructively together for a common, positive goal. The League should be congratulated for pursuing an idea that benefits not only its members, but shoppers and area residents as well."

The style of lamps which now grace Newbury Street was chosen by the area merchants and residents in cooperation with Back Bay Little City Hall manager Jim Shevlin, who coordinated the project for the city.

The first section of the project was completed last summer as lamps were lit from Massachusetts Avenue to Exeter Street.

REDUCED RATE OVERNIGHT PARKING AVAILABLE

Boston resident motorists are eligible for reduced rate overnight parking at 11 downtown parking garages during snow emergencies.

When parking is banned on major arteries and the even side of the street, as it was during the current snow emergency, resident motorists can park from 5 p.m. — 8 a.m. for 50 cents in the participating garages. The Prudential Center Garage charges one dollar for the overnight deal.

Said Mayor White, "This program is now in its third snow season of operation. During the last snow storm, it proved to be a welcome alternative to many Bostonians who sought to help Public Works crews clear the streets by getting their cars off the street. I urge all who find this program accessible to utilize it."

AUCTION SUCCESSFUL: AUGMENTED FUNDS FOR BOSTON

The City of Boston has received nearly $50,000 for the sale at auction of 72 surplus city vehicles at the Boston Marine Industrial Park on Summer Street.

Emily Lloyd, transportation advisor to Mayor Kevin H. White, said that $49,275 in proceeds exceeded projections based on appraisals of the vehicles, which included cars, tow trucks, motorcycles, and a bus. Vehicles ranged from 1971 models to 1976. Some were damaged and sold for parts only.

Ms. Lloyd said the auction "satisfied the Mayor's intention of reducing the city's car fleet by 10 percent, while bringing in additional revenue to the city." She said proceeds will be apportioned to those city departments supplying the surplus vehicles to the auction.

The auction was conducted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. It was restricted to dealers only and vehicles were sold as is.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT THREE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY

The following is a brief summary of the events leading up to the organization of the first fire company in the City of Boston and in the nation. Today, the Boston Fire Department celebrates the three hundredth anniversary of the organization of the first fire company.

March 16, 1630.

"A fire occurred in the Town of Boston when the chimney of Mr. Thomas Sharp took fire. The wooden construction, which was not clayed at the top, set fire to the thatch roof and burned the house to the ground."

Thus, the first recorded fire in Boston, the house of Mr. Sharp, which was believed to have been situated near the corner of Boylston and Washington Streets, started the events which lead to the appointment of the first fire officer and fire fighters in North America with the establishment of the first fire company.

At a town meeting held shortly after this fire, the first fire prevention law was established. "We have ordered that no man (in Boston) shall build his chimney of wood (which was covered with clay) nor cover his house with a roof of thatch."

January 14, 1653.

The next major fire in Boston swept over the principal section of the town. Stored barrels of gunpowder made men fear to come near or to enter a burning house. The fire thus raged along State and Washington Streets. Three young children of the Sheath's family died in this fire, the first recorded fire deaths.

March 1, 1653.

A "water engine" made by Joseph Jynks, an iron worker from Lynn, was purchased by the selectmen of the town to aid in the fighting of fires. This engine failed in its first major fire.

March 14, 1653.

In order to save lives and prevent the spread of fire, an act was passed by the selectmen at the town meeting. "The owners of buildings shall provide a ladder for each building that should reach the ridgepole. A 12-foot pole with a swab at the end to quench fires on the roof. The town would provide six long ladders, hung on the outside of the Meeting House. Four strong iron hooks with attached chain and pole to pull down houses in the path of fire. Fire buckets are also supplied."

March 31, 1656.

Mr. Jim Nabors was fined five shillings for allowing his chimney to catch fire.

November 27, 1676.

At five o'clock in the morning, the terrible cry of "Fire" awakened Boston's inhabitants. Having started just north of Richmond Street, this fire consumed the area bounded by Richmond, Hanover, and Clark Streets in just four hours. The sparks were carried across the Charles River and at one point threatened Charlestown. A heavy downpour of rain added greatly in extinguishing this fire.

A secret and determined gang of "fire bugs" made many daring attempts to destroy the town. Candles were fastened to roofs, tallow poured on shingles, barns and warehouses were repeatedly set afire. Fear of flame stalked the town night after night.

The General Court became alarmed at these incendiary attacks and ordered that all persons in Boston, inhabitants or strangers, were directed to take the "oath of allegiance." For this purpose, constables and tax collectors were directed to take a census every three months.

January 27, 1678.

At a town meeting, the first engine company in Boston was established naming a well-respected carpenter as its captain. "Mr. Thomas Atkins, with the aid of twelve assistants, will operate and maintain the fire engine purchased from England."

Therein lies the beginning of the BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The engine, imported from England in 1678, was lodged in a shed on the town's land on Queen Street (now Court Street) near which was built the prison.

No deductions shall be made from the regular compensation of each member under the provisions of this chapter for service after he has attained age seventy and upon retirement such member shall receive a superannuation retirement allowance equal to that which he would have been entitled had he retired at age seventy.

RETIREMENT RIGHTS

The following notice has been received from the Boston Retirement Board so that all new members may be made aware of their retirement rights and/or benefits as the result of the passage of 744, Acts of 1977.

HIGH COMMENDATION

At 0540 hours on December 25, 1977, Ladder Company 10 responded to Box 2538 (working fire) location — South Street and Asticou Road.

Upon arrival, Ladder Company 10 found heavy smoke and fire coming from the first floor of the house on the corner of South Street and Asticou Road. Fire Lieut. Michael J. Bruno of Ladder Company 10 was informed by occupants that had left the fire building that children were trapped in the bedroom on the first floor, South Street side. The entrance on South Street led directly to the second floor and the entrance on Asticou Road was blocked by fire so entry could not be made. Lieut. Bruno then had the members of Ladder Company 10 place a baby banger ladder to the first-floor, bedroom window. Without hesitation or regard for his own safety, he ascended the ladder into the bedroom. Searching the room in the heavy smoke and heat he located a baby in a crib and removed one-year-old Edward Huber, by passing the boy out the front window to an unknown person. Lieut. Bruno then searched the room again and finding no one, he returned to the outside.

The baby, Edward Huber, was taken to the Faulkner Hospital with burns on his body and smoke damage to his lungs, then transferred to the New England Medical Center.

The rescue was made at extreme personal risk to Lieut. Bruno with no thought of his own safety.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to highly commend Fire Lieut. Bruno for this rescue and his case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

COMPANY DRILLS

Officers conducting company drills shall use S.O.P. No. 34 "Care of Fire Hose," as subject matter for the drill period February 1 to February 15, 1978. If the drill item is completed prior to the end of a training period, officers may hold drills on box locations, routes, special equipment, etc.

LETTER OF THANKS

"Dear Commissioner Paul:

I am writing this letter to you with deep gratitude to Engine Company 18 in Dorchester.

At 12:20 A.M., Monday, January 23, 1978, my father suffered a severe heart attack and after calling for an ambulance and help from the Boston Fire Department, Engine 18 responded with great speed arriving before the ambulance. Under the supervision of Capt. Bluthardt, the fire fighters administered oxygen and revived him for the trip to Carney Hospital.

I know this is a routine procedure for these men but the extreme conditions existing as a result of the recent storm put extra merit to this deed.

Ten minutes after we arrived at Carney, three of these same fire fighters, William Ostiguy, James Manning, and Joseph Holland were also brought in for emergency treatment resulting from fighting a two-alarm fire on Dorchester Avenue.

These men work from one extreme to another, being angels of mercy to a family in need and next risking their lives for an abandoned building.

Their kindness to our family and their expertise are greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Mrs. John J. O'Connor,
7 Semont Road, Dorchester, Mass."

PART 3

Motorization—The Transition Period.

With increases in population and the building up of the outlying areas of the city, the horse-drawn apparatus which was spread rather thinly in these sections, no longer filled the need for good fire protection. Even response to first alarms was time consuming, therefore you can imagine what the time interval would be on responses to a second box in an area where another box was already in and this was also true on second and subsequent greater alarms. Horses could run just so long, after which they just walked and the many hilly areas did not improve this performance.

The answer was motor apparatus with its greater speed and lower maintenance costs and the decision was made to install such apparatus in the outlying sections first.

Motorization was spread over 13 years and employed several methods. There were many very serviceable horse-drawn steam engines and ladder trucks, so part of the motorization was accomplished by attaching two-wheel gasoline motor tractors to steam engines, aerial ladder trucks and even some city service type ladder trucks. Horse-drawn water towers were motorized by attaching two-wheel gasoline-electric tractors. In addition, regular gasoline motor pumpers, hosewagons, chemical apparatus and ladder trucks were purchased.

The first motor unit, a Knox Motor Chemical Engine, was placed in service with newly organized Chemical 13 on July 29, 1910. We regret to report that it was wrecked beyond repair in 1914, at which time it was replaced by another motor unit.

Some little time elapsed until on April 22, 1911, the first motor hosewagon commenced service with Engine Company 11. This company had a fairly large first alarm district and was first due in the hilly Orient Heights section of East Boston. When responding, the new wagon got to many places probably long before the horse-drawn steam engine of that company.

Annexation of the Town of Hyde Park on January 1, 1912 added to the Boston Fire Department 2 Hose Companies, one of which was changed to an Engine Company a month later, 1 Ladder and 1 Chemical Company, all of them horse-drawn.

On the water towers in service, the mast was raised by water pressure, but a new tower placed in service on October 30, 1912 had a spring-actuated raising mechanism similar to those used on aerial ladder trucks. Also in 1912, the first Motor City Service Ladder and Chemical Truck started service on December 19 with new Ladder Company 29.

To improve the use of chemical units, the horse-drawn straight chemical unit of Chemical 11 was replaced by a Motor Hose and Chemical Wagon on April 18, 1913, permitting dual operation.

The construction of a high pressure water system to protect the congested high-value areas of downtown Boston had been authorized by Chapter 312 of the Acts of 1911 and after much preliminary work, construction was finally started in 1914, but due to many unforeseen delays the system, including its pumping stations, was not completed until 1921.

Another new type of apparatus made its appearance when the first Motor Triple Combination replaced the horse-drawn steam engine and the motor hosewagon of Engine Company 11 on July 3, 1914. The first two-wheel gasoline motor tractor attached to a formerly horse-drawn steam engine went into service at Engine Company 37 on August 10, 1914 and the first Motor Aerial Truck at Ladder Company 4 on September 28, 1914.

Motorization of horse-drawn water towers began by attaching a 2-wheel gasoline electric tractor to Water Tower 2, this unit starting service on November 11, 1914.

At the end of 1914, there were in service 45 Land Engine Companies, 3 Fireboats, 1 Hose Company (H.49), 14 Chemical, 31 Ladder Companies and 3 Water Towers, a total of 97 companies, the greatest number ever in past and present history.

The introduction of motor hosewagons with chemical equipment and the existence of some ladder trucks with chemical tanks started the phasing out of the separate Chemical Companies in 1915.

Motorization of horse-drawn ladder trucks was started on January 4, 1915 when the aerial trucks of Ladder Companies 14 and 15 had been equipped with 2-wheel gasoline motor tractors, while the first horse-drawn City Service Ladder Truck, at Ladder Company 16, was similarly converted on July 28, 1915.

Following the example of New York City which had organized its first Rescue Company in 1915, Boston did likewise on June 15, 1917 when Rescue Company 1 started operation with motor apparatus, carrying suitable special equipment.

There was still one unit designated as Hose Company 49 and this was changed to Engine Company 49 on July 26, 1918, thereby eliminating this designation entirely.

Construction of the High Pressure System had progressed sufficiently to permit the department to order 3 Motor High Pressure Wagons in 1920. The first of these was assigned to

Engine 35 on January 5, 1921 and on the same date, the first pneumatic tires had been applied to the motor hosewagon of Engine Company 26.

Chemical 7 was the last horse drawn unit of that type and it was replaced by a Motor Hose and Chemical Wagon on April 30, 1921. Ladder Company 1 received the first 4-wheel gasoline motor tractor to be used on an aerial ladder truck on October 26, 1921.

After completing the acceptance tests of the pumps and High Pressure Pumping Stations, a test of the system was made with apparatus on December 9, 1921, at Box 1257, Atlantic Avenue and State Street. The system was found satisfactory and was placed in service on December 19, 1921 with 12 miles of pipe and 310 special hydrants. In-town engine companies had been supplied with high pressure gauges and playpipe holders for 3 inch hose.

At the end of 1921 there were 50 Land Engine Companies, 3 Fireboats, 3 Chemical and 30 Ladder Companies, also 3 Water Towers and 1 Rescue Company. Motorization was not yet complete, some horse-drawn units still being in use.

Motorization proceeded at an accelerated pace during 1922 and part of 1923 with the result that Engine 29, the last horse-drawn engine company, received motor apparatus on September 19, 1923 and the very last horse-drawn unit, Ladder 24, received a motor truck on October 18, 1923, completing the motorization started in 1910.

Nostalgia.

The passing of the horse-drawn era produced some nostalgia which persists to the present day. Books have been written about the "romance" connected with firefighting in the days before motor apparatus and there is no question that the sight of a steam fire engine drawn by three galloping horses, the engine belching smoke and whistling furiously, was justified cause for thrilling excitement.

But, our romanticists fail to mention the other part of the picture which was not exposed to public view.

The horses were stabled on the main floor of the fire station. They had to be fed and watered at prescribed times, cleaned after a run, the stables cleaned daily and the salable manure carefully preserved for the wagon which collected it. Think of yourself as living and sleeping in a building permeated by the distinctive odor of a stable and you will be hard pressed about feeling romantic.

Oats, bran and straw for the horses were usually stored on the top floor which became a haven for the friendly neighborhood mice who lived there in luxury, growing fat and lazy.

Horses, like people, got sick and the department maintained a hospital for them with a Veterinary Surgeon and hostlers and there was even an ambulance to transport sick and injured horses. Those animals were of different temperaments, some were lazy while others liked to bite or kick, but in spite of it all they gave good service when needed.

The Motorized Department.

While there were no more horses beginning October 18, 1923, there remained in service several steam engines and ladder trucks still attached to the conversion tractors dating back to their change from horse-drawn service.

With motorization, old fire stations needed many alterations to make them suitable for the use of motor apparatus, such as replacement of wooden apparatus floors with concrete, conversion of stable and feed storage areas to other useful purposes and additional improvements directed towards the comfort of the members stationed there. Fire Stations were still located as they had been in the horse-drawn days with quite a few houses having only a single company quartered there.

In 1925 it was decided to embark on a program of building larger and better located fire stations suitable for motor apparatus and equipped with a view to greater comfort for the members.

One of the steam-propelled steam engines still in service with Engine Company 38 was finally discontinued on September 1, 1925. That year also saw the advent of two new units, namely a Foamite Apparatus on November 9 and the first mobile Lighting Plant on November 23. On May 3, 1926, the last two tractorized steam engines at Engine Companies 4 and 38, were discontinued.

The one remaining Chemical Company, No. 7, was deactivated on June 14, 1926 and the last tractorized City Service Truck at Ladder Company 25 was replaced by a straight motor unit on August 16, 1926.

Replacement of gasoline electric tractors on Water Towers with 4-wheel gasoline motor tractors started with Water Tower 4 (Reserve Tower) on November 12, 1926 and the last of these similarly replaced was that of Water Tower 2 on April 14, 1928.

The first of the new modern fire stations constructed under the program mentioned earlier was located on Parish Street, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester and it was occupied on February 15, 1928 by Engine Company 17, Ladder Company 7 and District Chief 10. Other new fire stations followed and this permitted the closing of some very old and outmoded ones.

Units in service at the end of 1928 were 50 Land Engine Companies, 3 Fire Boats, 31 Ladder Companies, 3 Water Towers and 2 Rescue Companies. Another Rescue Company was organized on May 31, 1929 after which the number and type of companies remained constant thru 1945.

Practically all the engine companies had a pumper and hosewagon, the latter equipped with chemical tanks. New hosewagons purchased in 1929 had booster tank, pump and booster hose and the first three received were assigned to Engine Companies 15, 38 and 39 on October 18, 1929. The first smoke ejectors were in service May 15, 1930.

A new "one and only" City Service Ladder Truck with booster equipment was assigned to Ladder Company 25 on December 2, 1931 and this was the last City Service Truck ever purchased.

The 3 fireboats used coal which required the boilers to be fired all the time, but one of them, Engine 44, was replaced by an oil-fired boat on December 8, 1931, resulting in considerable fuel savings.

In 1931, the High Pressure System had 18.48 miles of pipe and 501 hydrants. The depression had started and all budgets, including that of the fire department, had been severely cut. The last substantial apparatus deliveries occurred in 1931 and from then until 1947 purchases of new apparatus were far and few between. Manpower also declined due to the freeze on hiring.

In 1936 the High Pressure System had 18.72 miles of pipe and 503 hydrants. Among new apparatus delivered in 1936 was an Ahrens-Fix 1000 GPM pumper which was assigned to Engine Company 50 on March 16 and this was the only Ahrens-Fox motor unit ever owned by the department. An 85 ft. aerial ladder truck placed in service with Ladder Company 26 on March 18, 1936 was the first of this type with booster equipment. Few changes took place during the depression and the following war years and apparatus in service was becoming older without replacement.

On September 11, 1941 a 125 ft. metal aerial ladder truck was assigned to Ladder Company 8, with hydraulic hoist, enclosed cab and painted white. It was somewhat of a sensation, but had a short life because it was badly damaged on November 15, 1942 in a building collapse during a fire at 12-16 Maverick Square, East Boston, 5 alarms, Box 6153. After being rebuilt as a 100 ft. aerial truck, painted red, it was again reassigned to Ladder Company 8 on March 2, 1944 and what had once been the first and only 125 ft. aerial, was now also the first 100 ft. aerial to be used in Boston.

After World War II, an apparatus rehabilitation program was begun with substantial deliveries starting in 1947 and continuing for some time.

On December 31, 1947, the department's first Diesel Fireboat was in service with Engine Company 31 and the one remaining coal fired boat of Engine Company 47 was replaced by a Diesel boat on March 10, 1948.

In 1948 new hosewagons with Cardox equipment were received, the first of them being assigned to Engine Company 40 on July 19, 1948. To service these units, Cardox filling and maintenance facilities were installed at the quarters of Engine Company 37.

Seven ladder trucks with 85 ft. wood aerial ladders, hydraulically raised, were received and the first of them assigned to Ladder Company 17 on January 4, 1949. All other wood aerials then in service were spring raised.

Some City Service Ladder Trucks were still being used and their gradual replacement with 65 ft. Junior Aerial Trucks (hydraulically operated metal aerial) was started on March 21, 1949 when the first one was assigned to Ladder Company 27.

Three hosewagons equipped with Cardox and High Pressure Fog facilities were delivered in 1950, Engine Company 36 receiving the first one on March 8, 1950.

At the end of 1950 there were 50 Land Engine Companies, 3 Fireboats, 34 Ladder Companies, 2 Water Towers and 3 Rescue Companies.

On August 6, 1951 the new Headquarters Building at 115 Southamptton Street and adjoining maintenance facilities were occupied and former headquarters and the apparatus repair shop on Bristol Street and other detached facilities were abandoned.

There were few further changes until the start of a far-reaching reorganization on March 17, 1954 which will be covered in the next chapter.

FEDERAL AID SOUGHT

Mayor estimates storm damage to Boston at $17M — says city to file for federal reimbursement.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, on February 14, released a rough estimate of $17 million damage to city property during the "Great Blizzard of 1978," February 6 and 7.

He said the city's office of Federal Relations is working with federal officials to determine how much of the damage is reimbursible from the federal government. The Mayor said once accurate determinations can be made, the city will begin filing applications with the U.S. Disaster Assistance Administration, probably by early next week.

The Mayor warned that the damage estimates "are probably low" because the extent of damage to underground facilities, such as sewer and water systems, cannot be gauged yet.

The city is eligible for reimbursement because of its inclusion in the State of Disaster area, including eight counties in eastern Massachusetts, by the Carter Administration.

More than $5 million has been estimated for damage to the city's streets and sidewalks, while Health and Hospitals officials estimated $2 million in damage to city medical facilities, including City Hospital, and the Mattapan and Long Island hospitals for chronic illness. Damage to schools is estimated at $4 million.

The Mayor announced that all City of Boston snow removal costs involving private contractors, roughly $300,000 per day, since Saturday, when the city was declared in a state of disaster, will be borne by the federal government. Contractors will be paid directly by the U.S. government.

For all contract snow removal costs from Tuesday to Saturday, (Feb. 7-11), when the city was in a federal state of emergency, the federal government will provide 75 percent reimbursement.

"In the long run," the Mayor said, "these expenses which the city otherwise would have been responsible for would have made a drastic impact on the tax bills for Boston citizens. That would have been adding insult to injury."

If your slogan is chosen, it will appear, together with your name, on the window side of every Fall 1978 inspection sticker, where everyone in the car can see it.

"Keep A Safe Pace...Just in Case" was the winner in the Spring 1978 Contest. It was written by Richard Dumas, a Worcester High School student. Richard's slogan and his name will appear on the more than 3 million inspection stickers expected to be issued this Spring. Entries should be brief, and the deadline for all entries is March fifth.

HEART ASSOCIATION EXTENDS FUND DRIVE

"Cancelled Because of Snow" has become an all-too-familiar phrase this February. But one thing that cannot be cancelled because of our unpredictable New England weather is the need to check the tragic effects of heart disease, the number one cause of premature death and disability in Massachusetts.

Because snowbanks and closed roads prevented many Heart marchers from completing their assignments, the American Heart Association in Greater Boston has extended its major fund raising drive beyond February 12, originally proclaimed Heart Sunday.

In announcing the extension of Heart Sunday, Campaign Chairman George S. Silverman, Esq., of Lexington, said, "In the days ahead, 15,000 area volunteers will call upon their neighbors to support the life-saving programs of the American Heart Association.

"In numerous emergencies caused by the recent blizzard," he continued, "many lives were saved by emergency personnel and lay people certified by the Heart Association in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Heart disease is often not as dramatic as a blizzard, but in terms of lives lost is no less tragic."

Mr. Silverman urged Heart volunteers to do the following:

1. If you have not been able to complete your assignment, please do so as soon as possible.

2. Be sure to inform contributors that checks are acceptable.

3. Please return all Heart Sunday kits containing contributions to assigned collection points no later than February 28, the conclusion of Heart Month.

4. If you have any questions, contact the Heart office in Brookline at 738-4920.

"Please remember," Mr. Silverman said, "the Heart Association needs your support to go on fighting for your life."

"Sorry to wake you by dialing a wrong number."

"That's okay. I had to get up and answer the phone anyway."

PARKING BAN CLARIFIED

Because of the confusion which has arisen over the eligibility of some residents to take advantage of Boston's one dollar per day parking garage rate during the on-street parking ban, the city once again has clarified that plan.

The eligibility rules are tightly drawn mainly to accommodate residents of the neighborhoods in which the garages are located.

The garage eligibility rules are:

— The Boston Common Underground Garage: Residents of Back Bay and Beacon Hill only displaying residency stickers may park in these lots.

— The St. James Street City Garage: South End and Back Bay residents only with stickers may park in this lot.

— The Government Center Garage: North End and Beacon Hill residents displaying stickers are the only ones who may park here.

These are the only residents who are eligible for the one dollar per day arrangement at these garages.

Residency stickers must be displayed. If you are a resident of any of those neighborhoods, but do not have a residency sticker, you may secure one at your local little city hall. To apply for and receive the sticker, you must present your automobile registration for documentation.

And once again, the broad parameters of the city's downtown parking ban are: the Southeast Expressway, Massachusetts Avenue, the Charles River, and the Waterfront.

In the Downtown Restricted Parking Area, spelled out by those borders:

— parking is banned on all snow arteries and major streets.

— commuter parking on residential streets is banned on both sides; only residents, displaying a resident parking sticker for that neighborhood on their vehicle, will be permitted to park on the odd side of residential streets in the North End, Beacon Hill, Back Bay, Bay Village, and the South End.

— even side parking is completely banned in that area.

Elsewhere in the city, the ban on even side parking and on parking along major arteries is still in effect at this writing, February 13.

NEW APPOINTMENT

Mayor appoints Gordon Brigham Executive Director of the Boston Plan

Mayor Kevin H. White, on February 17, announced the appointment of Gordon L. Brigham, former associate vice-president for Planning and Development at the University of Massachusetts, as executive director of the Boston Plan.

"We have long recognized that the Boston Plan is of sufficient size and complexity to require the full-time commitment of an experienced professional who can direct the city's efforts to meet program goals and coordinate all phases of its further development and implementation," Mayor White said. "After a lengthy search, we have found such a man in Gordon Brigham.

"Mr. Brigham is an urban planner who brings to the city solid technical and administrative experience in urban revitalization and land-use planning, housing, transportation, and economic development," the Mayor continued. "He has demonstrated a clear understanding of Boston's needs and problems and extensive knowledge of the federal grant structure. I have every confidence that under his able direction the Boston Plan will move efficiently and smoothly into the implementation stage," Mayor White concluded.

As executive director of the Boston Plan, Mr. Brigham, with a small professional staff, will serve as the overall coordinator for the implementation of the Boston Plan and will work with the plan's Executive Policy Board to be formed by executive order of the Mayor and chaired by John Drew, director of the Office of Federal Relations.

Executive Director Brigham will be responsible for:

- Coordinating the planning activities of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, the Office of Program Development, the Office of Public Service, and the city's Economic Development and Industrial Commission, as they relate to the Boston Plan;
- Coordinating the efforts of line departments in the implementation of Boston Plan capital construction projects; and
- Maintaining liaison with state and federal officials (with the Office of Federal Relations) and building effective community and private sector participation into the Boston Plan process.

Mr. Brigham is a 1956 graduate of Yale University, where he received a bachelor's degree in architecture; and a 1963 graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received a master's degree in city planning.

Associate vice-president for planning of the University of Massachusetts, Mr. Brigham was responsible for coordination of planning and development activities for the three-campus, university system. He initiated the university's participation with the Peninsula Planning Committee in the proposed development plan for Columbia Point, which provided a starting point for the Columbia Point element of the Boston Plan.

He was a founding member and served as vice-president of Justin Gray Associates, Inc., of Cambridge (now Community Resources Group) a community development consulting firm, from 1970 to 1976.

Mr. Brigham previously served as director of the Model Cities Program in Cambridge and as assistant planning officer for Community Relations at MIT. He is currently on the faculty of the Department of Urban Affairs in Boston University's Metropolitan College.

THEY ASKED AND RECEIVED

Elderly Hotline receives over 6,200 emergency requests during blizzard

Boston's Elderly Hotline received 6,200 requests for service from the city's elderly during the recent blizzard, according to Elaine Guiney, Commissioner on Affairs of the Elderly.

Most of these emergency calls were requests for hot meals, heating oil, food vouchers, and prescribed medicine. Over 4,500 meals were delivered, dozens of people were provided with emergency homecare attention, and hundreds of elderly received shoveling assistance and shopping delivery services which helped to alleviate their isolation.

"A storm of this magnitude always hits hardest at those with greatest needs. Without the cooperation and assistance from the Mayor's Office of Public Service, the Youth Activities Commission, the volunteer Senior Shuttle drivers, the Homecare Corporations, and the Title VII Nutrition Programs, meeting the urgent needs of Boston's elderly would have been virtually impossible. We are very grateful to everyone who contributed in this effort to aid the elderly," Commissioner Guiney said.

The Commissioner also stated that the Commission has returned to its regular schedule. For information on the Commission's programs, Senior Shuttle reservations, or the Mobile Market schedule, senior citizens should call the Mayor's Elderly Hotline weekdays between 9 and 5 at 722-4646.

SNOW EMERGENCY, FEBRUARY 6-10, 1978

To: All Department Heads.

From: John E. Murphy, Personnel,
Richard Meyer, Labor Relations.

Because of the severity of the recent snowstorm, the unprecedented problems resulting from the storm, and the Governor's declaration of a State of Emergency, the City has determined that no non-emergency, regularly scheduled employee will suffer loss of pay for any day commencing February 6, 1978 and ending February 10, 1978 for absences caused by the storm.

In order to effectuate this policy, the payroll for the period in question should reflect a normal workweek. Those employees who performed services in excess of their normally scheduled shifts should be compensated for overtime pursuant to the applicable collective bargaining agreements.

It should be emphasized that the policy contained herein is the direct result of the seriousness of the recent snow emergency and the Governor's declaration of a State of Emergency which has no precedent in the recorded history of the City. Absent a recurrence of a disaster of the same magnitude and a similar declaration, employee absences will not be excused.

This policy of excused absences shall not apply to emergency service employees who did not report to work.

JOBS SET FOR HUB YOUTHS

Mayor White announces city will receive all of $23 million for pilot Youth Jobs Program.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on February 17, announced that Boston has been guaranteed funding of $23 million by the United States Department of Labor to provide jobs for the city's youth over an eighteen-month period.

Boston last month was granted part of its request of $23 million in "Project Yes" under the Youth Incentive Entitlement Pilot Project, as part of the Boston Plan emphasis on creating jobs for the city's youth.

The rest of the funds were pledged to the city by United States Department of Labor Administrator Robert Taggart in a February 7 letter to Charles Atkins, administrator of the city's Employment and Economic Policy Administration (EEPA).

Mr. Taggart said: "We plan to obligate $8.5 million from fiscal year 1978 for your operations this year, and the balance of the $23 million proposed in fiscal year 1979, provided Congress provides funds for the youth jobs program.

"If costs overrun the $8.5 million in fiscal year 1978 because of a greater enrollment (in the youth job program) than expected, other discretionary resources will be provided . . . in advance of fiscal year 1979 to cover expenses.

"You are undertaking a staggering administrative responsibility, but you were selected because you were among the best prime sponsors applying and I am sure you will succeed," Mr. Taggart said.

The Project Yes funds will provide about 6,000 jobs for Boston youth in school Districts 4 (Hyde Park), 5 and 6 (Dorchester-Franklin Field), and 7 (Roxbury), and other city neighborhoods, including South Boston.

The program is designed to provide incentive for teenagers not to drop out of school by providing them with part-time jobs during the school and full-time work in the summer.

EEPA, which is administering the Project Yes funds, is involved now in the application process and developing selection criteria.

Youngsters wishing to apply for a job or looking for information on their eligibility should call the Project Yes hotline at 723-3360 weekdays from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M.

EEPA Administrator Atkins said a number of job slots have been identified in both the public and private sector and that young people will be on the jobs by the end of March.

Mayor White said the city "is grateful to a lot of people who were involved in moving Boston through the application process," including the Boston Congressional delegation, headed by United States House Speaker "Tip" O'Neill.

He said the selection of Boston for the pilot project "is proof again that we have developed in the Boston Plan a workable document for federal officials to evaluate our requests for funding. Obviously we have scored early and scored high by securing $23 million in our first major program request.

He said "Boston won a big chunk of the federal money for this experimental youth jobs program because we convinced federal officials we could run the program best."

The city's application for the Project Yes program was developed by EEPA in conjunction with the Mayor's Office of Federal Relations. Boston was one of seven major cities nationwide to receive high-level, youth jobs funding.

FIRE PREVENTION EXHIBIT

Fire!

How many children know what to do if they wake up in the middle of the night and hear that shout? How many children know what to do if their clothing catches on fire?

Not many, according to national fire authorities, and that's the reason a major new exhibit on fire prevention opens February 20 at the Boston Children's Museum.

FIRE! shows children how to use fire alarms and emergency exits, how to cope with burns and clothing fires and how to recognize common household fire hazards.

Like all Children's Museum exhibits, FIRE! is full of activities. Kids practice "stop, drop and roll" and "cool the burn," play a game called Fire Dispatcher, try escape routes from the "bedroom" and test their knowledge of fire prevention in an electronic quiz.

Youthful firefighters can also try on fire helmets, coats, boots, mittens, a night hitch and self-contained breathing apparatus.

The "store" shows visitors how to choose products that make fire safety easy.

"Project Someone You love," a booklet produced by the Shriners Burn Institute and EDC, will be available for exhibit visitors. For teachers, copies of the EDC/Shriners "Project Burn Prevention" curriculum kits (K-3) will be in the museum's Kit Rental Department.

Based on experience gained from the exhibit, a workbook with instructions for building the exhibit modules, suggested activities and ready-to-use exhibit graphics will be distributed to fire departments throughout the United States. The exhibit and workbook are part of a national fire education project sponsored by the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration.

FIRE! will be at the Children's Museum on the Jamaica way through April 30. For exhibit hours, call the What's Up Line at 522-5454.

MAYOR PRAISES CITY'S RESPONSE TO BLIZZARD OF '78

Mayor Kevin H. White, on February 16, thanked Boston's Public Works, Police, Fire, Health and Hospitals, and Traffic and Parking Departments personnel for what he called "their outstanding contribution" to the recovery effort in the aftermath of the recent record-breaking blizzard.

Said Mayor White, "The people who worked in the city's agencies performed far above the regular call of duty. It was no small feat that the snow removal progressed as rapidly as it did, or as safely as it did. Many of the people who work in these departments worked double, and in some cases triple, shifts to battle the storm. They did their work well."

Mayor White added, "You know, when you are a mayor or work for a public safety agency, compliments are often few and far between. It is easier to criticize the imperfection of a job rather than to compliment its completion. But I will stack our response to the snow emergency against any city's response in America."

Mayor White took special note of the efforts of Speaker of the House Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill in securing the major federal disaster designation for Boston.

Said Mayor White, "Without the federal aid that designation carries, Bostonians would be forced to bear the extra burden of the storm on next year's tax bills. Tip doesn't need the bouquet, but without his help, we would have suffered even more hardship from the storm."

Praising the calm, cooperative manner in which Bostonians faced the storm, Mayor White thanked city residents for their patience in the face of adversity.

Said Mayor White, "The storm was, of course, a highly unusual situation, and the people of Boston, true to tradition, responded admirably.

"To all who worked so hard during the storm and its aftermath, I express the deep thanks of a grateful city."

WORTHWHILE PROGRAM AT BU

In response to a strong and growing demand for professionally trained public managers, Boston University offers qualified men and women an M.B.A. program in Public Management which may be pursued on either a full-time or part-time basis.

Initiated in 1975, the program provides management training with an emphasis on the unique skills required of effective managers of public sector and non-profit organizations. Core courses use decision-oriented case studies to develop in-depth analytic and strategy-making skills, emphasizing an ability to understand and deal effectively with the environment, the internal resources, and the operating context of public agencies.

Special sections of basic courses, such as accounting, marketing, finance, and operations management, have been restructured to focus on the concerns and problems of public sector and non-profit managers.

Over half the students currently enrolled in the program have had career experience in the public sector — city treasurer, Air Force contract negotiator, development director of a zoological society, assistant director of a national nutrition advocacy group, director of a municipal community development program.

These students — and others with less work experience — have entered the program to acquire strong management skills. Some will apply these skills to their current job situations; others will qualify for positions of greater responsibility.

Inquiries about Boston University's Public Management Program may be directed to Kathryn E. West, assistant director, Public Management Program, 212 Bay State Road, Boston, MA 02215 (telephone: 617-353-2312).

FEDERAL RELATIONS OFFICE: INSTANT SUCCESS

Mayor praises Federal Relations Office; releases its year-end report

Mayor Kevin H. White said he is "completely satisfied" with the first-year accomplishments of the city's Office of Federal Relations and expressed optimism that the groundwork laid this year with Congress and the Carter Administration would reap even greater benefits for Boston in 1978.

"First and foremost, the Office of Federal Relations has created a 'presence' for Boston in Washington," Mayor White declared. "The Congress and the White House are aware of our needs, problems, and goals, have been of great assistance to us, and now clearly view Boston as a city that 'has its act together.'"

"We, in turn, have been impressed with the Carter Administration's awareness of, interest in, and commitment to resolving urban problem turn, have been impressed with the Carter Administration's awareness of, interest in, and commitment to resolving urban problems and Boston's problems in particular," Mayor White continued. "While it has taken longer than we hoped for them to articulate a national urban policy, they have not been ignoring the cities. They have taken significant action in the areas of employment, job training, local public works, and transportation that have benefited us all and been helpful to Boston in the pursuit of funding for the Boston Plan and other city projects," he added.

In releasing a year-end summary of activities for the Office of Federal Relations (OFR) the Mayor cited the following achievements:

- Acting on its own or in cooperation with other city departments, OFR has brought in or received commitments for $66.5 million. All but slightly over $1 million is new money — that is, over and above the approximately $150 million the city receives annually from the federal government — and can be directly attributed to the efforts of OFR. (See report attached for grants received.)

- By intervening where funding was challenged, or by lobbying in Washington for or against specific legislative proposals (alone or in cooperation with other cities), OFR has saved the city additional millions of dollars. (See attached report for details.)

"With these achievements, plus the development of the Boston Plan, the Office of Federal Relations has more than justified the city's initial investment of money and staff to their efforts," Mayor White said.

John Drew, director of the Office of Federal Relations, added tance during its first year of operation. "I believe the office has been of value to the city, and that its value will increase based in large part on the relationships we established in 1977," Mr. Drew said. "Already, we are indebted to the Boston Congressional Delegation, Lieutenant Governor O'Neill's Office of Federal-State Relations, and groups such as the National League of Cities and the United States Conference of Mayors for the assistance they have given us throughout this past year.

"We have clearly earned their respect and that of the Carter Administration as well, as our input is now solicited and welcomed on important urban initiatives," Mr. Drew added.

He said that OFR's major objectives for 1978 are to move the Boston Plan from the planning to implementation stage; and to increase further the flow of federal dollars to Boston.

"The coming year holds real promise for the Boston Plan," Director

Drew added. "The recent confirmation of funding for Project YES was a great victory and we are looking for positive action as well on the $27 million, Urban Development Action Grant proposals submitted to HUD on January 31.

"If the level of cooperation we have received this past year both from the White House and the Congress is sustained, we have every reason to be optimistic," Mr. Drew concluded.

Ed. Note: Report follows.

SUMMARY OF ACTIVITIES FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1977

Introduction

The Office of Federal Relations (OFR) was created February 1, 1977, by Mayor Kevin H. White with a mandate to sharply increase the flow of federal funds to the city, and to ensure that the strengths, needs, and interests of Boston were kept well in mind by the federal government.

A year-end review of our accomplishments shows us to be in compliance with that mandate.

- Acting on our own, or in concert with other city departments, OFR has brought in or received promise of $66.5 million, the bulk of which is over and above the approximately $150 million that is received annually from the federal government.

- By intervening where funding was challenged, or by lobbying in Washington for or against specific legislative proposals, OFR has saved the city additional millions of dollars.

- OFR has created "a presence" for the City of Boston in Washington by establishing excellent relationships with the White House, the Congress, and with federal agencies.

• The Boston Plan has been well received, has provided us entry into the highest levels of the federal government, and has enhanced our reputation as a city that "has its act together." Because of it, our input has been solicited and welcomed by the Administration and the Congress in several important areas, including the formulation of the National Urban Policy.

• OFR's Washington staff has successfully served as Boston's link with representatives of other cities and with Washington-based advocacy groups, such as the United States Conference of Mayors, the National League of Cities, and the Council on Urban Economic Development. All have been of invaluable assistance to us in lobbying and other efforts in Washington.

The groundwork we have laid this past year will serve us well in 1978. Throughout the coming year our efforts to increase federal funding will continue. Currently, some $79.2 million worth of proposals are pending federal action, including Boston Plan proposals totaling $58.7 million.

In addition, we are in the process of preparing a Federal Agenda for 1978, which will serve as a guide for OFR, our Congressional representatives, federal agency staff, and the White House in meeting Boston's needs for the coming year.

Accomplishments

The Boston Plan

The groundwork has been laid, the Boston Plan has been favorably received, and 1978 holds promise of the first funding commitments necessary to move our proposals from the planning to implementation stage.

Internally, the Plan continues to be coordinated by OFR, awaiting the appointment of an executive director. The Executive Policy Committee continues to function smoothly, deliberates weekly, and signs off on all work plans, proposals, and decisions related to the Plan.

All planning and implementation responsibilities for each of the four areas have been delegated to appropriate city departments as we await the receipt of the first federal grants.

We expect action within the first quarter of 1978 on the following:

Youth Entitlement Systems Proposal filed with Department of Labor by EEPA — Action expected January 9 . . . $23,000,000
Inter-Departmental Planning Grant to be presented to the White House Inter-Agency Task Force in January . . . $3,000,000
EDA Grant for the Harbor and Blue Hill Avenue . . . $5,000,000
EDA Loan for Industrial Development . . . $1,000,000
New Communities Planning Grant/ HUD/for Columbia Point, submitted by BRA . . . $270,000
UDAG Applications/HUD/for BMIP, Charlestown Navy Yard, Lafayette Place and Blue Hill Avenue — to be submitted by OFR January 31, with action expected within sixty days . . . $27,454,060
Total . . . $59,724,060

The Boston Plan continues to provide the focus for future economic development in the city and has served as a catalyst for cooperative public and private sector investment. Since August, the Mayor and the staff of OFR have held over 100 individual or group meetings with White House officials; federal agency staff in both Washington and Boston; Congressional representatives and staff; business and institutional representatives; media, both local and national; and community groups in the four Boston Plan areas. Private sector interest in the Boston Plan has mushroomed as OFR staff has conducted meetings with five development corporations, five private business concerns, and four major banks.

James Howell, senior vice-president of the First National Bank is now in the process of setting up a business advisory board, staffed by an assistant vice-president, which will work with OFR and the executive director of the Plan in evaluating business feasibility and developing business contacts and investments.

The Boston Congressional delegation has assured the Mayor and OFR that we can count on their support throughout the coming year for favorable action on individual grant applications submitted as part of the Boston Plan.

We will also be working closely with them to assure that existing programs up for legislative reauthorization are modified in ways that will facilitate achievement of Boston Plan goals.

In addition, White House officials have underlined their commitment to assist Boston in coordinating agency funding with direct action. In early January we will be making a formal presentation to the White House Inter-Agency Task Force, at which time we will outline, at their request, the first commitments necessary to begin implementing Boston Plan proposals.

Office of Federal Compliance

Before the creation of the Office of Federal Relations, responsibilities for ensuring compliance with federal grant regulations rested solely with individual city departments.

Given the Mayor's commitment to sharply increase the flow of federal dollars to Boston, and OFR's awareness of the complexity of effectively managing large numbers of grants that would come through the Boston Plan, the need to centralize compliance responsibilities was recognized and acted upon. The Office of Federal Compliance was created as an arm of OFR.

Advertising and other copy must, except in emergencies, be in hand at the City Record office by noon, Tuesday of each week to insure its publication in the Monday issue.

The Office of Federal Compliance, with a staff of fourteen, now serves as the central point of information on all federal regulations and has developed systems to ensure that city departments comply in an efficient and uniform manner.

It now exercises all technical responsibility for compliance with programmatic, equal employment opportunity, affirmative action, and fiscal reporting regulations.

Administration of the Local Public Works Program

One of OFR's first mandates from Mayor White was to work to increase EDA funding to Boston for Local Public Works, now the major funding source for the city's capital improvement program. The Mayor was disappointed with the city's Round I allocation of $7.7 million and asked us to take a role with the Congress in rewriting the formula to benefit older cities with high rates of unemployment.

By joining forces with other cities who had been similarly disappointed with Round I, and working through Senator Edward Kennedy's Office, we played an active role in the formula revision that resulted in Boston's being awarded a Round II allocation of $15.9 million, an increase of nearly $9 million over Round I.

OFR has also exercised full responsibility over the administration of the Local Public Works Program organizing and overseeing with city departments the bid advertising, prebid conferences, and bid awards to ensure full compliance with EDA's regulations in administering the program.

Round II brought a new requirement that 10 percent of the allocation be "set aside" for minority contractors and subcontractors. While that requirement has been challenged on constitutional grounds in several cities, OFR has developed systems to successfully meet (in fact, we have exceeded) the 10 percent minority set aside requirement.

Boston Marine Industrial Park Acquisition

The city's option to purchase the former South Boston Naval Annex was threatened earlier this year when shipping interests attempted to block Congressional approval of the land transfer. OFR worked extensively with the Government Operations Committee, Congressmen O'Neill, Moakley, and Burke to ensure the city's right to purchase the property, which is now the BMIP. Under the direction of EDIC, the park is being developed and already employs 800 people. The final purchase of the BMIP was made possible with the cooperation of the Massachusetts Land Bank.

Massport Negotiations: Containerport

OFR, in cooperation with Michael Westgate of EDIC, has worked for several months to resolve the issue of Containerport location with Massport. We are currently awaiting final architectural renderings and specifications and expect a decision shortly after the first of the year.

OMB Negotiations to Increase the Budget of EDA

Mayor Kevin White, through OFR, has taken the lead in urging substantially increased funding for the Economic Development Administration (EDA) of the Department of Commerce. He has sent a formal written communication, which was hand-delivered to the President, urging sharply increased funding; and stressing that agency's potential for leveraging private sector investment in urban areas. City officials have also met with top policy officials at the Office of Management and Budget to affirm the importance in revitalizing the nation's most distressed cities.

OFR's Washington staff has learned that EDA's budget has in fact been increased substantially. Although no public announcement has been made, unofficial information indicates it has been nearly doubled.

Action to Fund EDA 204, No Interest Revolving Loan Program

In 1965, legislation was passed enabling the Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration (EDA) to initiate under Title II a no-interest, revolving loan program to cities for industrial development and job-creation efforts. But since 1965, no money had been appropriated to fund the program. OFR learned of this and undertook action to ensure its funding. Boston joined forces with Philadelphia and Detroit and a coalition of forty other cities to convince EDA and the Office of Management and Budget of the need to fund the program on a demonstration basis. Boston officials met with representatives of both agencies and gave specific examples of how that money could be used by Boston and other cities. The program was subsequently funded as a demonstration project, for $15 million nationally and Boston's input was sought on the preparation of the regulations. OFR is now in the process of developing, under the Boston Plan, a proposal seeking a $1 million, 204, no-interest loan.

Moneys brought in 1977

- *1. Local Public Works, Round II, EDA $15,929,772
(See above.)
- *2. Boston Correctional Detention Facility... $15,000,000
An amendment to the Clean Waters Act of 1977, filed by Speaker O'Neill, at OFR's request, approved by the House and Senate, and signed by the President, will provide up to $15,000,000 for the construction of a modern, correctional facility to replace the Charles Street Jail. The $15 million will be paid the city in return for its turning over property at Deer Island for the construction of a state-owned, secondary, sewage-treatment plant.
- *3. Penn Central Tax Obligations..... $4,000,000
Boston led a national effort to reject Penn Central's initial tax payment offer. Legislation written in Boston by Assistant Collector-Treasurer Newell Cooke and supported by a coalition of communities (Cleveland, Ohio officials being principal among them), resulted in higher, up-front cash settlements for all communities. Boston received $4,000,000.
- *4. Amtrak Repair Facilities at Southampton and Readville..... $27,100,000
While a decision on the construction of a heavy repair facility has been put off indefinitely by Amtrak, Boston will receive $27.1 million for the construction of two, light repair facilities at Southampt-on and Readville, which will produce 320 jobs. The city is indebted to Senators Kennedy and Brooke, Congressmen O'Neill, Moakley, and Burke, the Governor, Lieutenant Gov-ernor and state officials who lent extensive support to pre-sentations to Amtrak officials.

5. Summer Youth Employment Program Discretionary Funding $500,828

Working with the city's Man-power director, Deputy Mayors Kane and Jones, Action for Boston Community Develop-ment, and through the office of Senator Edward Brooke, OFR was able to convince the Department of Labor to allot additional discretionary funds totaling half a million dollars for Boston's Summer Youth Employment Program.

*6. Skill Training Improvement Program, Department of Labor $1,499,000

This new program (STIP) was closely monitored by OFR and seen as in keeping with the job creation goals of the Boston Plan. Information was passed on to EEPA for the development of its STIP appli-cation, which was approved and will provide high skill training for low-income, Bos-ton residents in marine, ma-chine, and metal trades.

*7. Youth Entitlement System Planning Grant, Depart-ment of Labor $45,000

OFR worked closely with EEPA in its pursuit of applica-tions with the Department of Labor for Project YES. With the help of Congressman O'Neill, Senator Kennedy, and the Boston Congressional delegation, Boston was chosen a finalist to compete for $23 million in job-training funds for disadvantaged youth in the four areas of the Boston Plan. The planning grant was awarded to prepare Project YES' final proposal.

*8. Neighborhood Action for Public Safety Grant, LEAA $370,000

OFR worked with the Mayor's Office of Criminal Justice and the Office of Public Service on the pursuit of this grant, which will provide funds to mount community-based, crime prevention programs in eight city neighborhoods. The Boston Congressional Dele-gation assisted us in gaining approval for the applications.

*9. Import/Export Stimulation Grant/Commerce . $143,000

OFR worked with EDIC on this Department of Commerce grant that will assist Boston businessmen in finding over-seas markets for their products.

*10. Two 302 Planning Grants/ EDA $300,000

A 302 planning grant of $150,-000 awarded to the city's Department of Public Facili-ties was about to be with-drawn earlier this year by EDA because specific plans for its use had not been drawn. OFR learned of this and developed a proposal to use the money for develop-ment of the Boston Plan. The proposal was accepted by EDA and the money pre-served. OFR and EEPA then attracted a second grant of $150,000 for use by EEPA in the development of job pro-grams related to the Boston Plan.

11. Section 312 Housing Rehabili-tation Grant HUD. $800,000

The city's Housing Depart-ment has been awarded an additional $800,000 in HUD section 312 funds for its Homesteading Program, cited as having the best perform-ance record in the country.

*12. Math Careers for Women Department of Education/ HEW $78,310

OFR monitored the progress of this application filed by Community Schools. Its ap-proval will provide training and counseling for women interested in entering math-related professions.

13. Boston Urban Court Project/ LEAA $372,000

Ofr worked with Office of Criminal Justice and the District Attorney's Office for third-year funding for this project. It was approved and awaits approval of matching funds by the City Council.

14. Major Violators/ LEAA $275,000

Worked with same agencies as above.

15. Expansion Arts Program: Na-tional Endowment for the Arts $15,000

OFR monitored the progress of this application submitted by the Office of Cultural Affairs.

16. Community Arts Service Pro-gram National Endowment for the Arts $10,000

Filed by OCA and monitored by OFR.

17. Folk Arts Grant: Ethnic Music NEA $7,500

Filed by OCA and monitored by OFR.

18. Adult Allied Health Prepara-tion Program HEW, through State Department of Voca-tional Education . . $71,000

Filed by Community Schools and monitored by OFR.

Total Funds Brought in 1977 $66,516,410.

Other Actions: 1977

By intervening where funding was threatened or by lobbying success-fully in Washington for or against specific legislative proposals, OFR saved the city millions of dollars. Such actions included:

1. Community Development Block Grant

Funds $28,900,000

Faced with the prospect of HUD-imposed conditions that would have tied up substan-tial amounts of our third year of CDBG funds for several months, and have had a seri-ous impact on the operation of several city departments, OFR, working with Andy Olins,

*Signifies "new money."

the Mayor's housing advisor and John Weiss, director of the Office of Program Development, successfully negotiated an agreement with HUD to release the funds without delay.

2. Defeat of Social Security Bill

Amendment . . . $23,000,000
OFR's Washington staff, working with the United States Conference of Mayors and Congressman James A. Burke, worked to defeat an amendment to the Social Security Act that would have mandated coverage for employees of state and local governments and cost Boston over $23,000,000 annually. OFR prepared research materials for the USCM and lobbied with them on the Hill. After two attempts to defeat the amendment in committee failed, it was finally defeated by a vote of the House.

3. Energy Conservation for Municipal Buildings $4,000,000

OFR wrote an amendment to the National Energy Act to allow municipalities to apply for federal funds to undertake energy audits and design systems for improved energy efficiency in municipal buildings. (Previously only schools and hospitals were eligible.) The amendment was filed by Barbara Mikulski (D. Maryland) and was passed. This, combined with other energy programs, could ultimately save $4 million annually.

4. Environmental Protection

Agency Funding for Construction of Major Sewer Lines. . . $58,000,000
When the city's plan for construction of major sewer lines was questioned by EPA, due to recent regulation changes, it appeared that the city would lose the grant allocated it for that purpose. With the assistance of Lieutenant Governor O'Neill and David Standley, commissioner of Environmental Quality Engineering, OFR succeeded in obtaining an extension and worked with Commissioner Casazza to have the city's plan redesigned to meet the new requirements.

Proposals Pending: 1978

In addition to the Boston Plan proposals listed above as pending, OFR has the following applications pending federal action:

1. Arson Prevention

Project $190,000
OFR in cooperation with the city's Housing Department and a Symphony Road tenants group has filed an application with the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration to develop a city-wide arson prevention program. Action is expected on it in early spring.

2. Urgent Needs Moneys —

HUD $12,000,000
OFR is working with the BRA for favorable action on this application which will provide the funding to complete urban renewal projects.

3. Renovation Funds for BCH

Surgical Service, National Institute of Health —
HEW $6,200,000
OFR is working with the Board of Trustees of Health and Hospitals to expedite action on this application.

4. Office of Minority Business Enterprise, Department of Commerce $150,000

OFR in cooperation with the city's Minority Business Office has filed an application for a $150,000 grant to assist that city agency in carrying out its responsibilities. It awaits action.

5. Community Education Training Grant — HEW. . $25,000

OFR is working with Community Schools in tracking this application.

6. Offender Manpower Services Grant, LEEA Discretionary $268,000

OFR is working with MOCJ on this application which has been held in abeyance pending release of new regulations.

7. Administration on Aging,

Title III $300,000

8. Administration on Aging,

Title III $30,000
OFR is pursuing both grants in behalf of Elderly Commission.

9. Section 312 Housing Rehabilitation Program. $1,400,000

The Department of Housing has filed an application with HUD for additional housing rehabilitation moneys for community development areas of the city and has requested our assistance in pursuing the application.

10. Through 16. Boston Plan grants $58,666,560

Actions Pending: 1978

OFR is working with various city departments on the development of proposals for both public and private funding.

In addition to working with Chuck Atkins of EEPA to attract a Job Corps Training site for Boston, OFR is also working with Penal Commissioner Celester on attracting private sector funding for a prison trades program.

As we begin working with other departments on the preparation of the 1978 Federal Agenda, we expect additional departmental needs to surface.

Federal Agenda: 1978

Included in our main initiatives for 1978 will be efforts to amend federal funding formulas in ways that would benefit Boston and other older cities. We have proposed that all formulas based on population, and all entitlement programs, be amended to take daytime population (residential and commuter) into account. A similar proposal to have federal programs take into account the percentage of jobs within a given city that are held by non-residents is also being explored. Congressman Henry S. Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs, has already expressed interest in our proposals and has offered to initiate a formal study of them through the Congressional Research Service.

Another OFR proposal would have federal allocation programs take into account the cost-of-living differential that exists between various regions of the country. An area with a higher living cost would receive additional federal dollars so that the amount of real benefit would be equal to that received in an area where costs are lower.

OFR will also be paying careful attention to several programs up for legislative reauthorization to ensure that any changes recommended and passed are reflective of urban needs. The Local Public Works Program, CETA, Countercyclical Fiscal Assistance, and programs in transportation, HEW and HUD are all up for review, reorganization, or substantial budget increases in 1978.

The Urban Policy, Welfare and Tax Reform proposals, and continued attempts at governmental reorganization will also be monitored closely by OFR.

We are confident that the ground-work we have laid this year, the contracts we have made, and the respect we have gained will enable us to continue our successful efforts in behalf of the city.

IT'S GOOD NEWS!

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey announced today that, for the first eleven months of 1977, Massachusetts had a lower motor vehicle fatality rate on a per-population basis than any other state in the country. The death rate was 13.0 per 100,000 population during the eleven-month period when 692 motor vehicle traffic deaths were reported. The Registrar noted that this figure is 14 percent less than the corresponding figure in 1975, and 6 percent less than in 1976. These are the latest figures available and they show that there were only two months during the eleven-month stretch when Massachusetts did not have either the lowest or second lowest death rate per population in the nation. It was also noted that the national death rate for the same period was 22.5 deaths per 100,000 population.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT: ITS HISTORY

Part 4

The Department Reorganized.

The reorganization started in 1954 was the most drastic in the history of the department. It began on March 17 with changes in the command structure. On March 24 the oil-fired boat and its company, Engine Company 44, were permanently out of service, leaving operational the two, diesel-powered boats, Engines 31 and 47.

On March 31, 1954, the three fire-fighting divisions were reduced to two and on May 4, the fourteen existing fire districts were rearranged into eleven districts. Four ladder companies were deactivated on May 25 and this was followed by the deactivation of three engine companies on July 13. In connection with these changes, some companies had been relocated.

A start was made to convert existing pumpers to single-unit service with 1½-inch preconnected, attack lines and special nozzles, the first of which were in service on July 27 with Engine Companies 49 and 51. These changes necessitated a thorough training program for the entire department to acquaint everyone with the new methods. Plans called for the conversion of many engine companies from double-unit to single-unit status.

On September 21, Rescue Company 2 was deactivated and Engine Companies 11, 14, 18, 34, and 53 started service as Engine Squads to perform combination engine and rescue service with specially equipped single-unit pumpers. On November 9, Rescue Company 1 was discontinued and double-unit Engine Company 7 started engine and rescue service, their hosewagon having been equipped for this service. This left only one regular Rescue Company in service downtown.

At the end of 1954 there were forty-three Land Engine Companies, two Fire Boats, five Engine Squads, thirty Ladder Companies, two Water Towers and 1 Rescue Company.

Additional engine companies were changed to single-unit service in 1955. The year 1956 saw the introduction of squad-type apparatus for the Engine Squads, the first of these specially built units going to Squad 53 on January 12.

On April 26, 1956, Ladder Company 8 had the first truck with crew seat back of the cab and another innovation was started by converting pumpers of double-unit engine companies to single-unit operation, companies so equipped being referred to as "Combination Single-Double Unit" and the first to operate in this manner was Engine Company 3 on November 13, 1956. The largest pumpers were of 1,000 GPM capacity, but in 1957 three 1,250 GPM pumpers were received with the first in service at Engine Company 2 on March 29.

The Fire Department had used the Navy Fire School on East First Street for training purposes. On November 13, 1960, its own training academy at Moon Island was dedicated and the use of the Navy Fire School discontinued.

Additional companies had been discontinued and others relocated so that at the end of 1961 there were forty Land Engine Companies, two Fireboats, five Engine Squads, twenty-nine Ladder Companies, and 1 Rescue Company, a total of seventy-seven companies compared to ninety-two at the end of 1953.

All apparatus except the fireboats had gasoline engines, but on May 6, 1967, the first two units converted from gasoline to diesel operation, were in service at Engine Company 2 and Ladder Company 26. Another new type of operation was started on July 12, 1967, when Engine Company 13 was equipped with a single-unit pumper and a separate rescue van to perform engine and rescue service in Division 2. It was designated "Rescue-Pumper Unit." This same company received the first pumper with automatic transmission on June 27, 1968.

During 1969, the five engine squads were changed back to regular engine company operation with the last two discontinuing rescue service on July 31 (29 and 45). Two Aerial Towers replaced ladder companies in 1970, on March 23 and November 18, respectively, and the first SQUART apparatus was introduced on October 3, 1970, when Engine Company 26 received a hosewagon so equipped.

The first 1,500 GPM pumpers were delivered in 1971 with the first two assigned to Engine Companies 28 and 33 on July 9.

One City Service Truck was still being used by Ladder Company 31 (Long Island) and its replacement by a 65-foot Junior Aerial Truck on February 16, 1972 removed the last City Service Truck permanently. On June 7, 1972, a new fireboat in service with Engine Company 47 had SQUART equipment and another SQUART hosewagon, this time with booster equipment, was assigned to Engine Company 17 on October 17, 1972.

On October 25, 1972, the "Rescue-Pumper Unit" was replaced by a new Rescue Company 2 which started service that day with the first diesel-powered, rescue van.

A novelty for Boston were some single-stage 1,500 GPM pumpers, Engine Company 12 receiving the first one on August 15, 1973.

The last spring-raised, wood aerial at Ladder Company 27 was removed from active service on September 21, 1973, and the last hydraulic, wood aerial at Ladder Company 19 on October 17, 1973.

Much new apparatus has been acquired; new fire stations have been built; others are under construction, and on May 31, 1976, the status of the department is as follows:

Two Fire-Fighting Divisions in charge of Deputy Chiefs;

Twelve Fire Districts and one Special Service Area in charge of District Chiefs;

Thirty-nine Land Fire Stations, one Fire Boat Station;

Seventy-eight Fire Companies —

Forty-four Land Engine Companies (twelve double and thirty-two single-unit)

81st FOR MUNICIPAL PRINT SHOP CHAPEL

The Municipal Printing Plant was established in March of 1897 by Mayor Josiah Quincy for the purpose of supplying the city's printing needs. Mayor Hugh O'Brien was one of the four founders of Boston Typographical Union 13 and served as secretary-treasurer of the local.

The City Plant headed by Frank F. Chin, is capable of supplying the city with all its printing needs, from business cards and social announcements, to legal briefs, annual reports, and brochures. Many of the city's printing needs are unique in that they are required by law to be printed, but the small quantity needed is not considered worth the trouble of outside commercial printers. The plant is at 174 North Street, Boston, built in 1932, employs a total of fifty-eight unheralded, dedicated persons including compositors, proofreaders, pressmen, bindery workers, office staff, and maintenance men.

The top quality work produced at the plant is evidenced by the end result and the numerous encomiums received for a job well done.

The City Record (edited by Joseph J. Fahey) is printed weekly at the Printing Plant, under the direction of Mayor Kevin H. White, and is the official chronicle of the City of Boston. Through the City Record, advertisements for bids on city contracts are published, also notice of awarding of contracts. News from City Hall and the Mayor's Office is printed weekly along with Fire and Police Department orders and department changes.

INTERESTING PROGRAMS AT SCIENCE MUSEUM

March, Friday-night programs at Boston's Museum of Science offer tasty fare for jaded winter appetites.

On March 10 is "Locks of Iran" at 7 and 8 p.m. Run as an adjunct to the Museum exhibit of the same title, the film introduces three villages where the last remnants of the locksmith's craft are carried on. On March 17 is "In the Beginning," a Kenneth Clark film which examines the beginnings of civilization as expressed in the buildings, art, and hieroglyphics of ancient Egypt. It is shown at 7 and 8 p.m.

On March 24 the subject is "Underwater New England," a slide and lecture program at 7:30 p.m. It is given by Jeff Rotman, Belmont, photographer and diver, who focuses on marine animal life found along the New England coast north of Cape Cod.

On March 31, Action for Children's Television presents "Sweet Sell — Kids, Food, and TV" at 7:30 p.m. The program is led by Jean Johnson, ACT resource director, and Dr. William Dietz, pediatrician at Children's Hospital.

Friday nights are dollar nights, when visitors of all ages are admitted for $1. Parking is also $1. Both rates apply from 5 to 10 p.m.

BPL RESUMES SUNDAY HOURS

As a result of a recent supplemental budget recommended by the Mayor and voted by the City Council, the Trustees of the Boston Public Library have announced the resumption of Sunday hours in the Central Library from 2 to 6 p.m. During Sunday hours most departments provide full service in handling research and circulating materials, assisting patrons, and providing special exhibits and programs. Curtailed during the serious financial crisis of the past year, Sunday openings have been traditionally popular with family groups, students, and tourists as well as the patrons who use library facilities daily.

A second major announcement by the Trustees is the restoration of winter hours in all branch libraries. The winter schedule provides for additional evening hours in branches throughout the city as well as Saturday hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in fourteen of the twenty-five branch libraries. Evening and Saturday hours of opening in branches have for years served as valuable, popular periods of use for families, working people and visitors.

In describing these changes the Trustees of the Library promised additional announcements in the near future on bookmobile service and the opening of two new branch libraries.

POSTAL SERVICE WILL SEEK BIDS FOR POSTAGE STAMP PRINTING

The Postal Service announced on February 22, it intends to seek bids from private sector printing firms to print and package for shipment a total of four commemorative stamps for issuance during 1979 and 1980.

All United States postage stamps, including commemorative issues, currently are printed in Washington, D.C., by the Department of the Treasury's Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where they are packed for shipment through the mail to post offices.

The Postal Service said it will seek bids from private firms to determine if stamp production costs, which last year amounted to $43.6 million, can be lowered through competitive bidding.

Printing costs alone increased more than 90 percent between Fiscal Years 1974 and 1977. It cost an average of 85 cents for each thousand stamps of all kinds — regular issues and commemorative — printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Fiscal Year 1974 and an average of $1.65 per thousand in Fiscal 1977, the Postal Service said.

The four commemorative issues for which bids will be sought will represent a total of about 600 million stamps, slightly more than one percent of the anticipated total for the two-year period. The stamp subjects have not yet been determined. The Postal Service said it expects to gain enough experience from the private sector venture to determine possible additional sources of stamp production in the future.

The Postal Service said it is developing an invitation for bids for potential bidders. The invitation is expected to be completed within eight weeks and the bid solicitation will be announced officially in the Commerce Business Daily.

Firms wishing to be advised of the issuance of the official solicitation may write to Office of Contracts, Room 1000, U. S. Postal Service, Washington, D. C. 20260, the Postal Service said.

HEART CAMPAIGN FACES "CRISIS"

One of the effects of the "Worst Storm of the Century" has been its devastating impact upon the 1978 Heart Drive, according to Atty. George S. Silverman, of Lexington, general chairman of the Heart Campaign in Greater Boston.

In a recent report, Mr. Silverman announced that because of the state of emergency that existed on February 12 — officially designated as Heart Sunday — many of the 15,000 Heart marchers in the Boston area were unable to call upon their neighbors to enlist support for the lifesaving programs of the American Heart Association.

"This year the snow may severely impair the ability of the Heart Association to continue many of its programs in the Greater Boston area," Mr. Silverman said. "Without the support of citizens concerned about the number one cause of premature death and disability in Massachusetts, our work in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), the Heart Saver Program, and cardiovascular research may have to be cut back. This will amount to a significant setback in our fight against heart disease in this area," he predicted.

Mr. Silverman urged residents of Greater Boston not contacted by a Heart marcher during February, Heart Month, to contribute generously to the Heart Campaign by mailing their contributions directly to the American Heart Association, Greater Boston Division, 112 Cypress Street, Boston, MA 02146.

"More than ever before," Mr. Silverman concluded, "we need your generous support to help the American Heart Association go on fighting for your life."

MOTORISTS, BE CONSIDERATE!

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey has requested all motorists to extend the utmost consideration to emergency vehicles on the way to or from an emergency.

"Oftentimes the driver may have the radio volume turned up too high and he or she won't hear an ambulance or fire truck, or other emergency vehicle," said Mr. Mackey, and he continued by saying that radio volume should be kept at a level that allows the driver to hear emergency vehicles, bicyclists, and other motorists horns.

General Order No. 10

SPECIAL COMMENDATION

All members of the Boston Fire Department who were on duty during the recent severe snowstorm are to be highly commended for their devotion to duty. The personal efforts made by members in reporting for duty under most adverse conditions reflect their spirit and dedication which has been a long tradition in this department.

This emergency was one of the most severe tests that this city and the Fire Department have faced in my memory. Every conceivable type of emergency was responded to and successfully concluded by this department, thanks to the sincere dedication and ingenuity of the officers and fire fighters responding to alarms and the performance of the Herculean tasks of carrying and raising ladders and running long hose lines in hip-deep snow to control the more than fifteen multiple alarms that were responded to during the emergency. Every fire was kept within reasonable bounds.

Special recognition must be given to those divisions who many times are forgotten and taken for granted. The emergency motor squad worked under extremely difficult conditions. Without their expertise, fire-fighting background, and sense of duty, this department would have been in serious trouble.

The Fire Alarm Office which operated under heavy pressure due to the condition of the streets, number of multiple alarms, and tremendous number of telephone calls, performed an outstanding service. They maintained their efficiency and contributed greatly to the effective response of the fire companies.

As Fire Commissioner of the City of Boston, I am extremely proud and pleased by your actions. I have received numerous compliments from citizens and public officials. They all share with me a feeling of pride in this department and a sense of security because of you.

"February 3, 1978.

Commissioner Paul:

I am writing to you to express my thanks on behalf of the Fidelity Building for the prompt response of your District 3 fire companies to an emergency call yesterday.

A Boston Edison transformer beneath the sidewalk at Water and Congress Streets exploded, blowing out windows in Gallagher's Restaurant in our building and causing a loud noise and concussion.

Within two minutes District Chief Vincent D. Kane was on the scene with his men.

They conducted themselves in a truly professional manner in their search of our premises and in dealing with the various people involved. Chief Kane in particular was courteous and professional in his conduct.

Once again, my thanks to your department for their assistance.

Sincerely,

John W. Koza,

Vice-president and General Manager.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT: ITS HISTORY

Part 5

A Brief Historical Sketch — Boston Fire Alarm System

As late as the first part of the nineteenth century, rapid means of communication were non-existent until the perfection, on May 24, 1844, of the electromagnetic telegraph by Samuel F. B. Morse. Its introduction revolutionized communications by permitting messages to be transmitted instantly over long distances.

On May 30, 1845, Dr. William F. Channing of Boston, a graduate of Harvard University and the University of Pennsylvania, published an article in the Boston Daily Advertiser, describing in general terms how a practical fire alarm telegraph system could be constructed.

He convinced the Boston city government in 1851, when money was appropriated for the construction of such a system, based on plans developed by Dr. Channing and his associate Moses G. Farmer, a "telegraphic engineer." It was the first such system in the world.

It embodied all the principles in use today, namely closed, electrically supervised circuits, street, fire alarm boxes with code wheels, and key breaks determining the number of current interruptions which produced coded signals on local instruments at a central office where an operator transmitted the signals received over separate alarm circuits to the Fire Department. The system also featured telegraphic communication, by key and sounder, between the street boxes and the central office.

The completed system was placed in service at twelve noon of April 28, 1852, with the first fire alarm office being located in the city building at Court Square and Williams Court. There were a superintendent, fire alarm operators, and repairmen, the first such employees in and outside of the United States.

The original system had forty street boxes on three box circuits and nineteen alarm bells on three alarm circuits and the first alarm of fire was received at 8:25 p.m. on April 29, 1852. All of the boxes were of the manual, crank type with locked, outside doors and the boxes were painted black.

The first, sector-type boxes, started by pulling the hook, were introduced experimentally in 1864.

A new fire alarm office, with improved equipment, was opened on December 26, 1865, in the top story of the then new City Hall at 45 School Street. Here, as had been the case at the Court Square office, all circuits entered the office overhead, all outside wiring being of aerial type.

On December 11, 1868, the purchase of additional, improved, sector-type boxes was authorized and within a short time, all of the original crank-type boxes were replaced.

To establish communications between Headquarters, the Fire Alarm Office, and the various district headquarters, so-called dial telegraph instruments were introduced in 1874.

To provide more rapid access to boxes for the purpose of giving alarms, the first "keyless" (T-handle) door replaced the key door on Box 42 at Tremont and Winter Streets on April 16, 1881, and on May 2, 1881, it was ordered that fire alarm boxes were to be painted red instead of black.

On February 28, 1882, the Fire Department ordered the installation of telephones at Headquarters, the Fire Alarm Office and at fire stations, but the system was not entirely completed until 1885.

Late in 1892, the first underground, fire alarm cable was installed with the first connections to this cable being made on June 14, 1893. The first box to be connected to underground service was Box 54 on Beach Street, opposite Oxford Street, on October 1, 1893. In 1894, a few boxes were equipped with red identification lights for the first time.

On May 20, 1895, a new Fire Alarm Office was in service on the top floor of the recently completed Headquarters building at 60 Bristol Street, featuring modern and improved equipment. Here, for the first time, all circuits entered the building from underground ducts. By October 29, 1907, all public fire alarm boxes had been provided with keyless doors.

To improve the means of locating grounds and opens on circuits, the first test switches were installed on May 1, 1908, at the quarters of Engine Company 19 and these facilities were thereafter extended to all fire stations.

The first succession, non-interfering box was in service on August 6, 1913, at East and South Streets (Box 59) and thereafter, older interfering boxes were gradually replaced by this new type. On November 8, 1913, the present four-digit, box-numbering system was started.

The first, two-way radio system for Fire Department use was in service in October of 1923 for communication between the Fire Alarm Office and the fireboats, and this again was a first for Boston as far as the United States were concerned. It should be explained here that two-way, radio communication with mobile fire department land units was not permitted until 1940.

On December 27, 1925, the present fire alarm office at 59 the Fenway was occupied and on that date, the antiquated and unreliable magneto, local battery, telephone system was replaced by a modern, common battery system.

The method of numbering special building boxes with the present prefix type numbering system was started on October 10, 1927.

Transmission of alarms by radio beep signals was started on June 26, 1928 and hourly radio test and time beep signals have been transmitted since October 25, 1932.

On April 14, 1930, the work of connecting the Boston Fire Alarm Office with those of adjoining cities and towns by wired, mutual-aid circuits was started.

Radio receivers were placed in all chief officers' cars between December 1, 1936, and March 25, 1937, and two-way, radio facilities were provided for all chief officers between June 20, 1941 and October 23, 1942. In addition, all fire stations had been equipped with radio receivers in 1942. The installation of two-way, radio facilities on land apparatus was started on January 15, 1946, and completed on June 7, 1954.

Many additional improvements, both in the operation of the Fire Alarm Office and in its equipment, as well as in radio and related facilities have been made in recent years and other important improvements are either in the process of being completed or in the planning stage.

On April 28, 1976, the Boston Fire Alarm System completed 124 years of uninterrupted service under only seven superintendents.

The Boston Fire Fighters book would not have been possible without the combined cooperation of the following people:

Mr. William Werner, who spent many long and rewarding hours writing and editing its history.

Fire Fighter William Noonan, our picture editor, who spent countless hours digging through his vast collection, always coming up with the right picture.

Fire Fighter Ken Bruynell, who had the tedious task of coordinating the pictures and roster of the personnel.

Mr. Paul Delaney, graphic design and layout of the book.

A special thanks to Mayor Kevin H. White and Commissioner George H. Paul for their support and encouragement throughout this endeavor.

BURGLARY PREVENTION PROGRAM AIDES SENIOR CITIZENS

Mayor Kevin H. White has released a new pamphlet outlining the newly created, burglary-prevention program for senior citizens available to elderly in Allston, Brighton, the Fenway, Back Bay, and the South End.

Said Mayor White, "I am happy to report that in the past year there has been a significant drop in Boston's crime rate. Unfortunately, burglaries and burglary attempts continue to plague our neighborhoods despite the drop. What is more, our elderly citizens are too often the burglars' targets. Special measures are called for."

To carry out those "special measures" Mayor White has mobilized the Youth Activities Commission, in conjunction with the Boston Police Department, to develop a program to protect elderly from burglary.

A rate of $4 per inch of 12 lines (set solid) has been established for such advertisements as under the law must be printed in the City Record. Advertising and other copy must, except in emergencies, be in hand at the City Record office by noon, Tuesday of each week to insure its publication in the Monday issue.

Said Mayor White, "We know that about half of all burglaries are committed by young people. This is a concrete and comprehensive design for preventing intrusion into your home."

Burglary prevention specialists from YAC develop work plans for each individual residence. Proper locks for windows and doors are recommended to the property owner. Appointments for necessary repairs are set up and the repair work supervised. The Police Department's property-identification kit is made available, and warning labels for windows are provided.

There is no charge for any of the city-provided services or materials.

In addition, YAC has set up an eleven-point, burglary-prevention guide of do's and don'ts for elderly.

— Install secure locks on all windows, doors, and bulkheads. Do not rely on chain locks.

— Never leave a key under a mat or in a mailbox. Always keep the key with you.

— Do not leave ladders around the yard.

— If you are going away, do not leave mail, newspapers, or other regular deliveries accumulate at your door.

— Keep your home lighted full time. Use a timer to turn on lights and a radio when you leave for more than a few hours.

— Leave window shades up when you are away so that your home will appear occupied.

— Engrave police identification on valuable property such as television sets, stereos, typewriters, and appliances.

— Report lost apartment keys or burned-out lights to your landlord.

— Never admit a stranger to your apartment building, and never admit unexpected repair or sales people.

— Be careful who overhears you talk about leaving your home empty while you are on a trip.

— Ask neighbors to call the police (911) if a stranger is seen entering or leaving your home, and phone the police if you see or hear anything suspicious in your neighborhood.

THE TEST OF PATRICK

By Bob Aldrich

In troubled times as these the test of Patrick,
His constant thrust against the scourge of darkness,
The scourge which made a vacuum of God's treasure,
And robbed the soul of all its priceless grandeur:
In troubled times as these the flame is lighted,
And with that light a man need fill his hours,
To turn toward God and find within His Wisdom
The path which courses from increasing shadow,
From world of clay to world of the celestial:
No times are these for man to idle on!
Saint Patrick made no compromise with truth,
Nor did he seek appeasement with the snake!
The devil's fang he met, with courage, strength,
And banished it forever from the land.
The challenge we must meet as Patrick did,
With faith and fortitude and freedom's might;
And he who passed through Ireland's fragrant earth
Will shine as that compelling light of faith
In troubled times as these when shadows fall
And lengthen over righteous paths of peace!

EVACUATION DAY

A famous event in Boston's history took place on March 17, 1776, Evacuation Day. Except for defeat in Canada, the American colonists were holding their own against the British forces. The colonial forces in Boston were stronger than ever despite the lack of guns and ammunition.

Fortunately, cannons and ammunition arrived to add an ironic touch to the triumph; for the guns which Ethan Allen had captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga almost a year before were available for use against the invaders.

During the winter, the American troops, commanded by Colonel Henry Knox, hauled the cannons over the wilderness trails on sledges drawn by oxen. By early March, 1776, the captured cannons were mounted on Dorchester Heights, South Boston, and were made ready for action.

Viewing the awesome sight of these cannon aimed directly at their ships, the British invaders realized that their occupation of Boston must cease at once. They evacuated Boston, March 17, 1776, and set sail for Nova Scotia. It was a great victory for General George Washington, for the British never again returned to that area.

TRAFFIC ENFORCEMENT CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL

Boston Police have announced recently that as a result of their intense traffic enforcement campaign during the week of February 17, 1978, to February 23, 1978, 1,484 citations were issued for various moving violations and thirty-two violators arrested.

Since the campaign was launched by Mayor Kevin H. White and Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan on September 6, 1977, 58,369 citations have been issued.

The enforcement has been directed to priority violations of speeding, failure to stop at red lights, stop signs, illegal turns, driving to endanger, and driving while intoxicated.

The Registry of Motor Vehicle inspectors, along with members of the Boston Police Mobile Operation Patrol, issued 888 citations of the weekly total.

In addition, Boston Police in the eleven districts and the Tactical Patrol Force issued 596 citations during this period and made thirty-two arrests.

1713 — THE OLD STATE HOUSE — 1978

The Old State House, or Town House as it was originally called, is one of the oldest public buildings in America. It is an important historic shrine, for within its walls took place some of the most significant events in the history of the American Revolution.

The building, constructed in 1713 and restored in 1880, stands in the middle of the head of State Street, facing Long Wharf and the waterfront in the distance. Around the building flows traffic to and from Washington Street — one of Boston's busiest thoroughfares.

The Boston Massacre took place in front of the building on March 5, 1770. Three persons were killed and six others injured. As a result, Samuel Adams, the great patriot, known as "The Father of the American Revolution," appeared in the Council Chamber of the Old State House to demand the removal of British troops from the town of Boston to the forts in Boston harbor.

John Adams, our second President, wrote that "... the child Independence was born in her halls in 1761, when James Otis argued against the Writs of Assistance ... laying down the revolutionary propositions that God made all men equal; that kings were made for the people, not the people for them; and that taxation without representation was tyranny."

On July 18, 1776, Colonel Crafts appeared on the balcony to announce the Declaration of Independence to a great crowd below. The declaration was followed by the burning of everything pertaining to British sovereignty.

In 1780, John Hancock was inaugurated in the Council Chamber as the first governor of Massachusetts.

Three years later, the Treaty of Peace with Britain was read to a great crowd from the State House balcony.

The Old State House was the seat of Massachusetts government until 1798, when the new State House on Beacon Hill was opened.

For ten years in the 1830s, the building was used for offices of the city government of Boston.

Today, the Old State House, protected by the Preservation Law of 1907, is preserved and maintained jointly by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the City of Boston, and The Bostonian Society, which makes its home in the building. It contains a collection of Boston historic relics and treasures, including tea from the Boston Tea Party. The building is open to the public.

TOP O' THE MORNING

Saint Patrick (389? — 461), Ireland's patron saint, whose special day the Irish celebrate on March 17 with their annual parade through South Boston, was reputed to have been born in England. He lived in southwestern Britain and was educated as a Christian.

When he was sixteen years old, a group of Irish raiders took him as a slave to Ireland. After serving in Ireland for six years as a swineherd, he escaped in a ship bound for Gaul, France. He later became a monk and then returned to his home in Britain.

After his return, he dreamed one night that a man came to him with a paper bearing these words, "The voice of the Irish," and at the same time he heard the Irish calling, "We pray thee, holy youth, to come again and walk amongst us as before."

Beloved Patrick then decided this was a missionary call to Ireland. He returned to Gaul and spent fourteen years preparing for his work. With the title of bishop, and the Pope's blessing, he arrived in Ireland and became its patron saint.

He did much to establish Christianity firmly in Ireland, building churches and monasteries and converting the people. This remarkable work was accomplished in spite of fierce tribal chieftans ruling the land.

MAYOR ADVOCATES JAIL RELOCATION

Mayor White says he will veto Council jail decision — to ask Court to remove Council from site selection.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 2, said the approval of $10 million by the City Council to renovate the Charles Street Jail "is totally inappropriate to modern corrections needs" and he pledged to veto the decision.

The Mayor said because of the Council's "long-playing ineptitude on the jail issue, he will ask the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to remove the Council from any involvement in site selection for a replacement facility for the jail — which U. S. District Court Judge Arthur Garrity ruled unfit for habitation in 1973.

Instead, the Mayor said his administration "will step into the vacuum of leadership created by the Council" and make an all-out effort to negotiate with the state for a four-acre site near Leverett Circle on Nashua Street. The administration's proposal, supported by both Suffolk County and state corrections officials, is to combine a jail and corrections facility on the same site.

The Mayor said the action taken by the Council "can only serve to further complicate what should have been a relatively simple selection process.

"The Charles Street Jail, has served us well for many years," the Mayor said, "but it is an anachronism now. For many reasons, we have to permanently put that site out of consideration for a new jail."

Suffolk County Sheriff Dennis Kearney cited the administrative and economic advantages of having the jail and the corrections facility adjacent as a major advantage to the Nashua Street site.

Mr. Kearney also cited costs of $8 million to $12 million over three years to house prisoners in the Middlesex County Courthouse if the Charles Street renovation were undertaken.

MAYOR WHITE MOURNS THE DEATH OF WALTER MUIR WHITEHILL

Mayor Kevin H. White has mourned the death of Walter Muir Whitehill, the director emeritus of the Boston Athenaeum.

Said Mayor White, "Walter Muir Whitehill's sensitivity to the richness of Boston's past, and its future was in itself an asset to the city.

"His work over the years on behalf of historic building restoration, particularly the Quincy Market, made Boston a richer city. We will be a poorer city without him."

"SOUTHIE" PARADE POSTPONED

The Evacuation Day-St. Patrick's Parade, originally scheduled for Sunday, March 19, in South Boston, has been rescheduled to take place on Sunday, April 2.

Most of the events, such as the rededication of the Dorchester Heights National Shrine, will take place as scheduled.

The period of the contract will be from July 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, inclusive. The amount of the contract is not to exceed $3,000, net.

The scope of regularly requested supplies will include:

1. Paper film and boards — illustration and mat boards, special boards and fome-cor, acetates, masking films, mylar and cloth, tracing paper, layout and sketching paper, printed and colored paper, frisket paper, transfer paper, kraft wrapping paper, and graph paper.

2. Drawing and measuring instruments — scales, parallel rules, triangles, French curves, protractors, rulers, copy-fitting scales, compasses, drafting sundries.

3. Tools — scissors, special matting knives, and blades.

4. Tapes, adhesives, and finishes.

5. Paints, watercolor tints, and brushes.

6. Technical pens, pencils and markers — drafting pens, nibs, barrel holders, lettering and drawing pens, waterproof drawing inks, pen cleaners, opaquing fluids, lead holders and leads, technical drawing pencils, colored pencils, charcoals, pastels, crayons, lead pointers, drafting pencil sharpeners, erasers, erasing shields, magic markers, pentels.

7. Templates and stencils.

8. Pressure graphics — vinyl sign letters, transfer letting (Letraset, Mecanorma, and Chartpak — the three leading manufacturers of these goods in the world), projection transfer lettering, color-set lettering, self-adhesive cut-out screens and patterns, pressure sensitive tapes, pressure sensitive register marks, color overlay film and selection booklets, burnishers, and storage units.

Charrette's unique qualification is in its totally comprehensive and useful inventory of drafting supplies and equipment. This comprehensiveness is unmatched in the New England area.

They offer a speedy and reliable delivery service which is necessary to this office. They will pick up and repair broken equipment (in particular parallel rules which have a complex wiring system). They offer a complete "back-ordering" service. Their services have been used a great deal by the Design Unit of the Mayor's Office of Communications and have been found to be extremely dependable.

Because of the professional nature of the services to be performed by this company, it is my opinion that no useful purpose would be gained by publicly advertising for bids.

Respectfully yours,

FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

XEROX MACHINES

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

On July 1, 1975, the City Auditor issued a notice to the effect that all purchases of materials, including leasing or rental of equipment or other items, should be obtained through the Purchasing Division on purchase requisitions and resultant purchase contracts and/or purchase orders. Prior to the notice, each department had negotiated its own contract for Xerox copy machines resulting in more than fifty individual contracts. At a later date, the Auditor asked if it would be possible to write a single contract for all Xerox copy machines. The process through which this could be accomplished has been agreed upon by the Budget Division, the Auditor, and the Purchasing Agent.

Since the city is now using Xerox equipment and is well satisfied with its performance and since your Honor has already approved awards, without advertising, for prior fiscal periods, permission is requested to dispense with publicly advertising for bids and award a contract, without public advertisement, to Xerox Corporation, 100 Charles River Plaza, Boston, Mass. 02111, for the rental and/or servicing of copy machines to the various city departments, including but not limited to, the attached fifty-seven departments, the Suffolk County Courts, and the District Attorney's office, for the period from July 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, inclusive. Total amount of contract is not to exceed $461,607.50.

These machines have been of great value to the various departments because of their ability to copy onto ordinary cut-sheet bond paper and their unique capability of copying on both sides of a sheet of paper thereby saving considerable supplies and postage costs. Many of these machines have automatic sorting features which speed the processing of contracts, bid specifications, and reports.

In view of the past record of Xerox Corporation in performance and maintenance, it is my opinion that the best interests of the city would be served by contracting with this company under the terms and conditions stated in this letter.

Respectfully yours,

FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

FIRE APPARATUS CAB

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

On May 24, 1977, bids for furnishing fire apparatus cab to the Fire Department on Proposal 568, were to be publicly opened and read in this office. However, the bids of Fire Trucks Inc., who was the only bidder were received late at the Auditor's office and the Purchasing Division, thus making it irregular.

Since the bid opening, this office has contacted various companies, including the contractor for the original equipment and determined that Fire Trucks, Inc. is the only company that can supply the required cab. The loss of the apparatus involved impairs the efficiency of the Fire Department.

Inasmuch as time is of the essence, bids for the equipment were publicly advertised, and both copies of the bid of the only bidder were received late, permission is requested to dispense with further advertising for bids and award a contract without public advertisement, to Fire Trucks, Inc. for one, only, Penn Fab. 84-inch Cincinatti cab complete as per specifications on publicly advertised Proposal 568. The amount of the contract is not to exceed $8,662.50, less 2 percent discount, time of payment, which is the price submitted by this company.

Respectfully yours,

FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

NEWSPAPER PRODUCTION ITEMS

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The Commission on Affairs of the Elderly is instituting a program for the training of CETA employees in the newspaper production field which will require certain items of equipment. The program is scheduled to begin August, 1977, which does not allow sufficient time to publicly advertise for bids.

Mr. Edward J. Burke, editor for the Commission on Affairs of the Elderly, has recommended that equipment as supplied by Compugraphic Corporation be rented for the program. The equipment recommended is used extensively in the cold-type operation of many newspapers which could be beneficial to CETA employees in obtaining employment when their training is completed.

Permission is requested to dispense with publicly advertising for bids and award a contract, without public advertisement, to Compugraphic Corporation for the rental of one CompWriter, one Processor, and one Set Pulley Kit at $235.80 per month from August 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, inclusive. Total amount of contract is not to exceed $2,593.80, net.

In my opinion, no advantage would be gained by publicly advertising for prices.

Respectfully yours,
FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

TAX FORMS

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

This office is in receipt of a requisition from the Collector-Treasurer's Office for 250M property tax forms to be delivered immediately. There is insufficient time to publicly advertise for bids and issue a contract in the time to comply with the required delivery date.

Uarco, Incorporated, the supplier of record and the supplier of tax forms for several past years, has submitted an acceptable price of $19.98 per M.

Permission is requested to dispense with publicly advertising for bids and award a contract, without public advertisement, to Uarco, Incorporated for 250M property tax forms at $19.98 per M. The total amount of contract is not to exceed $4,995, net.

In my opinion, no advantage would be gained by publicly advertising for prices.

Respectfully yours,
FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

During each year, the Health and Hospitals Department requires repair and replacement parts for its various items of medical, surgical and X-ray equipment which are purchased directly from the manufacturers, usually on an emergency basis. Combined purchases during a twelve-month period consistently exceed amounts which require formal contracts. The Health and Hospitals Department cannot foretell which type of equipment will break down or which parts will be needed, but Mr. Henry S. Littleboy, chief engineer of biomedical engineering, has submitted an estimate of the dollar amounts that may be required from several manufacturers. Since the items will be purchased directly from the manufacturers, it is my opinion that no useful purpose would be served by publicly advertising for bids.

It is therefore requested that authority be granted me to dispense with publicly advertising for bids and award contracts, without public advertisement, for furnishing repair and replacement parts for biomedical equipment to the Department of Health and Hospitals, to the following-named companies at the amounts not to exceed those indicated below:

Hewlett Packard Company, $8,000, net; Picker Corporation, $3,500, net; United X-ray Corp. of Mass., $2,000, net.

The contract period for each contract will be from July 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, inclusive. All prices will be manufacturer's list price at time of shipment.

Respectfully yours,
FRANK F. CHIN,
Purchasing Agent.

ASSESSING DEPARTMENT

REMINGTON RAND EQUIPMENT

DEAR SIR:

Permission is respectfully requested to dispense with the usual form of advertising and award a contract to Univac, Division of Sperry Rand Corporation, Wellesley Office Park, Wellesley, Mass., for the rental of the following Remington Rand equipment for a period of twelve months, commencing July 1, 1977, and ending June 30, 1978:

Nine 1710 VIP Machines, at $1,557 per month, $18,684.

There is no competition in the award of this contract as this is the only supplier of these machines.

Very truly yours,
BARBARA G. CAMERON,
Acting Commissioner of Assessing.

AUDITING DEPARTMENT

CONSULTING SERVICES

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

Permission is respectfully requested to dispense with public advertising and to award a contract for consulting services to Richard J. Hawes, 21 Peaceable Street, Brighton, Mass. 02135, during the period July 1, 1977, through December 31, 1977, at a cost not to exceed $21,500.

Mr. Hawes has extensive experience in the design, installation, and operation of accounting systems, particularly those involving data processing. He has served as data processing director for the State of New Hampshire. His assignment will involve the continued implementation of improved controls and procedures in the area of Payroll Personnel, Tax Sheltered Annuity, and Deferred Compensation Administration, and in the implementation of Centralized Grant Control Activities.

In view of Mr. Hawes' special qualifications, I believe that no public interest would be served by public advertisement for bids.

Very truly yours,
W. W. MERRILL,
City Auditor.

AUDITING SERVICES

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

Permission is respectfully requested to dispense with public advertising and to award a contract to Coopers & Lybrand, 100 Federal Street, Boston, Mass., to serve as the city's independent auditors for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1978, 1979, and 1980.

Coopers & Lybrand was selected for this work after sending requests for proposals to eleven firms, ten of which submitted statements of qualifications, and three of which submitted detailed proposals.

The scope of the work to be performed by Coopers & Lybrand is outlined in considerable detail in their proposal dated June 27, 1977, which will become a part of the contract. In summary, they will issue their report on the city's annual financial statements for each of the three years involved; will submit management letters at the close of each year outlining suggestions for improving the city's financial and accounting procedures and controls; and will provide assistance to the city in implementing improved procedures. Estimated fees for this work as follows:

Fiscal year 1978, not to exceed fee, $95,000; Fiscal Year 1979, not to exceed fee, $125,000; Fiscal Year 1980, not to exceed fee, $140,000; Fiscal Year 1981, not to exceed fee, $90,000; total, $450,000.

These fees correspond to the year in which the work will be done. Each year's audit will be completed in the following year, which accounts for the extension of the job into 1981.

In addition, Coopers & Lybrand will perform an audit of the city's Community Development Block Grant for the period from June 5, 1975, to June 30, 1977. This audit, which will take place in fiscal 1978, will involve a not to exceed fee of $51,000.

We are asking at this time for permission to award a contract covering the 1978 work at a fee not to exceed $95,000, plus the CDBG audit at an additional fee not to exceed $51,000, for a total not to exceed fee of $146,000. The city portion would be charged to the budget of the Auditing Department, and the CDBG portion to that grant. It is contemplated that additional contracts will be awarded for the work in fiscal 1979, 1980, and 1981.

In view of the selection process which has already taken place, it is not believed that any purpose would be served by public advertising.

Respectfully yours,
W. W. MERRILL,
City Auditor.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 802, Acts of 1972, as amended, particularly section 121 thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to board and secure them.

Bidders were requested to submit an aggregate bid for the boarding and securing of these buildings or structures.

We have solicited invitation bids, award to be made to the lowest qualified bidder, and have received the following:

D. Clancy & Sons, $5,880; R & L Construction Co., Inc., $8,493.75; J. M. Cashman, Inc., $9,000.

D. Clancy & Sons has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance, and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

Accordingly, the general public safety so requiring, I ask your Honor's approval for the awarding, without advertising, as required in the City Charter of a contract in the sum of $5,880, to D. Clancy & Sons, 339 Dorchester Street, South Boston, Mass. 02127.

Very truly yours,
RICHARD L. GRANARA, JR.,
For Building Commissioner.

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The following buildings or structures have been condemned by me as being in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Notices have been sent to the owners, but they have taken no steps to abate the dangerous condition. These buildings or structures are a menace to the neighborhood. The locations follow:

15 West Cottage Street, Ward 8; 17 West Cottage Street, Ward 8; 28 Mora Street, Ward 17; 32 Mora Street, Ward 17.

Emergency bid submitted in bid box — one copy to Auditing Department. Bid box opened by Office of Development and Construction. These buildings are in an unsafe and dangerous condition, a hazard to the general public.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 802, Act of 1972, as amended, particularly section 121 thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to board and secure them.

Bidders were requested to submit an aggregate bid for boarding and securing of these buildings or structures.

We have solicited invitation bids, award to be made to the lowest qualified bidder, and have received the following:

James G. Grant Co., Inc., $3,538.70; D. Clancy & Sons Company, $1,120.

James G. Grant Co., Inc., has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance, and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

Accordingly, the general public safety so requiring, I ask your Honor's approval for the awarding, without advertising, as required in the City Charter of a contract in the sum of $3,538.70, to James G. Grant Co., Inc., rear 28 Wolcott Street, Readville, Mass. 02136.

Note: Although only two bidders, Deputy Commissioner awarded this contract because of the unsafe and dangerous conditions and to prevent further deterioration.

Very truly yours,
RICHARD L. GRANARA, JR.,
For Building Commissioner.

RAZING OF STRUCTURES

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The following buildings or structures have been condemned by me as being in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Notices have been sent to the owners, but they have taken no steps to abate the dangerous condition. These buildings are a menace to the neighborhood. The locations follow:

11 Mallard Avenue, Ward 17; 1-3 Milton Avenue, Ward 17; 5-7 Milton Avenue, Ward 17; 119 Milton Avenue, Ward 17.

Emergency bid submitted in bid box — one copy to Auditing Department. Bid box opened by Office of Development and Construction. These buildings are in an unsafe and dangerous condition, a hazard to the general public.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 802, Acts of 1972, as amended, particularly section 121 thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to raze the buildings or structures.

Bidders were requested to submit an aggregate bid for the entire lot of buildings or structures, but to break down their bids to show the charge against each separate address. This breakdown is necessary for later departmental use in billing demolition costs incurred against the individual property owner of each house.

We have solicited invitation bids, award to be made to the lowest qualified bidder, and have received the following:

Napoli Wrecking Co., Inc., $12,600; James G. Grant Co., Inc., $11,172; Mystic Building Wrecking Co., Inc., $13,385.

James G. Grant Co., Inc. has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance, and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

Bids for the individual buildings or structures were not requested because it would be a practical, physical impossibility for several different contractors to conduct efficient contracting operations simultaneously in individual buildings or structures. Under such conditions, there would be much mutual interference and each contractor would be exposed to severe hazards not under his control, by the operations of adjacent contractors. I also believe that the aggregate cost of individual bids would be much higher than the cost of one bid for the total buildings or structures to be demolished, and that handling the buildings or structures as one unit results in one administrative cost to the city rather than what would result from handling the individual buildings or structures as separate bids and contracts. Unit handling results, however, in this case in a contract price of over $2,000, or over the statutory limitations upon awards that can be made without advertising, unless your Honor approves the transaction.

Accordingly, the general public safety so requiring, I ask your Honor's approval for the awarding, without advertising, as required in the City Charter, of a contract in the sum of $11,172, to James G. Grant Co., Inc., rear 28 Wolcott Street, Readville, Mass. 02136.

Very truly yours,
L. F. MARTIN,
For Building Commissioner.

FINANCE COMMISSION LEASING CERTAIN PREMISES

DEAR MAYOR WHITE:

We hereby respectfully request your permission to dispense with public advertisement and to enter into a lease with Patrick R. O'Donnell and Richard C. H. Stewart, leasing agents, for approximately 1,555 square feet of office space for the Finance Commission at 65 Franklin Street, Boston, for the period August 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978. The cost for the eleven months will not exceed $8,552.50 and will be automatically renewable thereafter on an annual basis, until June 30, 1982, provided the Finance Commission receives an appropriation in its rent account sufficient to meet the lease obligations ending June 30, 1978, and $10,107.50, $10,885, $11,662.50, and $11,662.50 for each of the four succeeding fiscal years, not including a real estate tax adjustment provision applicable after June 30, 1979.

The Finance Commission is obliged to move its present office because the Commission's appropriation for the current fiscal year is insufficient to meet the Commission's lease obligations. The space at 65 Franklin Street is both smaller and considerably less expensive on a square foot basis than the Commission's present office, and it is within walking distance of City Hall. We have made a diligent effort to find the least expensive space available, consistent with our particular needs, including contacting the rental agent at the Public Facilities Department, and we believe that public advertisement would not be appropriate under the circumstances.

Very truly yours,

ANDREA W. GARGIULO,
Chairman.

Each proposal must specify the amount bid for the Bonds (not less than 100 percent nor more than 105 percent of the aggregate par value of the Bonds) and must specify in a multiple of 1/8 or 1/20 of 1 percent the rate or rates of interest per annum which the Bonds are to bear but shall not specify (a) more than one interest rate for any Bonds having like maturity; (b) a zero rate of interest; or (c) any interest rate for any Bonds which exceeds the interest rate stated in such proposal for any other Bonds by more than 2 percent. The interest due on any Bond on any interest payment date will be represented by a single coupon, and a proposal which specifies supplemental coupons, a split interest rate, the cancellation of coupons, or the payment of any premium offered in anything other than bank funds will not be considered. In addition to the amount bid for the Bonds, the purchaser must pay an amount equal to the interest on the Bonds accrued to the date of delivery.

As between proposals which comply with this Notice, the Bonds will be sold to the bidder (herein called the "successful bidder") offering to purchase the Bonds at the lowest interest cost to the city, such cost to be determined under each proposal by doubling the semiannual interest rate, compounded semiannually, necessary to discount the debt service payments from the payment dates to April 1, 1978 and to the price bid, excluding interest accrued to the date of delivery. If there be more than one proposal making said offer at the same lowest interest cost, the Bonds will be sold to the bidder whose proposal is selected by the Collector-Treasurer by lot from among all such proposals.

All proposals must be enclosed in sealed envelopes and addressed to Mr. James V. Young, Collector-Treasurer, City Hall, Boston, Massachusetts, and marked on the outside in substance "Proposal for Bonds." As a condition precedent to the consideration of his proposal, each bidder must enclose with it, as a good faith deposit, a certified or cashier's check, payable to the order of the city in an amount not less than $250,000. Proposals will be accepted or rejected, subject to approval by the Mayor, promptly after opening and not later than 3 o'clock P.M. on March 20, 1978. When the successful bidder has been ascertained, the city will notify him and return all deposits other than that of the successful bidder. The check of the successful bidder will be retained to be applied as part payment for the Bonds or to provide security for the city against loss resulting from the failure of such bidder to comply with the terms of his proposal. No interest will be allowed on the amount of any good faith deposit.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and to reject any proposal not complying with this Notice of Sale and, so far as permitted by law, to waive any irregularity or informality with respect to any proposal.

The city has not contracted for the issuance of any policy of municipal bond insurance for the Bonds. If the Bonds qualify for issuance of any such policy or commitment therefor, any purchase of such insurance or commitment shall be at the sole option and expense of the bidder and any increased costs of issuance or delivery of the Bond resulting by reason of such insurance shall be paid by such bidder. Proposals shall not be conditioned upon the issuance of any such policy or commitment. Any failure of the Bonds to be so insured or of any such policy or commitment to be issued shall not in any way relieve the successful bidder of his contractual obligations arising from the acceptance of his proposal for the purchase of the Bonds.

It shall be a condition to the obligation of the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Bonds that contemporaneously with or before accepting the Bonds and paying therefor, he shall be furnished without cost, with (a) the approving opinion of the firm Palmer & Dodge, Boston, Massachusetts, to the effect that the Bonds are valid general obligations of the City of Boston, that all taxable property in the city is subject to the levy of unlimited ad valorem taxes to pay the same and that, under existing statutes, the Bonds are exempt from local property taxes in Massachusetts and the interest thereon is exempt from Massachusetts personal income taxes and from federal income taxes; (b) a certificate of the Corporation Counsel of the city in form satisfactory to said firm, dated as of the date of delivery of the Bonds and receipt of payment therefor, to the effect that no litigation is then pending (or, to his knowledge, threatened) (i) seeking to restrain or enjoin the issuance or delivery of any of the Bonds; (ii) in any way contesting or affecting any authority for or the validity of the Bonds; (iii) in any way contesting the power of the Collector-Treasurer to issue the Bonds or the power of the city to sell them as contemplated by this Notice of Sale; (iv) in any way affecting the power of the city to levy and collect taxes to pay the Bonds; or (v) contesting the corporate existence or boundaries of the city; (c) a certificate of the Collector-Treasurer and the City Auditor addressed to the successful bidder to the effect that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, the Official Statement referred to below, both as of its date and as of the date of delivery of the Bonds, does not contain any untrue statement of a material fact and does not omit to state a material fact necessary to make the statements therein, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; together with the further certificate of the Corporation Counsel of the city confirming the aforesaid certificate of the Collector-Treasurer and Auditor as to matters of law; and (d) a letter from the firm of Palmer & Dodge, addressed to the successful bidder, to the effect that, although they are not passing upon and do not assume any responsibility for the accuracy or adequacy of the statements contained in the Official Statement and make no representation that they have independently verified the same, on the basis of their participation in the preparation of the Official Statement and in connection with the rendering of their opinion as to the validity of the Bonds, no facts came to their attention which would lead them to believe that the Official Statement (other than the financial statements and other financial and statistical data contained therein, as to which such firm will express no opinion) contains any untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state a material fact necessary to make the statements therein, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

Additional information concerning the City of Boston and the Bonds is contained in the Official Statement, dated March 10, 1978, which has been distributed and to which prospective bidders are directed. Such Official Statement is provided for informational purposes only and is not a part of this Notice of Sale. Additional copies of the Official Statement, in reasonable quantity, may be obtained prior to March 20, 1978, from Mr. James J. Hyde, First Assistant Collector-Treasurer, City Hall, Boston, Massachusetts, 617-725-4140. Following the award of the Bonds in accordance herewith, the city will deliver 300 copies of the Official Statement to the successful bidder for use in reoffering the Bonds to the public.

It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on the Bonds, but neither the failure to print such number on any Bond, nor any error with respect thereto, shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal of the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Bonds. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on the Bonds will be paid for by the city, provided, however, that the city assumes no responsibility for any CUSIP Service Bureau charge or other charge that may be imposed for the assignment of such numbers.

It is expected that the Bonds in definitive form will be ready for delivery at the Office of the Collector-Treasurer, Boston, Massachusetts, or at a place designated by the city in New York, New York, on or about April 6, 1978, against payment of the balance of the purchase price in Federal Reserve funds, payable to the order of "City of Boston." The successful bidder will be given at least forty-eight hours notice of the time and place of delivery.

JAMES V. YOUNG,

Collector-Treasurer.

CITY RECORD

KEVIN H. WHITE

OFFICIAL CHRONICLE, MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS

LAWRENCE S. DICARA
PRESIDENT, CITY COUNCIL

VOL. 70

MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1978

NO. 12

MAYOR'S NEIGHBORHOOD IMPROVEMENT BUDGET

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 9, outlined his $43.8 million Neighborhood Improvement Program budget for 1978-79.

The budget, which is composed of $24.6 million in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds and $19.2 million in Capital Budget monies, is one of the largest ever allocated for neighborhood improvement. Yet, the federal share of that budget — the CDBG money — is the smallest since the four-year program's inception.

In the past, neighborhood improvement has focused on construction. Now that ten years of building libraries, schools, police, and fire stations totaling almost half a billion dollars have passed, the stress on neighborhood improvement shifts to four concerns of primary importance to Boston residents: security, housing, physical improvements, and the needs of the elderly.

Said Mayor White, "We are now moving into a new phase with the Neighborhood Improvement Program. We have been able to more efficiently target our expenditures through the use of the Hart Poll, and various public and private meetings held by my staff and myself throughout the city. Although this is the largest amount of money allocated yet for neighborhood improvement, this budget is the tightest we have devised."

The emphasis on the highlighted budget areas is most vividly portrayed by the increase in budgets for those specific areas as compared to this year's budget.

— SECURITY. This budget has risen more than fourfold from $1.1 million to $4.7 million. That increase translates into a new police station for West Roxbury and a new police and fire station in Jamaica Plain. It will also mean heightened police visibility throughout the city by putting each police foot-patrolman on horseback. Boston will become one of the first cities in the nation to utilize police horses as a serious crime-fighting component, assigning mounted officers to neighborhood beats. By summer, this dramatic new police presence should place fifty such patrols in the city's neighborhoods. Additionally, in an attempt at decreasing youth-perpetrated crimes, enriching educational programs will be targeted toward idle teenagers in our neighborhoods.

— ELDERLY. This budget has more than tripled from $700,000 to $2.6 million. That increase is reflected in an expanded, senior shuttle, transportation program; a pilot tenant-outreach program in East Boston and the North End; outreach and health service programs in Dorchester and Jamaica Plain; and a coordinated service program for Allston-Brighton. Included in that expanded budget are plans for the initiation of a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation program and the construction of a new elderly center in Roxbury.

— HOUSING. Monies for housing are up from $7 million to $9 million. That figure represents a 30 percent jump in the Housing Improvement program budget; a demolition and boarding-up program; an open space management program; and a homesteading and special housing program.

The proposed budget figure reflects a reduction in the public housing expenditure from $1.9 million to $700,000 — a reduction made possible by the existence of backlogged Boston Housing Authority monies which accrued from state and federal modernization programs.

— PHYSICAL IMPROVEMENTS. This budget has more than doubled from $7 million to $19 million, which includes BRA renewal area improvements. That increase is reflected in reconstruction and repair of streets and sidewalks; improved street lighting; the upgrading of existing parks; the improvement of traffic patterns; and the construction of public facilities.

MAYOR HOSTS MASS. MAYOR'S MEETING

Mayor Kevin H. White hosted a meeting of the Massachusetts Mayor's Association on March 10, to discuss the effects of court-ordered, 100-percent valuation and the upcoming classification amendment in November.

Twenty-four mayors and two city managers from around the Commonwealth attended the meeting in the Gallery at Boston City Hall.

"One hundred percent valuation will affect each and every town in Massachusetts, and the impact will be devastating to homeowners," said Mayor White. "We as Mayors must work together to protect the already overburdened tax payers in this state."

"A Federal Reserve Bank study published in 1975 showed that 100 percent valuation would produce a significant shift in the property tax burden from business to residential property all over Massachusetts," said Mayor White. "No mayor can sit by and let that happen. That's why this upcoming meeting of the Mayor's Association is so important to us all."

In the 1974 Sudbury decision, the state Supreme Court ordered that all cities and towns reassess property to 100 percent of its fair market value for taxation purposes.

The classification amendment would allow all of the same kind of property to be assessed and taxed the same way, but different kinds of property to be assessed and taxed differently. The Constitutional amendment will be on the statewide referendum ballot in November, 1978.

BOSTON RESIDENTS NAMED TO REALTOR COMMITTEES

The National Association of Realtors has named several Boston residents to serve on its committees during 1978, according to Tom Grant, Jr., of Tulsa, Oklahoma, association president.

Mr. Grant noted that the thirty-seven national committees deal with such subjects as neighborhood revitalization, energy conservation, education, Make America Better, political affairs, home protection, etc. In addition, there are some twenty-five related committees on the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, headed by President Earl A. LaFlamme, Jr., GRI, of Holyoke.

Serving on the realtor committees are: Charles B. Akerson (Institute Committee); Robert L. Beal (State and Urban Affairs-Boards Forum); Shepard Brown (Rent Control Committee and Membership Committee); Donald C. Dolben (Rent Control and State and Urban Affairs Committees); Andrew F. Hickey (State and Urban Affairs Committee and Executive Officers Committee); and William F. McCall, Jr. (Real Estate Economics and Research Committee, License Law Committee).

Also named to NAR committees are: John M. Peckham III (State and Urban Affairs-States Forum); T. Robert Pickette (State and Urban Affairs Committee); Milton H. Shaw (State and Urban Affairs-States Forum, Political Affairs, and Executive Officers Committees); Robert S. Sutte (Realtor Public Relations Committee); and Walter K. Winchester (Realtor Legislative Committee).

"Through committee work" Mr. Grant said, "members help the association protect the historic right of all Americans to own land and a home where they want. Our committees also work to maintain a high degree of professional service to the home buying and selling public."

Headquartered in Chicago, the association is the nation's largest business/trade organization, with more than 575,000 members. The term "Realtor" is a registered trademark and the exclusive designation of NAR members.

NEW POLICE LIEUTENANTS

Boston Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan announced promotions for thirteen sergeants to lieutenants.

The new lieutenants were selected based on scores in a written examination, an oral review board, education, experience, and ratings by the Police Commissioner.

All receive two weeks of intensive supervisory training at the department's Academy and while in training will be assigned to the Commissioner's Office.

The promotion ceremonies for the new lieutenants were held at District 1, 40 New Sudbury Street, Government Center, on Friday, March 3, 1978, at 2 p.m.

The new lieutenants are Francis J. Coleman, District 1; William J. Bratton, District 4; Joseph F. Dunford, District 11; Robert P. Dunford, Training and Education Division; Paul F. Evans, District 6; Edmund P. Feloni, Staff Inspection Division; Maurice C. Flaherty, District 6; John A. Gifford, Operations Division; Joseph V. Saia, Jr., District 6; Albert J. CORNERSTONES OF FREEDOM—the United States Capitol

The Capitol of the United States is a landmark well known to the American people. Presidents are inaugurated in front of it; Congressmen pose beside it; tourists swarm over it; and artists study it. Within its walls is the first branch of government — the Congress of the United States — deliberates, debates, and decides policies which govern the nation.

Construction of the building began in 1793 when President George Washington laid the cornerstone on Jenkins Hill — described by Major Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the architect of Washington, D.C., as "a pedestal waiting for a monument." The Capitol was built in five major sections, the first of which was the north wing occupied by Congress and the Supreme Court when the government moved to Washington from Philadelphia in 1800.

The Capitol not only serves as the seat of our legislature but is also a museum filled with artistic treasures. Its collection includes portraits and statues of past political leaders and others who have influenced the history of our country. Statuary Hall, located in what was the old House Chamber, contains statues from every state in the Union in order to remind us of our forefathers and their contribution to our growth as a nation.

The Capitol as an architectural structure was never intended by its originators to remain fixed and unchanged. Even the original plan of Dr. William Thornton, who never studied architecture, but whose design President Washington preferred out of some sixteen submitted to him, was subsequently modified. There is hardly a period in American history when the Capitol has not been altered in either its interior accommodations or its exterior dimensions.

The interior of the Capitol has undergone constant change. The Senate of the United States does not meet now in the Chamber originally assigned it. Moreover, even the Chamber in which it now meets was remodeled as recently as 1951, as was the House Chamber. Change, remodeling, alteration, always with regard for the original structure, have been in order for the Capitol.

It was in this same spirit that the east front was extended. The central idea was to maintain its essential beauty, employing for the best results the new equipment and materials available, at a cost of $11,383,000.

The changes extended by thirty-two and one-half feet the east wall of the Capitol, that is the portico and the two connecting corridors. This new wall was faced with marble as originally planned in George Washington's time by Dr. William Thornton. The old wall of sandstone was preserved, restored, and supported within the new wall under better standards of protection made possible by its interior position. The indented appearance of the east wall was retained; even though the central portion has been extended it is still forty feet behind the front line of the House and Senate wings.

The remodeling added 100,000 gross feet of space, making room for fifty-four offices, eight rooms for House and Senate Documents, and one House and one Senate dining room. More room was also allowed for a private corridor, giving more walking space and freedom to both visitors and members.

The changes also corrected the general architectural awkwardness of the dome from its past posture overhanging the rotunda walls and the east portico, and put it in proper perspective.

NEW APPOINTMENT

Emily Lloyd heads

Traffic and Parking Department

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 8, appointed Emily C. Lloyd as commissioner of Boston's Traffic and Parking Department.

Prior to her appointment as traffic commissioner, Ms. Lloyd had served as Mayor White's chief transportation adviser since March, 1975. She came to the administration as a senior planner in the Public Facilities Department in March 1973.

Said Mayor White, "Emily Lloyd possesses the background and experience in city planning which will make her an invaluable asset to the city's Traffic Department. She has served in a wide variety of trouble-shooting capacities for me as my transportation adviser, and is a real professional."

Ms. Lloyd, a thirty-three-year-old native of Chicago, Illinois, holds a master's degree in city planning from the University of Pennsylvania and a bachelor's degree in art history from Wellesley College.

As transportation adviser, Ms. Lloyd was responsible for evaluating Boston's transportation needs, formulating administrative policy decisions, and for providing direction to various city departments in the technical planning and implementation of programs affecting the quality of greater Boston's transportation network.

Ms. Lloyd has served as a juvenile justice planner with the Pennsylvania Governor's Justice Commission; research associate with the Philadelphia Model Cities Program; and research associate with the Transportation Studies Center at the University of Pennsylvania.

She is a member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women and coordinator of the Massachusetts Women's Lobby.

Ms. Lloyd resides at 3 Mt. Vernon Square, Boston, with her husband, William Goldstein.

The American Lung Association of Boston will be conducting a Kick the Habit clinic at the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital at 125 Nashua Street, Boston. Seven sessions will be held over a four-week period. The dates are:

Second week — March 27, 30; third week — April 3; and fourth week — April 10. Sessions will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 8:30 p.m.

UMASS IN BOSTON LIBRARY CONSORTIUM

The University of Massachusetts at Boston has been accepted for membership in the Boston Library Consortium.

Chancellor Claire Van Ummersen says the membership will provide UMass-Boston's faculty and students access to the research collections of the other member libraries, including those of eight colleges and universities, Boston Public Library, State Library, and UMass-Worcester Medical School Library.

The consortium was founded in 1970 to promote cooperation among members in building their research resources, to avoid unnecessary duplications, and to make their existing collections more readily available among the various members, Dr. Van Ummersen said.

"Basically," she said, "the purpose of the consortium is to promote the growth of library resources and services in the member institutions through cooperation which would not be possible through their individual efforts."

The other higher education institutions are: Boston College, Boston University, Brandeis, Tufts, MIT, Northeastern, Wellesley, and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

MAYOR HEADS COMMITTEE SUPPORTING PROPERTY CLASSIFICATION AMENDMENT

The Massachusetts Mayors Association voted unanimously to make Boston Mayor Kevin H. White chairman of a statewide committee to coordinate the fight for the property classification amendment which will be on the ballot next November.

"Without the classification amendment, the impact of 100 percent valuation on homeowners in this city will be devastating," said Mayor White. "We as mayors must work together to protect the already overburdened taxpayers in Boston and all over the state."

The mayors met Friday, March 10, to discuss the impact of court-ordered, 100 percent valuation and the proposed alternative — property classification.

The meeting was chaired by Melrose Mayor James Milano, president of the association. Mayor Kevin H. White hosted the meeting of twenty mayors and three city managers at Boston City Hall.

"This meeting has confirmed our belief that the best hope of averting the specter of huge, property tax hikes and widespread residential instability lies in the passage of the classification amendment next fall," said Mayor Milano in a joint statement released by the association. "If the public fails to pass that amendment, all of our communities will be vulnerable to a wholesale shift in the property tax burden from business to homeowner.

"The mayors here represent communities of all sizes, from every corner of the state," Mayor Milano continued. "But we are united in believing that 100 percent valuation without classification will be a disaster."

"The purpose of our meeting was to launch a coordinated process of informing the public of the implication of 100 percent valuation while there is still time to act. In taking the lead on this issue, we mayors are discharging our most fundamental public responsibility: to protect our citizens from intolerable chaos and hardship."

In addition to voting to create a statewide coordinating committee with Mayor White as chairman, the Mass. Mayors Association voted unanimously to Support the classification amendment;

To form a legislative committee to draft and present enabling legislation for a classification bill, to be effective January 1, 1979.

In the 1974 Sudbury decision, the State Supreme Court ordered that all cities and towns reassess property to 100 percent of its fair market value for taxation purposes.

The classification amendment would allow all of the same kind of property to be assessed and taxed the same way, but different kinds of property to be assessed and taxed differently. The constitutional amendment will be on the statewide referendum ballot in November 1978.

WEEKLY USED-CAR REPORTS

Jerry Esposito, supervisor of the Dealer-Repair Department of the Registry of Motor Vehicles would like to remind Class 1, 2, and 3 automobile dealers in Massachusetts that they are no longer required to file weekly reports to the registry on purchases and sales of secondhand vehicles. Mr. Esposito says that "many dealers are mistakenly continuing to file weekly reports, creating unnecessary work on both ends."

Mr. Esposito added that this does not affect the filing procedures for Used-Car Record Reports which must be kept up-to-date.

ASSIST YOUR LETTER CARRIER

This winter's severe weather makes it particularly important to remove the ice and snow from porches, steps, and sidewalks to reduce the dangers of slips and falls by letter carriers. Postmaster Philip L. Sullivan of the Boston Post Office said recently.

"Falls on snow and ice are not fun to anyone," the Postmaster said, "and I'm appealing to local residents to keep the approaches to their mailboxes clear of ice and snow and other obstructions that make mail delivery difficult or impossible.

"I know the great deal of snow and freezing temperatures that cause icy conditions makes this a constant problem, but failure to keep approaches clear may temporarily prevent carriers from making deliveries."

Rural and suburban customers, who receive their mail in curbside boxes delivered by vehicles, also are being asked to keep approaches to mailboxes clear of ice and snow.

"Drivers are not required to leave their vehicles to place mail in boxes. If a driver cannot reach a customer's mailbox without risk of getting struck or slipping off the road, the mail will be returned to the post office until the approach is cleared," Postmaster Sullivan said.

A BIT OF HUMOR

If you can't spell, write so that no one can read it, and they'll never know.

The reason ideas die quickly in some heads is because they can't stand solitary confinement.

Policeman to Hobo: "Hasn't anyone ever offered you work?"

Hobo to Policeman: "Only once, sir. Otherwise, people have always been very friendly."

AMNESTY FROM FINES

Philip McNiff, director of the Boston Public Library, announced that due to the "awesome" snowstorms of January and February, 1978, all fines will be waived on materials which were due on February 15, 1978, or on an earlier due date, provided that the material is returned to the Boston Public Library or any of its branches before March 29, 1978. 1998	700,000

Each proposal must specify the amount bid for the Bonds (not less than 100 percent nor more than 105 percent of the aggregate par value of the Bonds) and must specify in a multiple of 1/8 or 1/20 of 1 percent the rate or rates of interest per annum which the Bonds are to bear but shall not specify (a) more than one interest rate for any Bonds having like maturity; (b) a zero rate of interest; or (c) any interest rate for any Bonds which exceeds the interest rate stated in such proposal for any other Bonds by more than 2 percent. The interest due on any Bond on any interest payment date will be represented by a single coupon, and a proposal which specifies supplemental coupons, a split interest rate, the cancellation of coupons, or the payment of any premium offered in anything other than bank funds will not be considered. In addition to the amount bid for the Bonds, the purchaser must pay an amount equal to the interest on the Bonds accrued to the date of delivery.

As between proposals which comply with this Notice, the Bonds will be sold to the bidder (herein called the "successful bidder") offering to purchase the Bonds at the lowest interest cost to the city, such cost to be determined under each proposal by doubling the semiannual interest rate, compounded semiannually, necessary to discount the debt service payments from the payment dates to April 1, 1978 and to the price bid, excluding interest accrued to the date of delivery. If there be more than one proposal making said offer at the same lowest interest cost, the Bonds will be sold to the bidder whose proposal is selected by the Collector-Treasurer by lot from among all such proposals.

All proposals must be enclosed in sealed envelopes and addressed to Mr. James V. Young, Collector-Treasurer, City Hall, Boston, Massachusetts, and marked on the outside in substance "Proposal for Bonds." As a condition precedent to the consideration of his proposal, each bidder must enclose with it, as a good faith deposit, a certified or cashier's check, payable to the order of the city in an amount not less than $250,000. Proposals will be accepted or rejected, subject to approval by the Mayor, promptly after opening and not later than 3 o'clock P.M. on March 20, 1978. When the successful bidder has been ascertained, the city will notify him and return all deposits other than that of the successful bidder. The check of the successful bidder will be retained to be applied as part payment for the Bonds or to provide security for the city against loss resulting from the failure of such bidder to comply with the terms of his proposal. No interest will be allowed on the amount of any good faith deposit.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and to reject any proposal not complying with this Notice of Sale and, so far as permitted by law, to waive any irregularity or informality with respect to any proposal.

The city has not contracted for the issuance of any policy of municipal bond insurance for the Bonds. If the Bonds qualify for issuance of any such policy or commitment therefor, any purchase of such insurance or commitment shall be at the sole option and expense of the bidder and any increased costs of issuance or delivery of the Bond resulting by reason of such insurance shall be paid by such bidder. Proposals shall not be conditioned upon the issuance of any such policy or commitment. Any failure of the Bonds to be so insured or of any such policy or commitment to be issued shall not in any way relieve the successful bidder of his contractual obligations arising from the acceptance of his proposal for the purchase of the Bonds.

It shall be a condition to the obligation of the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Bonds that contemporaneously with or before accepting the Bonds and paying therefor, he shall be furnished without cost, with (a) the approving opinion of the firm Palmer & Dodge, Boston, Massachusetts, to the effect that the Bonds are valid general obligations of the City of Boston, that all taxable property in the city is subject to the levy of unlimited ad valorem taxes to pay the same and that, under existing statutes, the Bonds are exempt from local property taxes in Massachusetts and the interest thereon is exempt from Massachusetts personal income taxes and from federal income taxes; (b) a certificate of the Corporation Counsel of the city in form satisfactory to said firm, dated as of the date of delivery of the Bonds and receipt of payment therefor, to the effect that no litigation is then pending (or, to his knowledge, threatened) (i) seeking to restrain or enjoin the issuance or delivery of any of the Bonds; (ii) in any way contesting or affecting any authority for or the validity of the Bonds; (iii) in any way contesting the power of the Collector-Treasurer to issue the Bonds or the power of the city to sell them as contemplated by this Notice of Sale; (iv) in any way affecting the power of the city to levy and collect taxes to pay the Bonds; or (v) contesting the corporate existence or boundaries of the city; (c) a certificate of the Collector-Treasurer and the City Auditor addressed to the successful bidder to the effect that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, the Official Statement referred to below, both as of its date and as of the date of delivery of the Bonds, does not contain any untrue statement of a material fact and does not omit to state a material fact necessary to make the statements therein, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; together with the further certificate of the Corporation Counsel of the city confirming the aforesaid certificate of the Collector-Treasurer and Auditor as to matters of law; and (d) a letter from the firm of Palmer & Dodge, addressed to the successful bidder, to the effect that, although they are not passing upon and do not assume any responsibility for the accuracy or adequacy of the statements contained in the Official Statement and make no representation that they have independently verified the same, on the basis of their participation in the preparation of the Official Statement and in connection with the rendering of their opinion as to the validity of the Bonds, no facts came to their attention which would lead them to believe that the Official Statement (other than the financial statements and other financial and statistical data contained therein, as to which such firm will express no opinion) contains any untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state a material fact necessary to make the statements therein, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

Additional information concerning the City of Boston and the Bonds is contained in the Official Statement, dated March 10, 1978, which has been distributed and to which prospective bidders are directed. Such Official Statement is provided for informational purposes only and is not a part of this Notice of Sale. Additional copies of the Official Statement, in reasonable quantity, may be obtained prior to March 20, 1978, from Mr. James J. Hyde, First Assistant Collector-Treasurer, City Hall, Boston, Massachusetts, 617-725-4140. Following the award of the Bonds in accordance herewith, the city will deliver 300 copies of the Official Statement to the successful bidder for use in reoffering the Bonds to the public.

It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on the Bonds, but neither the failure to print such number on any Bond, nor any error with respect thereto, shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Bonds. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on the Bonds will be paid for by the city, provided, however, that the city assumes no responsibility for any CUSIP Service Bureau charge or other charge that may be imposed for the assignment of such numbers.

It is expected that the Bonds in definitive form will be ready for delivery at the Office of the Collector-Treasurer, Boston, Massachusetts, or at a place designated by the city in New York, New York, on or about April 6, 1978, against payment of the balance of the purchase price in Federal Reserve funds, payable to the order of "City of Boston." The successful bidder will be given at least forty-eight hours notice of the time and place of delivery.

JAMES V. YOUNG,
Collector-Treasurer.

NO. 13

MAYOR ANNOUNCES STREET CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Mayor Kevin H. White has announced an intensive, task-force effort aimed at cleaning up Boston from the lingering residue of the Great Blizzard of '78, and enlisted the aid of the public in the massive project.

Cosponsored by WBZ Radio, "Be a City Slicker" week April 3-10, will involve the coordinated efforts of the city Public Works Department, the Office of Public Service, the Traffic and Parking Department, and Boston businessmen. Each day clean-up efforts will focus on a different section of the city. Department employees are now assessing the extent of storm cleanup needed in each neighborhood.

Said Mayor White, "As the recent thaw shrinks snow piles, the blizzard's effect upon the city has taken a new dimension. General litter and large amounts of sand join damaged tree limbs and lost street signs in marring the city landscape. We are making a major effort to clean up that landscape."

Be a City Slicker week will open with curb-to-curb street cleaning of the major thoroughfares and business districts, utilizing mechanical sweepers and hand-sweeping crews. Residential street sweeping will proceed after completion of the major street sweeping. About 350 people will be assigned from the Public Works, Highway Division to cleaning. Approximately fifty Sanitation Division workers will be repairing litter baskets. Potholes will be an ongoing project for DPW crews. Many of the potholes should be repaired by Be a City Slicker week.

The public will also be involved in this massive clean-up effort.

More than 50,000 plastic Be a City Slicker trash bags will be distributed to neighborhoods through the Little City Hall network. Neighborhood business groups will be asked to assist in the clean-up effort, as will the Chamber of Commerce and downtown stores.

The task force:

- CETA will assign 110 workers to OPS for neighborhood cleanup; thirty people to Parks and Recreation for park cleanup; and twenty-five people to Traffic and Parking for sign repair and replacement.

- Parks and Recreation Department will clean up the park damage inflicted by the storm, prune damaged tree limbs, and plant new trees, weather permitting.

- Traffic and Parking Department will survey city street signs and assign crews to repair or replace storm-damaged signs.

- Mayor's Office of Public Service will embark upon a city-wide, three-step program for cleanup: superficial cleaning; intense cleaning during the Be a City Slicker week; and the participation in the normal spring clean-up effort in late April.

- Public Works Department will assign eighty trucks, fifty sweepers and crews to one section of the city on each of the "City Slicker" days to hand-sweep and pick up litter.

- Every city department will be instructed to clean its own property, and city contractors will be encouraged to clean up their property.

Said William Cusack, vice-president and general manager of WBZ radio, cosponsor of the cleanup, "We all have an investment in making the city a better place to live. Be a City Slicker week is aimed at exactly that goal."

THE BOSTON LANDMARKS COMMISSION CAN HELP

Established by home rule petition in 1975, the Boston Landmarks Commission is an independent body in the Boston Redevelopment Authority with power to identify and designate buildings and areas of historic or architectural merit for design controls.

The commission's goals are to help Boston's citizens retain the important features of their city; to shape the needed economic and physical change in the city to fit its surroundings; and to identify the important historic and architectural resources throughout the city.

The commission's primary, statutory responsibility is the designation for preservation of sites, areas, and buildings. Any ten Boston voters, the mayor, or a member of the commission may petition the commission to designate a feature under one of the following four categories:

1. LANDMARK — a specific building or other feature with significance to the city, the state, and either the region or the nation.

2. LANDMARK DISTRICT — an area or group of buildings with merit similar to that of a landmark.

3. ARCHITECTURAL CONSERVATION DISTRICT — an area or group of buildings of principal value to the city itself.

4. PROTECTION AREA — an important part of the surroundings of any of the above three designations, no more than 1,200 feet wide.

A designation must be approved by a two-thirds vote of the commission, after which the designation is sent to the Mayor for his approval. The City Council may override any Mayoral action by two-thirds majority.

The nine commission members and nine alternates all are residents of Boston appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by City Council. Architects, historians, business people, and the community at large all are represented, and all points of view may be heard at the commission's public hearings.

The principal result of designation is prior review of any physical changes to designated property, according to design standards established as part of the designation. The City of Boston Building Department may not issue any permits to an owner of designated property without a Certificate of Design Approval or exemption from the commission. The staff of the commission will help owners of such property determine whether proposed renovations fall within the guidelines.

Designation in no way precludes new construction or additions to an existing building. In a district or protection area, the commission will insure that plans fit properly with the surroundings. New buildings need not be replicas of what surrounds them — the commission encourages good contemporary design complementary to neighboring buildings.

The commission exists to help Bostonians retain their most valuable buildings and spaces. If you'd like to find out more, call the commission at 722-4300.

NO COFFEE "BREAK"!

EDIC helps Araban Coffee Company remain in South Boston.

A potential loss to South Boston's business community has been averted, thanks in part to the efforts of Mayor Kevin H. White's Economic Development and Industrial Corporation.

Last spring, Araban Coffee Company's landlord at 385 Summer Street, McKesson and Robbins Co., had planned to relocate in Canton. Facing uncertainty about its future landlord, Araban planned to join McKesson and Robbins in new headquarters in Canton.

That was before EDIC intervened not only to help Araban remain in South Boston, but to aid in the expansion of its existing operation.

EDIC assisted Araban in securing low-cost financing through industrial revenue bonds from its Industrial Development Finance Authority — bonds which were approved at IDFA's last regular board meeting.

Mayor White was pleased that Araban will remain in Boston. He said, "Araban has been processing coffee in Boston for fifty years. It has been a South Boston institution for seventeen years, and I am very pleased to see it remain in the city."

Now, Araban imports, blends, and packages coffee beans from more than a dozen Latin American countries, and ships that processed product to hotels, restaurants, and other institutions in twenty-six states.

Expansion will enable Araban to develop new product lines such as hot chocolate, tea, non-dairy coffee creamer, and cola drink bases.

Expansion will mean more jobs, according to Araban president, John Perry. He estimated that the company work force will be increased by fifty more employees, many of whom will be hired from the surrounding community.

EDIC Executive Director Michael Westgate praised Araban for remaining in the city.

He said, "This good news is the culmination of months of hard work, but it is most gratifying when we can keep Bostonians working in Boston."

Director Westgate urged any business or manufacturing firm in need of technical assistance in order to remain in Boston to call EDIC, 60 Congress Street, Boston, MA 02109 at 725-3342.

FBI CRIME REPORT

Serious crime reported to law enforcement agencies throughout the United States in 1977 declined 4 percent from 1976, Attorney General Griffin B. Bell announced on March 21.

However, a 1-percent increase was reported in violent crimes.

These figures were among preliminary Crime Index statistics of the Uniform Crime Reports released by William H. Webster, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"Not since 1972, when reported crime decreased 4 percent from 1971, has a drop in the annual figures occurred," Mr. Bell said. "This trend should serve as an incentive to both law enforcement officers and the American public to continue their joint efforts to reduce the volume of crime."

The Crime Index consists of seven offenses that are separated into two categories — violent crimes and property crimes. As a group, the violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault increased 1 percent. The number of property crimes — those of burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft — decreased 5 percent.

Larceny-theft showed a larger decline than any other index offense — 7 percent. Robbery followed with a 4-percent decrease; burglary was down 2 percent; and motor vehicle theft showed no change.

Increases were reported for three index crimes. Forcible rape led with a 10-percent increase; aggravated assault followed with a 5-percent rise; and murder was up 1 percent.

Mr. Webster was pleased by the overall reduction, but urged that law enforcement pursue more aggressively the effort to reduce violent crime.

"Still disturbing is the fact that the number of violent crimes is climbing," Mr. Webster said. "The law enforcement community must take the lead in developing more effective deterrents to such crimes and alert the nation's citizenry to the measures they can employ to diminish the opportunity for these criminal acts."

Cities with more than 25,000 inhabitants recorded a 5-percent decrease in serious crime. In the suburban areas it dropped 4 percent, and the rural areas showed a 1-percent decline.

All geographic regions reported decreases in the number of reported Crime Index offenses. The North Central States experienced a 7-percent decline; the Northeastern States, 6 percent; the Southern States, 3 percent; and the Western States, 2 percent.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTORS

As part of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority's extension of the Red Line Rail Transit northwest from Harvard Square, subway contracts totaling $130 million will be let in 1978, with a further $150 million of contracts to be let in 1979. The project is funded, and design is currently under way. The work includes four, underground stations; two miles of twin-bore, deep tunnel in rock and soft ground; just over one mile of cut and cover construction; and a 2,000-car garage above ground. The main items of work to be awarded in 1978 are two tunneling contracts, largely in rock, but each with a mixed-face and soft-ground section. A number of smaller preparatory contracts will also be awarded this year.

Prospective bidders must be pre-qualified in accordance with the MBTA's "Procedures Governing Classification and Rating of Prospective Bidders" prior to submitting bids for this project. Copies should be obtained as soon as practicable from the Contract Administration Office, ninth floor, 50 High Street, Boston, MA 02110.

Interested contractors are invited to a pre-advertising conference at the D.O.T. Transportation Systems Center, 55 Broadway, Kendall Square, Cambridge, Mass. 02142, on Tuesday, May 2, 1978, at 9 a.m. The conference will outline the whole program, describe the upcoming tunnel contracts in detail, and give an opportunity for questions.

Attendees must register by phone with the MBTA, Mr. Steve Murdock, Phone 1-617-722-5891, not later than April 21, 1978, of their intention to attend and the number of attendees. Admittance and informational handouts cannot be guaranteed to those who do not preregister.

This project is subject to a financial assistance contract between the MBTA and the UMTA of the U. S. Department of Transportation.

LUNG ASSOCIATION LAUNCHES "PROJECT TAILPIPE"

The Lung Association of Massachusetts has launched their "Project Tailpipe" campaign to increase public awareness of automobile-related, air pollution and to promote automobile emissions inspection and maintenance programs.

Daniel F. O'Grady, chairman of the Lung Association's Environmental Committee, said "We are emphasizing two points. First, that automobile-related, air pollution is a serious problem in Massachusetts; and second, that an emissions inspection and maintenance program will provide an easy and effective method for reducing it."

The proposed inspection and maintenance program would include a tailpipe emissions test as part of the regular motor vehicle safety inspection. This test would pinpoint cars which exceed the established emission standards so that necessary repairs may be made. Such a program could significantly reduce levels of automobile-related, air pollution and produce dollar savings for consumers through improved gas mileage.

The Lung Associations will be promoting the car inspection and maintenance program through media exposure, the distribution of pamphlets, a speaker's bureau, and a series of free, emission-testing clinics open to the public. The first clinic will be part of the "Air Fair" scheduled for May 1st at City Hall Plaza, Boston. The "Project Tailpipe" campaign is funded by a grant from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) through the Division of Air and Hazardous Materials.

For more information about the program and what you can do, contact the American Lung Association of Boston, 51 Sleeper Street, Boston, Mass. 02110 or call 426-8330.

"BOSTON SENIORITY" TABLOID NOW AVAILABLE

Elderly news, profiles, and features round out March issue of "Boston Seniority."

The March issue of "Boston Seniority," a monthly tabloid published by Mayor Kevin H. White's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly, features a variety of news, profiles, and service articles of particular interest to older Bostonians.

The news in this month's sixteen-page, free copy of "Boston Seniority" focuses on the Elderly Commission's efforts during the record blizzard and the commission's efforts to improve upon the emergency service system for the elderly. Housing, and its importance to Boston's elderly is discussed in an interview with City Councillor Frederick Langone, chairman of the Council's Committee on Human Services. A separate article deals with the benefits, chiefly lower rents and peer-group living, available in housing for the elderly.

In the people section of the elderly, Beth Hitchcock, seventy-five-year-old Boston Peace Corps volunteer; Stanley Pugliese, an eighty-two-year-old bandleader; and Sam Messina, a seventy-seven-year-old former Boston Symphony violinist and senior concerns expert, are all profiled.

Service features deal with the state Department of Public Utilities rules regarding service shutoff, the hazards of mixing prescribed medications, and the schedule of Boston Police Department crime prevention seminars for the elderly.

Articles on plant care and the theater, and a listing of elderly-directed events around the city round out the March issue.

"Boston Seniority" is available through Little City Halls, local church groups, and supermarkets.

CONTRACTS AWARDED WITHOUT ADVERTISING

The Mayor has approved the awarding of contracts without public advertising, based on the following communications:

HEALTH AND HOSPITALS DEPARTMENT

VARIOUS ACCOUNTING SERVICES

DEAR SIR:

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Board of Health and Hospitals, I hereby respectfully request your Honor's permission to award, without advertising, a contract to Ernst & Ernst, 200 Clarendon Street, Boston, Mass., for the period November 5, 1976, through June 30, 1977, at a cost not to exceed $25,000.

This contract was delayed because there was a considerable amount of personnel turnover within the Fiscal Services Department during the time that this contract was originally being requested and because the new employees who were hired in this department were not aware that the contract procedures had not been completed.

Under this contract, Ernst & Ernst, a nationally recognized CPA firm with demonstrated expertise and competence in hospital accounting, will provide assistance to this department by providing advice, on an as-needed basis, in determining the financial implications of hospital decisions in relation to third-party contracts and the Commonwealth's charge review system, including inventory control. This year they have provided assistance in maximizing Medicare reimbursement at the hospital. Their recommendations will be incorporated in the 1976 Medicare cost report and will result in significant increases in reimbursement. They are uniquely qualified to provide advice to the hospital. Award of such a contract will provide flexibility to the department in obtaining immediate, qualified advice concerning our reimbursement. Further, Ernst & Ernst has developed specific computer models that will enable us to rapidly determine the impact on reimbursement of various hospital decisions. We plan to make use of such computer applications on an as-needed basis as well.

Because Ernst & Ernst is especially qualified to perform the professional services required and because the cost to the city, in our opinion, is reasonable, I believe that no benefit would inure to the city by publicly advertising for bids.

Very truly yours,

DAVID L. ROSENBLUM,
Commissioner.

AMBULANCE SERVICE

DEAR SIR:

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Board of Health and Hospitals, I hereby respectfully request your Honor's permission to award, without advertising, a contract to the following ambulance service companies for the period April 1, 1977, through June 30, 1977, at a cost to the city as individually indicated below, but not to exceed in any event the total of $14,100.

Brewster Ambulance Service, 20 Brookley Road, Jamaica Plain, Mass., $3,300; Fallon Ambulance Service, 95 Eliot Street, Milton, Mass., $500; Garber Ambulance Service, Lexington, Mass., $3,000; Medicab, 37 Whitcomb Street, Waltham, Mass., $300; Reardon Ambulance Service, Dorchester, Mass., $5,000; Stavits Ambulance Service, 322 Washington Street, Brookline, Mass., $2,000.

Under this contract the above-named companies will provide ambulance transportation for all Department of Health and Hospitals patients as required from time to time. These services will be available twenty-four hours a day. Because the requirement for ambulance transfer services has steadily increased and because they are of a nature common to all of the above-mentioned companies, it is not any longer possible to provide payment by separate service orders.

Therefore, in order to comply with the statutory mandate governing the law of contracts for the City of Boston and because the aforementioned companies have already partly performed under the terms of this contract, no useful purpose would be served by publicly advertising for bids.

Very truly yours,

DAVID L. ROSENBLUM,
Commissioner.

DETOXIFICATION UNIT

DEAR SIR:

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Board of Health and Hospitals, I hereby respectfully request your Honor's permission to award, without advertising, a contract to the Pine Street Inn, Inc., formerly Association of Urban Priests, Inc., to provide partial salary for one full-time counselor for the Detoxification Unit, located at the Pine Street Inn, 8 Pine Street, Boston, Mass., for the period July 1, 1977, through June 30, 1978, at a cost not to exceed $5,000.

The counselor, to be provided by the Pine Street Inn, Inc., is particularly qualified both in experience and training and the Pine Street Inn, Inc., as an institution, is the only one of its kind in the area providing these services. Additionally, inasmuch as the service to be provided hereunder is of a personal nature, and since the cost to the city is reasonable, your permission is requested to dispense with public advertising and to renew this contract with Pine Street Inn, Inc., under the terms stated above.

Very truly yours,

DAVID L. ROSENBLUM,
Commissioner.

LIBRARY DEPARTMENT IBM EQUIPMENT

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The Board of Trustees in charge of the Library Department of the City of Boston respectfully requests the approval of your Honor for the award of a contract, without public advertising, to International Business Machines Corporation, 610 Lincoln Street, Waltham, Mass., for rental and maintenance service of certain IBM machines, during the period July 1, 1977, through June 30, 1978.

The rental of this equipment will enable the library to continue its program of data processing activities which was initiated in 1966 where by using IBM equipment, many internal service operations have been mechanized. Inasmuch as only IBM can provide its own equipment, no useful purpose would be served by advertising for bids. The total cost for the rental of the equipment during the period of the contract is estimated to be $135,000.

In view of the above, the Board of Trustees in charge of the Library Department, acting in the name of and for the City of Boston, has voted, that there be entered into without public advertising with International Business Machines Corporation, 610 Lincoln Street, Waltham, Mass., a contract for the rental of certain data processing equipment, during the period July 1, 1977, through June 30, 1978, the total rental thus charged to be subject to the terms, agreements, and conditions set forth in said contract.

The award of your Honor for the award of this contract, without publicly advertising for bids, to the International Business Machines Corporation as above is hereby requested.

Respectfully,
THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES IN CHARGE OF
THE LIBRARY DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY OF BOSTON,
By PHILIP J. McNIFF, Director.

MANPOWER ADMINISTRATION CETA PROJECTS

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

As you know, the City of Boston has been granted funds, under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) of 1973, P. L. 93-203, to develop special one-year projects within city, state, and nonprofit agencies. In order to select from the many agencies eligible for funding, the CETA Public Service Employment Administration distributed a Request for Proposal (RFP) which outlined the specific details and parameters of a special project.

An advertisement notifying potential project applicants of the availability of CETA funds was placed in Boston's two city-wide newspapers and eighteen local newspapers. Two hundred organizations expressed an interest in applying for project funds and were sent an RFP. One hundred and four agencies responded with a formal proposal on or before the due date, April 1, 1977.

Each proposal was evaluated thoroughly on the basis of five Public Service Employment criteria. The criteria used were:

1. The ability of the project to employ the CETA target population;
2. The ability of the project to provide training to CETA enrollees;
3. The ability of the project agency to offer unsubsidized employment to CETA enrollees upon completion of the project;
4. The project's value in addressing the unmet needs of the residents of Boston;
5. The ability of the agency to supervise the project.

The project submitted by the Boston Zoological Society was chosen on the basis of the comparative score it received in our review process.

I, therefore, respectfully request your Honor's permission to award a contract to the Boston Zoological Society, a nonprofit corporation, with offices at Franklin Park Zoo, Dorchester, Mass. The effective date for this contract is from August 7, 1977, to August 6, 1978. Funds for this contract will be provided from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act and will not have impact on the City of Boston budget.

Because of the nature of the services to be performed, it is my opinion that public advertising would serve no useful purpose.

Compensation under this contract shall not exceed $236,860.

Sincerely,
WALTER E. WILLIAMS,
Manpower Administrator.

PLANNING STUDY SET FOR SOUTH END

The Boston Redevelopment Authority has awarded contracts to two consultant firms to carry out a major, planning program for the South End urban renewal project.

The planning study is prompted by the BRA's requirement to arrive at a financial settlement for the project with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The financial settlement entails an evaluation of the remaining project activities and an allocation of remaining funds for these activities.

BRA Director Robert F. Walsh, in a letter to South End residents which invited them to participate in the planning process, said, "The financial settlement requirement provides the appropriate time to pause, assess the progress of the project over the last ten years of extensive redevelopment experience, update the program and, if necessary, amend the urban renewal plan in light of this experience."

The consultant firms, Abt Associates, and Consensus, Inc., will be responsible for researching, evaluating, and interpreting demographic data and analyzing the specific impact of renewal decisions on the neighborhood.

In addition, the BRA, with the assistance of the South End Project Area Committee, will be undertaking a comprehensive, citizen participation review which will take the form of neighborhood-wide hearings, less formal workshops organized around specific issues, and close communication with existing groups and agencies.

The planning program will encompass study of and decisions on disposition of renewal parcels, public improvements, rehabilitation, as well as other project activities.

The contract to Consensus, Inc., to cover an in-depth survey of the South End population, is for $46,000. The contract to Abt Associates, to cover preparation of an environment impact statement leading to financial settlement of the South End project, is in the amount of $92,000.

The South End project consists of 606 acres of land bounded by the New Haven Railroad, Massachusetts Turnpike extension, the Fitzgerald Expressway, and the route of the proposed Inner Belt. The project was approved by the federal government in November, 1965.

Redevelopment activities since that time have included the construction of more than 2,500 units of low- to moderate-income, family housing and housing for the elderly and rehabilitation of nearly 400 units of housing, both with federal funds and by private investors.

In addition, eight parks and playgrounds have been constructed or substantially renovated and a new flower market complex has been built to house the wholesale flower merchants formerly located in the Cyclorama Building on Tremont Street. Extensive improvements to streets, lighting, sewer and water lines have been carried out along with construction of a $6-million, pumping station to prevent basement flooding problems common to the South End.

In all more than $116 million in federal, state, and city monies have been invested in the South End renewal project.

TAX-DELINQUENT LANDLORDS "PAY UP"

Rent Control Administration helps city collect more than $1 million in back taxes.

Boston's Rent Control Administration has recovered over $1 million from tax-delinquent landlords who had been granted rent increases as part of the administration's general adjustment in January of 1977.

Rent Control Administrator Carol Corcoran said tax records of landlords who had been granted increases were researched after the May 1 tax-collection deadline last year.

Notices were then sent to those landlords found to owe more than $5,000 in back taxes.

Those who paid immediately were not included in the total of $900,000 then collected from 150 landlords who paid to avoid the rolling back of their rent increases.

Administrator Corcoran said the prospect of losing rent increases was "an effective incentive" to prod tax-delinquent landlords into payment.

Miss Corcoran also said the administration rolled back the rent increases of landlords whose properties were found to have code violations after complaints by tenants.

She said this action was instrumental in encouraging landlords to maintain their properties, and that a number of landlords actually had their general adjustments rescinded because they failed to correct violations.

FIEDLER AND MUSIC: NO FIREWORKS!

Metropolitan District Commissioner John F. Snedeker has announced the separation of the Arthur Fiedler Boston Pops Concert from a fireworks display which has accompanied these concerts over the past four years on the evening of July fourth.

Mr. Fiedler first conducted an Esplanade Concert on July 4, 1929, before an audience of 8,000 persons. Since that time the crowd has grown to a point where several hundred thousand people congregate in and around the Esplanade, both for the music and the fireworks display. It is felt that this year the MDC should concentrate on the musical program alone, since the July 4 concert will be Mr. Fiedler's fiftieth.

Commissioner Snedeker continued, "What has developed is basically two separate constituencies — one which is solely interested in hearing the Pops Concerts, and one mainly concerned with viewing fireworks. Because of the fiftieth anniversary, this year's concert should clearly be geared to those interested in the musical element.

"We believe there will be enough local fireworks displays that will adequately provide for those who get enjoyment from them.

"We have been very lucky to have had four, highly successful and well-attended events in the past four years. We hope the separation of these two activities will not be viewed as a negative decision, but rather one which provides for the maximum enjoyment of all."

In conclusion, Commissioner Snedeker paid tribute to "Boston's Fourth of July, Inc." and its executive producer, David G. Mugar. Said Mr. Snedeker, "It seems appropriate at this time to express once again our deep appreciation to Dave Mugar and his group for all the support, both financial and moral, they have given in recent years. They have made it possible for us to present programs of excellence including both fireworks and concert music, and are involved with us in the planning of this year's 'Concert on the Fourth'."

HUB CRIME RATE: DOWN, DOWN, DOWN!

Mayor White announces 12 percent decline in 1977 crime rate — sharpest drop in sixteen years.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 21, announced that Boston's 1977 crime rate declined 12 percent — the sharpest decline in the past sixteen years.

The 1977 crime figures were released here and also in Washington by the FBI. Nationally, the crime rate fell by only 4 percent, the FBI reported.

In Boston, crimes against property, burglary, larceny, and motor vehicle theft showed a major drop. Vehicle theft was down 19 percent; larceny by 11 percent; and burglary by 7 percent. Nationally, property crimes decreased by only 5 percent.

Crimes of violence were generally down too. Murder decreased by 7 percent; robbery by 6 percent; and aggravated assault by .2 percent.

The only major crime category to show an increase was rape, up 4 percent. Nationally, violent crimes increased by 1 percent.

Mayor White said the Boston figures were "very encouraging."

He said, "Any decrease in the crime rate is good news, but this drop is particularly significant since it is much better than the national average. The Boston decrease is the largest drop since our Police Department started keeping uniform crime statistics in 1961."

The Mayor pointed out that every Boston neighborhood showed a decrease with the largest declines in South Boston, down 24 percent, and in East Boston, down 19 percent.

Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan attributed the decrease in the crime rate to more police visibility and better citizen cooperation with police.

He also praised the Hot Car program in reducing auto theft. A new burglary prevention program by Boston Police had also played a significant role in reducing burglary, Commissioner Jordan said.

Both the Mayor and Commissioner Jordan said the greatly increased police patrols during the past two years had helped with both the crime rate and in providing a feeling of security to Boston residents.

"Boston is an alive, vital city," Mayor White said. "People are not afraid to use our streets."

A breakdown of the 1977 crime rate shows decreases in the following neighborhoods:

South Boston — 24 percent.
East Boston — 19 percent.
South End, Back Bay — 16 percent.
Charlestown — 16 percent.
Hyde Park, West Roxbury, Roslindale — 13 percent.
Downtown, North End — 12 percent.
Jamaica Plain — 11 percent.
Allston, Brighton — 9 percent.
Roxbury, North Dorchester — 8 percent.
Dorchester — 6 percent.
Mattapan — 5 percent.

The breakdown by crime category is:

Murder — down 6 percent.
Rape — up 4 percent.
Robbery — down 8 percent.
Aggravated assault — down .2 percent.
Burglary — down 7 percent.
Larceny — down 11 percent.
Vehicle theft — down 19 percent.

BOSTON SELLS NOTES AT 3.8 PERCENT

Boston Deputy Mayor James V. Young, on March 20, announced the award of $20 million in City of Boston tax anticipation notes bearing an average annual interest rate of 3.87 percent.

Mr. Young said the notes were won jointly by the Weeden & Co. and the First National Citibank of New York ($10 million); Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York ($7.5 million); New England Merchants Bank of Boston ($2 million); and the U. S. Trust Co. of Boston ($500,000).

The notes were issued to help the city meet its normal expenses until taxes are collected May 1. The notes will be paid on May 3.

Mr. Young said the 3.87 percent interest rate is "the lowest rate Boston has paid to borrow money in the last five years.

"It's important to note that we've been able to borrow at this rate in spite of the fact that short-term interest rates have been rising steadily over the last year," he said.

Mayor Kevin H. White said the award is "a sign that financial institutions are impressed by the progress we've made in stabilizing the city's finances and in establishing improved fiscal management policies."

The Mayor pointed out that for more than a year during the 1975-1976 recession, Boston had difficulty borrowing relatively small amounts of money ($5 to $10 million).

"It's a very encouraging recovery," the Mayor said. "It's good news for the taxpayers of Boston and a real tribute to the work of Deputy Mayor James Young."

Deputy Mayor Young said there were a number of bids for the city's notes. He said the competition is "an indication that our local paper has more appeal to investors and that the national market for Boston's securities is opening up."

The award is the second for the city in a matter of weeks to sell at comparatively low interest. The city awarded $40 million, also in tax anticipation notes, February 23 at 4 percent interest to two New York financial institutions and to the State Street Bank of Boston.

MAYOR ESTABLISHES OFFICE OF FAIR HOUSING

Mayor Kevin H. White has announced the creation of the Mayor's Office of Fair Housing to develop and implement fair housing policies for the City of Boston.

The office will serve as the policy and planning unit for the equal opportunity programs in housing outlined last fall in an agreement between the White administration and the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

Mayor White has appointed Eric McFadden to direct the office. Mr. McFadden has been serving as a fair housing specialist, and has assisted in the negotiations between the city and MCAD. Mr. McFadden, a twenty-four-year-old native of Rochester, New York, is a 1974 graduate of Harvard College.

Mayor White said the Office of Fair Housing "is one of the first of its kind in the country and established Boston as a leader in assuring equal opportunity and access to housing for all people in the city."

Mayor White said that the action taken today reaffirms the city's commitment to the terms of the MCAD agreement.

He said, "We've come a long way in removing barriers to fair housing; we've got a long way to go — but we're committed to that goal. With the help of the people, Boston will achieve it."

The office will function under the supervision of Deputy Mayor Clarence "Jeep" Jones. Mr. Jones praised Mayor White in taking this "historic step," and said that the Office of Fair Housing will "assure that all Boston residents are aware of the housing opportunities available to them."

Director McFadden said one of the office's first concerns will be an examination of the equal opportunity housing problems of private developers, federal, state, and local housing programs. It will analyze private, housing market practices which prevent equal access to housing on a metropolitan scale and develop programs to rectify those practices.

The Mayor's Office of Fair Housing will receive and channel housing opportunity information and discrimination complaints to the appropriate enforcement agency. This service will be available to all city residents regardless of race or national origin. Citizens in need of this service can visit or call the Mayor's Office of Fair Housing at 5 Doane Street, Boston, 725-4408. Discrimination complaints will be followed up by MCAD or by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

CITY SENDS OUT PROPERTY TAX BILLS

The City of Boston began mailing the first of 100,000 property tax bills for the six-month period, January 1, through June 30, 1978. The tax rate remains unchanged from the previous six-month period — $252.90 per $1,000 valuation.

Deputy Mayor for Fiscal Affairs James V. Young urged all property owners to make payments before the May 1, 1978, deadline to avoid a 10 percent interest charge.

Included with the tax bill is an informational brochure, prepared by the city, alerting property owners to the effects of 100 percent valuation, and explaining a proposed Constitutional amendment which would provide an alternative to 100 percent: property classification.

Tax bills may be paid by mail or in person at City Hall or any Little City Hall every working day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Bills must be paid by check or money order at the Little City Halls. Little City Halls cannot accept cash.

BICYCLE SAFETY WEEK

In a world such as this, where the highest of technology is often found thriving alongside the common, uncomplicated man, it comes as no surprise that bicycles and automobiles must share the same roads.

The bicycle is such a fragile vehicle when compared to the automobile, and the bicyclist is far more vulnerable to injury in a car-bike collision. Thus bicycle safety is an important subject.

On Friday, March 10, Governor Dukakis proclaimed the week of April 23rd through 30th "Bicycle Safety Week."

By signing this proclamation Governor Dukakis sets the stage for a week of Bicycle Safety Education and Pedal-Power celebration that is a first for Massachusetts.

During this week, police, teachers, parents, civic, and other interested groups throughout the Commonwealth will be sponsoring bike rodeos, safe cycling skills tests, bicycle-equipment inspections and repair clinics, commuter caravans, and many other events towards the goal of safe cycling.

Also, on Saturday, April 29th, an all day "Bikefair" will take place at the Museum of Transportation's new location on the Congress Street Wharf in Boston. The fair will feature displays of bicycle inventions, energy conservation through the use of pedal-power, healthful benefits of cycling, history of the bicycle, and other exhibits. Also, special events will be scheduled throughout the day, including judging of best-decorated bicycles, a bicycle rodeo, demonstrations by bicycle-acrobatic teams. Riding bikes to the fair will be encouraged and free bicycling inspections will be offered as well as demonstrations of safe riding techniques.

Massachusetts' first Bicycle Safety Week is the result of efforts by many concerned organizations under the heading Registry Advisory Committee on Bike Safety. Members of the committee include Registry of Motor Vehicles staff, Legislative staff, safety officers, educators, bicycle organizations and clubs, and concerned parents.

Persons or groups with bicycle-related interests who would like more information about Bicycle Safety Week or the Bikefair may call 727-3826 during the day, or watch the media for more complete listings of events.

"ROAST" TO BENEFIT WHEELCHAIR BASKETBALL PROGRAM

The Boston Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is pleased to announce sponsorship of "The Great Boston Cookout," a "roast" of WNAC-TV's newscaster Ted O'Brien to benefit sports programs for the handicapped.

This special, fund-raising event will be held on Thursday evening, April 13, 1978, at the 57 Restaurant, 200 Stuart Street, Boston, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Ticket proceeds will support the Greater Boston Wheelchair Basketball Program which has been under way for several years. As with every sports program, Wheelchair Basketball is an expensive undertaking in terms of referees, transportation, and facilities costs, and special apparatus needed.

The worth of sports programs for the handicapped is twofold — they provide a sense of self-worth to those who participate in the numerous sports activities; and they help to shatter the somewhat long-standing myth that handicapped individuals cannot be productive members of society. As a case in point, all participants in the Greater Boston Wheelchair Basketball Program are gainfully employed.

We hope that you will be able to join with us on the thirteenth at what will be an outstanding evening of entertainment. Among the participant "roasters" will be Dick Flavin, WBZ-TV, who will serve as Emcee; Lieutenant Governor Thomas O'Neill; Len Berman, Sportscaster, WBZ-TV; Bob Gamere, Sportscaster, WNAC-TV; Peter Gammons, Sportswriter, The Boston Globe; Anthony LaCamera, TV critic, The Boston Herald American; and Rod Shoate and Ray Hamilton of the New England Patriots, as well as other noted individuals from the sports and media worlds.

Formal invitations to you will be forthcoming but mark your calendars now! Phone inquiries concerning The Great Boston Cookout can be directed to Jim Greene or Dolores Williams at 482-6513.

"FACTORIES" EXHIBIT FOR YOUNGSTERS

There's a new factory in Massachusetts that has no full-time employees; it pays its workers in spinning tops; and it squeezes the production line, shipping department, and payroll office into a space that's the size of an average living room.

The unusual plant is at the Children's Museum in Boston and its energetic young workers assemble their own brand of spinning tops, Spree Spinners, on a real production line that's complete with conveyor belt and three work stations.

In the shipping department, there are stacks of Spree Spinner cartons to be weighed on the scales, transported with the hand truck, and hoisted on the pallet jack. There's even a machine to cut stencils of customers' names and addresses.

When children have finished their shift, they "punch out" at the time clock and head over to the payroll office to get paid — in Spree Spinners.

Several Massachusetts' companies lent equipment to the museum for the exhibit.

The "Factories" exhibit continues at the Children's Museum on the Jamiacaway through June. For information about exhibit hours and travel information, call the Museum's What's Up Line at (1)522-5454.

VII. COMMENDATION

On March 5, 1978, Box 1873 (two alarms) was struck for a fire at 96 Sawyer Avenue, Dorchester, where several people were trapped in the building and the obstacles encountered because of the recent severe snowstorms were such that great restrictions were placed on the mobility and fire-fighting operations of the companies which responded.

Despite all the handicaps, the members of the companies who responded, performed in an extraordinary and professional manner and effected the rescue of all persons trapped within the building. Their actions reflected great credit on the Boston Fire Department.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to commend all companies and members that responded to this alarm for their outstanding tenacious dedication to duty.

CONTRACTS AWARDED WITHOUT ADVERTISING

The Mayor has approved the awarding of contracts without public advertising, based on the following communications:

MANPOWER ADMINISTRATION

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

As you know, the City of Boston has been granted funds, under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) of 1973, P. L. 93-203, to develop special one-year projects within city, state, and nonprofit agencies. In order to select from the many agencies eligible for funding, the CETA Public Service Employment Administration distributed a Request for Proposal (RFP) which outlined the specific details and parameters of a special project.

An advertisement notifying potential project applicants of the availability of CETA funds was placed in Boston's two city-wide newspapers and eighteen local newspapers. Two hundred organizations expressed an interest in applying for project funds and were sent an RFP. One hundred and four agencies responded with a formal proposal on or before the due date, April 1, 1977.

Each proposal was evaluated thoroughly on the basis of five Public Service Employment criteria. The criteria used were:

1. The ability of the project to employ the CETA target population;
2. The ability of the project to provide training to CETA enrollees;
3. The ability of the project agency to offer unsubsidized employment to CETA enrollees upon completion of the project;
4. The project's value in addressing the unmet needs of the residents of Boston;
5. The ability of the agency to supervise the project.

The project submitted by The Salvation Army was chosen on the basis of the comparative score it received in our review process.

I, therefore, respectfully request your Honor's permission to award a contract to The Salvation Army, a nonprofit corporation, with offices at 107 Shawmut Avenue, Boston, Mass. The effective date for this contract is from August 10, 1977, to August 9, 1978. Funds for this contract will be provided from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act and will not have impact on the City of Boston budget.

Because of the nature of the services to be performed, it is my opinion that public advertising would serve no useful purpose.

Compensation under this contract shall not exceed $45,160.

Sincerely,

WALTER WILLIAMS,
Manpower Administrator.

MAYOR OF BOSTON

NO. 15

AUGMENTED FUNDS FOR BOSTON PLAN

Mayor announces $2 million Boston Plan funding for development of Crosstown Industrial Park.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 24, announced that the city has been awarded an additional $2-million grant for the Boston Plan.

The United States Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration (EDA) has awarded $2,075,000 to the city for the construction of the first phases of the forty-acre, Crosstown Industrial Park at Massachusetts Avenue and Albany Street.

The attraction of new industries to the Crosstown Industrial Park and the creation of jobs for Boston residents are major goals of the Boston Plan.

Approximately $600,000 of the grant will be used to make site improvements necessary to develop the six-acre parcel where Digital Equipment Corporation will be located.

The rest of the grant will be used to renovate and modernize the 40,000-square-foot, Brush Building near City Hospital in an attempt to attract new, incubator industries to the site.

The application to EDA was submitted jointly by the city's Economic Development Corporation (EDIC) and the Community Development Corporation of Boston (CDC), codevelopers of the Crosstown Industrial Park.

"This is good news, not only for the Roxbury and South End neighborhoods, but for the entire city," said Mayor White in announcing the grant. "It will boost the local economy by providing new jobs and additional revenue and hopefully serve as a catalyst for further economic development in the Blue Hill Avenue Corridor," he said.

"We owe a debt of gratitude to the Massachusetts Congressional Delegation and Congressman John Joseph Moakley in particular for their help in securing this latest grant from EDA," the Mayor said.

"I also wish to give particular credit to EDIC and the CDC for their months of work in developing the Crosstown Industrial Park and for securing a commitment from Digital to be its first tenant."

Michael Westgate, executive director of EDIC, said the grant "means that we can begin at last to develop the largest, inner-city industrial site under our jurisdiction outside of the Boston Marine Industrial Park; and can start to make a dent in the structural unemployment problem that so afflicts the city.

"We are particularly pleased to have played a part in a project that many will view as a model of cooperation between government and private business, a theme that is central to the economic development goals of EDIC," Mr. Westgate said.

Marvin Gilmore, general manager of the CDC, stressed the grant's importance to residents of the Roxbury and South End communities.

"The CDC is proud to have played the major role in attracting Digital Equipment Corporation to the Crosstown site," Mr. Gilmore said. "Its major impact for Boston will not be just in the number of jobs created but in the other businesses. Digital's name and reputation can draw others into the rest of the industrial park. It is the first hopeful sign that jobs and training will be available to relieve the economic condition of many of our citizens," he concluded.

BRA AWARDS CONTRACT

The Boston Redevelopment Authority has awarded a $620,000 public improvement contract for reconstruction of several streets in the South End Urban Renewal Project.

Under the contract, streets and sidewalks will be rebuilt on Concord Square, Rutland Square, and Union Park Street. Related improvements, including new lighting and rebuilding of water drainage systems, are included in the contract.

The low bidder for the contract was Tricolor Corporation.

Work is expected to begin in spring, 1978, and be completed by late fall.

A reader reports seeing one of those "Have a Happy Day" type signs which read: "This is the Tomorrow You Worried About Yesterday." Under that, some realist had carefully printed: "and Now You Know Why."

GUARD AGAINST PHONIES!

American consumers lost an estimated one billion dollars to mail fraud and misrepresentation by mail in Fiscal 1977, Postmaster Phillip L. Sullivan of Boston announced recently.

In order to heighten public awareness of the problem, April 10 through 15 has been designated the third annual Postal Consumer Protection Week by Postmaster General William F. Bolger.

Postmaster Sullivan advised that, "The public must be constantly on guard against fantastic claims and get-rich-quick schemes. Unscrupulous operators know many people are willing to invest their hard-earned money on offers which sound too good to be true. Our best defense against con artists using the mails is an informed public."

The Postal Service actively investigates mail fraud and false representation by mail, and assists with mail order and service problems.

The overwhelming majority of companies making up the sixty-billion dollar mail order industry are honest and dedicated to customer satisfaction, but, as in many other industries, a few operators are out to bilk the public.

Typical examples of mail frauds and false representations by mail include work-at-home schemes, phony franchises, miraculous "cures" for a variety of illnesses, weight reducing plans with no proven medical value, and a variety of investment offers such as buying land through the mail.

Businesses also become victims of mail frauds and false representations. Companies pay out millions of dollars each year for imaginary or useless business directories, phony invoices, and contributions to non-existent organizations.

The Postmaster urged consumers to ask companies to back up their claims if an offer sounds too good to be true. He stated, "That is the best way to protect yourself and your money, but if you feel you've been victimized by a fraud, or have not received the merchandise you ordered, contact your local post office or the Postal Inspection Service. We can't help someone with a mail problem unless we know about it."

GOLFERS, TAKE NOTE!

The Metropolitan District Commission's two golf courses — Ponkapoag on Route 138 in Canton and the Leo J. Martin off Route 128 in Weston — will open for the 1978 season on Wednesday, April 19, weather and ground conditions permitting.

Residents of the Metropolitan Parks District will be able to register for annual memberships at Martin Golf Course, Park Street, Weston, starting Monday, March 27. Those interested in season memberships at Ponkapoag can register at the course, located on Route 138 in Canton, from Wednesday, March 29 through Friday, March 31. In addition, registrations will be held at Ponkapoag from Monday, April 3, through Friday, April 7.

Annual membership fees are $150 for seven days a week; and $100, Monday through Friday. For golfers sixty-five and over, the seasonal membership fee is $75, Monday through Friday, except holidays.

The daily green fees are: $4 on weekdays and $5 on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. The after 5 p.m. golf fee is $2. For golfers ages eighteen and under, and sixty-five and over, the fee is $1.50, Monday through Friday, except for holidays.

The golf pros are Ken Campbell at Ponkapoag and John Neville at Martin.

CHINATOWN'S "QUINCY TOWER" DEDICATED

Boston Redevelopment Director Robert F. Walsh, on March 27, presided at ceremonies dedicating Quincy Tower, a $5.8-million, 161-unit, elderly housing development in Boston's Chinatown.

Said Mr. Walsh, "Quincy Tower was built in response to a great need in the Chinese community of Boston. As a result of this housing, this community's senior citizens may continue to live in comfort, dignity, and security right here in the cultural area that has been home to many of them for decades."

About 70 percent of the residents of the sixteen-story, precast concrete and masonry structure are Chinese.

Director Walsh added that the Quincy Tower development also provided approximately 200 construction jobs, fifty of which were filled by neighborhood residents, including thirty-five apprentices who learned the various construction trades in an on-site job-training program.

Director Robert F. Walsh, Yu Sing Jung, and Stanley Chen of Quincy Tower Associates, the developer, and Ms. Ruth Moy of the Chinese Golden Age Center participated in the ceremony, along with John Eller, director of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, representatives from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Boston Housing Authority, and Mr. White Wong, president of the Quincy Tower Residents Association.

Quincy Tower includes 161 apartments, all with one bedroom, a living-dining room, kitchen and bath, plus a two-bedroom apartment for a resident superintendent. Some fourteen of the rental units are specially equipped to meet the needs of handicapped residents confined to wheelchairs, such as lowered counters and cabinets, widened doorways, and grab bars in the bathroom.

The building design also includes a rooftop greenhouse, an outdoor, walled, rock garden, and generous space for community activities. The Chinese Golden Age Center occupies facilities on the ground floor, where it operates a lunch program for local senior citizens. An elderly, day-care center is also located in the building.

A rate of $4 per inch of 12 lines (set solid) has been established for such advertisements as under the law must be printed in the City Record. Advertising and other copy must, except in emergencies, be in hand at the City Record office by noon, Tuesday of each week to insure its publication in the Monday issue.

An unusual security feature of the building is a continuous television monitoring system of the lobby so tenants can view their visitors (by a channel on their television sets) before remotely unlocking the front door.

Quincy Tower was designed by Jung/Brannen Associates, Inc. Its principal, Yu Sing Jung, and Chinatown civic leader Stanley Chen formed Quincy Tower Associates in 1972 and worked with the BRA and other agencies to bring the development to reality.

The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), provided construction financing. Long-term financing was arranged under the federal section 236 mortgage-interest, subsidy program. Federal rent supplement funds, Boston Housing Authority rental assistance, and additional funds from the MHFA make it possible to subsidize the rents on all the building's apartments.

Management agent for the housing is Hunneman and Company of Boston. Tenant selection was done with input from a local community council. General contractor for the project was Peabody Construction Company.

SPRING FESTIVAL AT THE CHILDREN'S MUSEUM

The Boston Children's Museum romps into spring during April Vacation Week with an eight-day festival of music, stories, puppets, and magic; and "Before You Were Three," a special program and exhibit that helps children understand how babies learn and grow.

During Vacation Week, April 15-23, the museum is open daily, 10 to 5.

Children who visit "Before You Were Three" will learn some of the answers to their questions about babies and about themselves — Why can't she sit up? When will he start talking? When did I do those things? — by exploring a giant crib complete with blanket, teddy bear, and rattles, and observing babies and toddlers with their parents.

The Prefame Gallery contains photographs of famous people when they were babies. There's space here, too, for photos or drawings of visitors before they were three.

Other activities will include movement games, making baby rattles and mobiles and drawing pictures of before you were three.

The idea for the program originated with Robie Harris, coauthor of Before You Were Three: How You Began to Walk, Talk, and Have Feelings (Dela-corte Press), and Harris, coauthor Liz Levy, and photographer Henry Gordillo will be at the Museum Shop to answer visitors' questions about their book and the years before you were three.

Festival events start Sunday, April 16, and continue through Sunday, April 23. There's no additional charge above regular museum admission.

Festival Schedule:

— Sunday, 16, 2 to 4, the juggling and washtub music of Scrub Board Slim.

— Monday, 17, 2 to 3, folksinger and storyteller Tom Smith.

— Tuesday, 18, 11 to 12, face painting; 2 to 3, fiddler and banjo player Doug Tanner.

— Wednesday, 19, 11 to 12, face painting; 1:30 to 2:30, world famous yoyo champion Larry Sayco; 2:30 to 4:30, puppet making workshop.

Thursday, 20, 11 to 12, magician Bob Fellows.

— Friday, 21, and Saturday, 22, 2 to 3, faced painting.

— Sunday, 23, 2:30 to 3:30, Gerwick Puppets in "Beauty and the Beast."

During Vacation Week, the museum will be giving away one Boston family membership and one suburban family membership each day, so don't forget to register for the drawing in the front lobby.

The Children's Museum is on the Jamaica way (Route 1) by Jamaica Pond. By public transportation, take the Arborway car on the Green Line to Burroughs Street in Jamaica Plain.

MAYOR LAUDS NATIONAL URBAN POLICY

Mayor Kevin H. White, on March 27, characterized the Carter administration's national urban policy as "a workable and realistic prescription for the nation's ailing cities.

"It isn't often a big city mayor gets to praise the federal government," Mayor White said, "but today I want to give credit where it's due to the Carter administration for developing an urban policy that fits the needs of the cities.

"In economic development, the realization is that public money can't do it alone — that you have to use it to create an environment for the private sector to return to the cities.

"That's the approach I've taken with the Boston Plan and I can see it reflected in administration's urban policy."

The Mayor cited the creation of the National Development Bank to lend money to firms expanding or opening up in the urban areas, and the increasing of existing loan programs for business and industry. He also praised the raising of the investment tax credit to 15 percent to businesses locating in the cities.

The $1-billion funding of public works jobs "will go a long way to easing urban unemployment," the Mayor said, "and will supplement existing federal programs, such as CETA, from which Boston has been a major beneficiary."

On neighborhood programs, the Mayor said the plan "shows some new initiatives" and that his reservations about funding of neighborhood groups were answered when the big city mayors were given signoff rights on all proposals.

Mayor White said: "I can speak for myself and for the Democratic mayors for a quality in the urban policy that has been missing in the past — and that is that it actually promotes cooperation and coordination between the cities, the states, and the federal government.

"You've also got Jack Watson involved in a White House group to coordinate the various federal agencies considering proposals from the cities — and there's another element of the packaging of the Boston Plan exhibiting itself in the urban policy.

"So I'm very pleased with the program — it has some fresh ideas and some borrowed ideas — but most of all, it doesn't arbitrarily throw huge sums of money at the cities. It seeks to create improved partnerships between business and government and between various layers of government — and that's been sadly lacking."

RUN, WOMEN, RUN!

The Boston YWCA, home of the first women's gymnasium in the United States, will host "R & R for Women on the Run," an informal reception for women marathon runners, at its 140 Clarendon Street facility on Monday, April 17, from 2:30 to 7 p.m.

All women entered in the Boston Marathon and their guests will be offered complimentary use of Boston YW's shower and pool facilities after crossing the finish line. Towels, bathing suits, and cosmetics will be provided by Boston YW, along with refreshments, courtesy of the Star Market Company. The Boston YW van will leave the Huntington Avenue side of the Prudential Center every fifteen minutes for those runners who opt to ride the four blocks from Prudential Center to Boston YWCA.

Boston YW is located at the corner of Stuart and Clarendon Streets, next to the John Hancock Tower.

"We're certainly proud of every woman running in the Marathon," said Juliet F. Brudney, executive director of Boston YWCA. "These women very graphically symbolize the modern woman who is moving into all kinds of nontraditional fields, not only in athletics, but in employment and educational opportunities as well."

The reception is part of a year-long celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Clarendon Street facility. Anniversary plans include a $300,000 fund drive earmarked for building renovations and the addition of new physical fitness facilities for women in business, management, and professional careers.

Information about the "R & R" reception is available from Mary Pat Prado at Boston YWCA at 536-7940, ext. 18.

BOSTON LANDMARKS COMMISSION

Boston Common Fact Sheet

Boston Common has been designed in the category of "Landmark." It was so designated on May 10, 1977, with its owner named as the City of Boston (Department of Parks and Recreation).

Set aside in 1634 for common land, pasturage, and militia training, Boston Common was designated for its status as the first public park in the United States, and as an early colonial military training ground.

The Town of Boston, in 1634, purchased the first Common land from William Blackstone, its first settler, originally planning grazing and military training for the property. However, as early as 1663, contemporary accounts describe the men and women of Boston taking evening strolls on the Common, and children using the Frog Pond for both swimming and skating. With the prohibition of grazing in 1830, the Common's principal use has been as parkland. The 1822 City Charter prohibits any sale of Common land without express approval of the State Legislature.

Other features of the Common include: the Central Burying Ground, established in 1756, and resting place for British soldiers killed at Bunker Hill; various memorials, including the Robert Gould Shaw memorial to the first black regiment of the Civil War, the Soldiers and Sailors monument to all those who died in the same war, and the Boston Massacre monument; and various fountains, gates, ballfields, and the Boston Common Underground Garage. In addition, its surroundings add to the significance of the park: the architecture of such surrounding buildings as the Bulfinch State House, Park Street Church, and St. Paul's Cathedral, contribute to the quality of the overall environment.

In addition to its new status as Landmark, the Common is jointly listed with the Public Garden on the National Register of Historic Places, an action that took effect July 12, 1972.

V. LETTER OF THANKS

"March 20, 1978.

Sir:

About 4 a.m., Saturday, March 18, 1978, a fire was started accidentally on the top floor of my home at 32 Upton Street, Boston, which required the services of the Boston Fire Department.

My mother telephoned the Fire Department and within minutes your fire fighters responded and quickly extinguished the blaze.

Your promptness in responding, courtesy shown my mother and sister, and skill in extinguishing the flames are sincerely appreciated by all of us.

I was not surprised by the excellence shown by your men in dealing with this emergency as I have learned first-hand how proficient our Fire Department is.

But this was the first time my mother and sister have observed your willingness to assist and the true professionalism exhibited by your men.

They have asked me to convey our heartfelt thanks to all of you who are eager to serve those in need at any time of day or night.

Please bring this sincere letter of praise to the attention of all concerned and, once again, thank you for displaying the best example of true professionalism of a Fire Department — service to the public.

Sincerely,

Harry Lagos,
32 Upton Street, Boston.

II. FIRE ALARM BOX ESTABLISHED

The following box will be installed in the near future, and the circuit number will be announced when the box is installed. Company commanders shall add it to their respective assignment cards for Box 4182.

14-4182, MBTA, Receiving Cashier's Facility, 32 Alford Street.

III. HIGH COMMENDATIONS

At 0915 hours on March 5, 1978, Ladder 7 responded to Box 1873 (two alarms) at 96 Sawyer Avenue, Dorchester.

An occupant at a third-floor window was leaning far out and down, waving a shirt or other portion of clothing so he could be seen in the thick, acrid smoke.

Lieut. Foley, Fire Fighters Fossa and Hession carried a 35-foot ladder into the area under almost unsurmountable conditions, and with a supreme effort, over deep snowbanks and parked cars and the street width reduced to exactly the width of the ladder truck because of the deep snowbanks.

With a tremendous exertion they succeeded in raising the ladder. Fire Fighter Fossa shouted encouragement to the man as he went up the ladder first followed by Fire Fighter Hession. Fire Fighter Fossa reached into the room and pulled the man onto the ladder where both Fire Fighters Fossa and Hession brought the man to the bottom of the ladder, with absolutely no time to spare. When they were a few rungs below the window sill, a flashover occurred, enveloping the entire room in flames, and overlapping out the window. This also testifies to the extreme heat as well as the heavy smoke conditions encountered by Fire Fighters Fossa and Hession.

There is no doubt that their actions saved the man's life and that it was carried out with an unusual personal risk.

The Fire Commissioner is highly pleased to commend Fire Fighters Fossa and Hession for this rescue and their case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

At 0915 hours on March 5, 1978, Engine 21 responded to Box 1873 (two alarms) at 96 Sawyer Avenue, Dorchester.

Upon arrival, six or seven people were noticed, trapped on the third floor, rear porch and when Engine 21 tried to reach them by placing their ladder on top of an exceptionally high snowbank, it was found to be too short.

Fire Fighters Bernhard and McNally went up the rear stairs, which were heavily charged with smoke and in danger of bursting into flames at any minute. Their efforts were further complicated by the lack of visibility and large amounts of debris and storage, including rubbish, automobile parts, cases of oil, and a large rolled up 12 foot by 12 foot rug. They calmed down the panic-stricken people and then guided all six or seven occupants down the rear stairs to safety.

Fire Fighters Bernhard and McNally performed this act under great personal risk.

The panic-stricken people were greatly endangered by the heat, smoke, and flames. Their ages were mostly in the twenties and thirties and it took the expertise and courage of Fire Fighters Bernhard and McNally to effect the rescue.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to highly commend Fire Fighters Bernhard and McNally for these rescues and their case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

IV. HAZARDOUS BUILDINGS

The building at 5-7 East Cottage Street, District 13, is in hazardous condition due to a working fire and several other fires. In case of another fire in this building, members shall use extreme caution. The building has been posted.

The buildings located at 1-3-5 Newman Place, District 5, are in hazardous condition, due to poor structural condition, and the building located at 5 Newman Place is in near total collapse. These buildings have been posted.

LITTLE CITY HALLS TENTH ANNIVERSARY

New OPS director reviews program after ten years; aims to make Little City Hall Program more responsive to a changing Boston.

The Mayor's Office of Public Service has undertaken a review of its Little City Hall program in its tenth anniversary year to determine the course future program development will take.

Richard J. Kelliher, the newly appointed OPS director, observed that the city's social, political, and economic condition has changed much since the program was instituted in July, 1968, in East Boston.

Mayor White added, "When we launched the Little City Hall program ten years ago, there was much opposition and criticism of the concept. Today, the eighteen Little City Halls have become an integral part of the neighborhoods they serve.

Basic structural rearrangements could be the result of the overall OPS review.

Said Mr. Kelliher, "Regionalization of the Little City Halls within an area may be a possibility to bring the districts more in line with other service districts. Consolidation may be another possibility. We may look into the feasibility of substantial reorganization which could include the consolidation of the existing halls. There are going to be changes in the program to meet the changes in the neighborhoods. There has to be.

Direct and indirect service to Boston residents has been the mandate of the Little City Hall program since its inception.

Mr. Kelliher estimates that approximately 718,000 inquiries are handled by the Little City Hall program yearly, averaging about 14,000 calls or visits per week. One out of every six or 180,000 of those inquiries deals with problems concerning the delivery of city services. More than 74,000 tax bills are paid in the halls, 103,000 housing related issues are responded to, and over 73,000 elderly, direct services are provided.

The Little City Halls dramatically proved their worth to the community recently by their performance during the February 6 blizzard.

From February 6 to 12, more than 10,000 hot meals were delivered to Boston's elderly. Grocery deliveries to elderly totaled 1,308, and emergency food vouchers were issued to more than 12,000 Bostonians. More than 500 snow shovelers were also hired during the blizzard on a federal jobs program through the Little City Hall network.

Mr. Kelliher, himself a former Little City Hall manager, said that the future holds a genuine challenge for the Little City Hall program in confronting the new issues faced by the neighborhoods.

He said, "Through the Little City Halls, we have greatly improved city service delivery and citizen participation in government. Now, different issues face Boston. Unemployment, fair housing, and revaluation and classification are all problems facing the neighborhoods."

Noting that "service delivery is our anchor for the program — we won't walk away from that," Director Kelliher revealed that OPS utilization of CETA employees will expand next year.

"We have experimented with CETA workers on two projects this year: open space management and community outreach," said Mr. Kelliher.

Plans are being readied to add a total of 200 CETA workers to the Office of Public Service, enabling OPS to combat unemployment in the neighborhoods as well as deal with special problems which require a pool of personnel.

Director Kelliher also wants to develop a greater rapport between the Little City Halls and the line departments in various neighborhoods.

"Many of the district lines for police, fire, sewer and water, and public works departments overlap, becoming a veritable spaghetti of district lines the closer they come to the core city," he said. "We want to try to bring the districts closer to the Little City Halls to improve service delivery."

He also mentioned two funding sources outside the city for program development.

One was the Neighborhood Action Program for Safety (NAPS), which is currently awaiting City Council action. The LEAA-funded program, patterned after the successful Mattapan Citizen Security Program, would provide for private individuals to work with police in solving local crime problems.

A second source would be the innovative grants program funded by HUD under the Boston Plan. An application has been filed under that program to fund a residential confidence study of Hyde Park similar to the one conducted in West Roxbury two years ago.

BOSTON LANDMARKS COMMISSION

Public Garden Fact Sheet

The Public Garden has been designated in the category of "Landmark." It was designated on May 10, 1977, with its owner named as the City of Boston (Department of Parks and Recreation).

From its beginnings in 1839 as the Botanical Garden, the Public Garden reflects the early and substantial concern of Boston's citizens for the enhancement of the city's physical character.

British landscape architect John Cadness, under contract to the Proprietors of the Botanical Garden (who included Horace Gray), began in August of 1839 the laying out of the Garden. Part of the land, formerly rope walks in the flats of Back Bay, was sold in the 1840s; the present boundaries of the Garden date from 1856, the beginning of the filling of Back Bay.

The development of the design of the Garden spanned several decades in the history of American landscape architecture. Additionally, complementary architectural features such as statues and fountains likewise reflect the range of popular styles from 1867 to 1927, the last installation.

Architect George Meacham's design for the new Public Garden in the 1850s incorporated several characteristics of the theories of Alexander Jackson Downing. The large lagoon with wooded island, extensive asymmetrical curving pathways, and informal disposition of trees and shrubs embody this picturesque style advocated by Downing.

Other distinctive features of the Garden are: the classical revival bridge crossing the lagoon, dating from 1869; statuary, highlighted by the equestrian statue of George Washington by Thomas Ball; thirty-six varieties of trees, ranging from elms, oaks, and willows to Kentucky coffee trees, cherry and Japanese wisteria; and the swan boats, operated by the Paget family on the lagoon since 1877.

In addition to its new status as Landmark, the Garden is jointly listed with Boston Common on the National Register of Historic Places, an action that took effect July 12, 1972.

POLICE CONFERENCE

Boston Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan announced that a meeting was held with J. Daniel Walsh, chairman of the Operations Committee of the Boston Clearing House Association. Also in attendance were some of the Commonwealth's leading law enforcement officials. They are as follows: Secretary of Public Safety, Charles Barry; State Police Commissioner John Kehoe; Richard Bates, Special Agent in Charge from the Boston Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Superintendent Lawrence Carpenter of the Metropolitan District Commission Police and several chiefs from various cities and towns and executives of the Boston banking industry.

The purpose of the meeting centered around topics of the banking industry that were both informative and helpful to law enforcement officials.

The discussion centered on the daily operations of the banking industry and the role police agencies can play in responding to industry-related criminal activities, a problem of deep concern to all parties involved.

Police Commissioner Jordan stated, "The conference was most beneficial and productive for improving security in the banking industry." He also said similar meetings will be scheduled in the future with other members of the business community.

"T" STARTS INFORMATION SURVEY

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, with the assistance of the transportation consultant firm of Wilbur Smith and Associates, has started an intensive, two-month survey of MBTA passengers to develop a detailed picture of how, when, where, and why passengers ride the T.

Specially designed questionnaires were distributed to MBTA passengers. The collected information will be analyzed to assist the MBTA in monitoring specific ridership and revenue levels; in short-range service planning; in developing marketing plans; and in reporting required by the United States Department of Transportation.

BOSTON POLICE NEWS RELEASE

Boston Police announced five white females, nine black females, eighteen black males, twenty-seven white males, five Hispanic males, and two Chinese males were among sixty-six Boston Police recruits who received their badges Wednesday, March 29, 1978, in special ceremonies conducted by Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan.

The recruits have completed Phase 1 of their training after spending eight weeks in class at the Police Academy. During the snow emergency, the recruits were utilized in strategic positions within the Department, namely, Commissioner's Office, Operations, Bureau of Field Services. Those assigned at City Hall were used in delivering hot meals to elderly citizens and during the emergency a number were deployed with the National Guard on Districts 1, 2, and 4. In uniform for the first time, they had their badges presented to them by Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan.

All of the class then started field training at districts throughout the city.

After five weeks of field training they will return to the Academy to continue their Phase 2 training in a classroom.

Their training is unique in that all recruits get to put into practice what

MAYOR VETOS COUNCIL JAIL ORDER

Mayor Kevin H. White, on April 6, vetoed the City Council's $10-million, loan order for renovation of the Charles Street Jail.

The Mayor said he would instead submit a loan order of approximately $26 million for a combined jail and corrections facility on Nashua Street near Leverett Circle.

The Mayor said the Council's renovation proposal is "inadequate, incomplete, and extravagant." He said the plan:

- Underestimates the cost of renovation by several million dollars and fails to consider costs of $8 to $12 million for housing prisoners at Middlesex County Courthouse during renovation.

- Fails to address the need to replace the Deer Island House of Correction.

- Jeopardizes $15 million the city would receive by transferring Deer Island to the MDC for a sewerage treatment plant expansion.

The Mayor said, however, that in fairness to the Council's position, he would make available $15,000 sought by the Council for a cost analysis of the renovation plan prepared by the National Clearinghouse for Criminal Justice.

Both the council's renovation plan and the administration's joint facility plan would then go by May 1, to United States District Judge Arthur Garrity for review. The judge will evaluate each plan to see if it brings the jail facility up to minimum constitutional standards.

"ADDED PROTECTION" FOR HUB'S ELDERLY

Twenty-one Senior Shuttle drivers complete CPR course; lauded by Mayor White.

Mayor Kevin H. White recently announced that 21 Senior Shuttle drivers from the Mayor's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly have successfully completed the Boston Health and Hospitals Heart-Saver Program.

Mayor White said, "This CPR training affords added protection to Boston elderly in the event of a cardiac emergency aboard one of the Senior Shuttles. Because we transport a large number of elderly each day, such training is a must for our drivers."

The Heart-Saver Program certifies drivers in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), which would enable them to provide emergency breathing and blood circulation support to an individual suffering a cardiac accident until proper, professional, medical help could be provided.

Elderly Affairs Commissioner Elaine Guiney praised the program saying, "Heart attacks can occur at any time. This training enables our drivers to respond quickly and efficiently in the event of a cardiac emergency. We are grateful to the Health and Hospitals Department for providing this vital service."

Boston's seventeen Senior Shuttle vans provide 20,000 rides to elderly each month. The vans, located throughout the city, provide easy access for seniors to medical, social, recreational, or shopping centers.

For more information on the Senior Shuttle program, call the Mayor's Elderly Hotline at 722-4646.

When they struck oil on his land in Oklahoma, an Indian became a very rich man and moved to Florida. He kept going from city to city, trying to get his son accepted in one of the many yacht clubs. Asked why he was so anxious to see his son become a member, the Indian replied: "It's been my fondest dream to have a red son in the sails set."

GREEN LIGHT FOR "ALLEYWAY AGENTS"

Back Bay Alleyway Agents empowered to bring violators of Sanitary Code to court.

Housing Inspection Commissioner John Vitagliano has announced that he has granted limited agent status to three, city CETA employees with the authority to cite violators of the state sanitary code in the Back Bay area.

The three agents known as the "Alleyway Improvement Team," have been operating out of the Back Bay Little City Hall in Government Center for the past six months on a program to reduce trash violations.

An agreement between Boston Housing Court and the city's Housing Inspection Department now enables the Alleyway Inspection Team to act as authorized agents of Housing Inspection.

Commissioner Vitagliano said, "The team is now authorized to act as his agents to enforce chapter 270, section 16A of the General Laws, and Regulation 15 of Article II of the State Sanitary Code."

Up until March 30, when the Alleyway Improvement Team found a sanitary code violation, it could only initiate a citizens complaint in Housing Court.

As authorized agents, the Alleyway Improvement Team is now entitled to cite violators on the spot and/or issue legal notice by certified mail to violators of said sanitary codes.

Failure to comply with notice will result in court action. The maximum fine is $200.

"The Neighborhood Association of Back Bay had asked for something to be done about the condition of the area's alleyways," said Ralph Rogers, Back Bay Little City Hall manager. "The city request and got CETA funds from the federal government to hire special agents. The authorization will give the agents the power to do the job."

HEART ASSOCIATION HOSTS SPECIAL EVENTS

Heart Association bounces into spring

Now that spring is officially here, much of the snow and ice of the "blizzard of the century" has melted into memory. But, when the history-making storm struck the Boston area in February, few people were prepared for the resulting inconvenience of interrupted services and schedules.

One hazard of the storm was the American Heart Association's traditional Heart Sunday, door-to-door campaign. Undermining the success of that day's drive, the storm hampered the Heart Association's ability to finance its lifelong saving programs of research and community services.

In an attempt to recoup storm-incurred losses, the Heart Association will host a series of special events in Greater Boston in the weeks and months ahead.

One of these events will be "Heartbeat Bounce," a basketball-bouncing marathon in which students of all ages obtain pledges from their friends and neighbors to support Heart Association programs.

This year, Boston Celtics player, "Cornbread" Maxwell, serves as state chairman for Heartbeat Bounce.

Celtic's Maxwell asks that anyone interested in either organizing or participating in a Heartbeat Bounce write him at the Greater Boston Division of the American Heart Association, 112 Cypress Street, Brookline, MA 02146, or call 738-4920.

Cornbread Maxwell says, "When you show you care, you help the Heart Association to go on fighting for your life."

TRAFFIC ENFORCEMENT CAMPAIGN

The Boston Police Department has announced that as a result of their intense traffic enforcement campaign during the week of March 24, 1978, to March 30, 1978, 3,203 citations were issued for various moving vehicle violations and thirty-six violators arrested.

Since the campaign was launched by Mayor Kevin H. White and Commissioner Joseph Jordan on September 6, 1977, 71,610 citations have been issued.

The enforcement has been directed to priority violations of speeding, failure to stop at red lights, stop signs, illegal turns, driving to endanger, and driving while intoxicated.

The Registry of Motor Vehicle inspectors, along with members of the Boston Police Mobile Operation Patrol, issued 2,100 citations of the weekly total. The Registry of Motor Vehicle inspectors made one arrest.

In addition, Boston Police in the eleven districts and the Tactical Patrol Force issued 1,103 citations during this period and made thirty-five arrests.

GYMNASIUM COMPLEX SET FOR UMASS

A groundbreaking ceremony has been scheduled for 12 noon, April 25, to mark the start of construction of an $8.9-million, physical plant facility on the Harbor Campus of the University of Massachusetts at Boston. The project is expected to be completed by the fall of 1979.

University trustees voted earlier to name the comprehensive gymnasium complex the "Catherine Forbes Clark Physical Education Center" in memory of a Dorchester community leader and university trustee who died last November. Mrs. Clark had been a staunch proponent of such a facility for many years.

The principal participants in the groundbreaking ceremony will include: University President Franklin Patterson, UMASS-Boston Chancellor Claire Van Ummersen; Mrs. Allen Shorr of Dorchester, daughter of Mrs. Clark; Joseph P. Healey, chairman of the Board of Trustees; and a student representative to be named.

The proposed facility will accommodate the gymnasium and exercise rooms, a swimming pool, and a skating rink. It will be located adjacent to the Administration Building and will be at ground level rather than raised above any parking facilities as are the other buildings on the Harbor Campus.

Designed by Anderson, Nottter Associates of Boston, the structure's major units will branch out from a core of locker rooms and shower facilities.

The complex will be available for community use.

D. Antonellis, Inc., of Boston, the lowest of six bidders, is the prime contractor for the construction program.

A BIT OF HUMOR

A famous psychiatrist was conducting a course in psychopathology for medical students. One day, a student asked: "Professor, you've told us so much about the abnormal person and his behavior — could you tell us something about the normal person?"

"If we ever find him," answered the lecturer, "we'll cure him."

An overworked politician came down with a severe cold. First, his voice became slightly hoarse, then extremely hoarse. Finally it gave out entirely. To show he had not lost his sense of humor, he placed a sign on his desk that read, "Sorry, folks. Sound is out."

One of his associates, after regarding his miserable and haggard look, placed a second sign beside the first: "Picture is terrible, too."

If you look like your passport photo, you aren't well enough to travel.

People are like plants — some go to seed with age, and others go to pot.

Did you hear about the fellow who decided to procrastinate? He never got around to it.

Pollution costs us millions; grime doesn't pay.

VI. LETTER OF THANKS

March 23, 1978.

"Dear Commissioner Paul:

Due to severe storm conditions on January 20, 1978, our institution requested a standby fire unit. Again, during the blizzard of February 6, 1978, we requested the assistance of your department to stand by in case of emergency.

On both occasions Engine 56 was dispatched with Fire Fighters David Worrell, Peter Martinnelli, and Jesse Jones, under the command of Capt. Acacio Gazo.

At about 10:30 p.m., on February 6, it became necessary to evacuate our chief engineer, his wife, and four children. This evacuation was accomplished by the above-named fire fighters without incident even though they had to battle the elements of a blinding snow blown by winds of 70 m.p.h. and they had to wade through knee-deep water.

May I take this opportunity to thank you for sending such highly capable men to our assistance. May I request that you extend to them my personal gratitude for the high degree of dedication and professionalism shown by our brothers in public safety.

Sincerely,

William R. Celester, Commissioner, Penal Institutions Department."

The "Constitution"
Affectionately called "Old Ironsides"

The U.S.S. Constitution lies in dock at the United States Naval Shipyard, across the Charles River at Wapping and Chelsea Streets, Charlestown. She was launched in 1797 at Hartt's Shipyard, a short distance from her present resting place. In the next year she helped clear the coast and the West Indies of French privateers. Later engagements with the British in the War of 1812 brought her undying fame and her nickname Old Ironsides. The 44-gun frigate was constructed of well-seasoned live oak and red cedar timbers secured by bolts and copper sheathing made by Paul Revere. Now restored and seaworthy, the historic craft may be boarded daily, 9:30 to 4, free. Uniforms, cannon, and newspaper accounts of the War of 1812 are displayed.

BOSTON PRESENTS POMPEII AD79 EXHIBITION

The much-heralded exhibition, Pompeii AD79, which represents the most comprehensive display of the relics of Pompeii that can be seen outside of Italy, will be on view at the Museum of Fine Arts currently through July 16.

Boston is the first of four major cities on the American tour of this exhibition of rare and beautiful examples of Roman art and culture recovered from the 2,000-year-old ruins of Pompeii. This tour has been made possible through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and Xerox Corporation.

As installed in Boston, the exhibition will be enhanced by additional objects of the period from the Museum of Fine Arts' own collection. Pompeii AD79 will give Boston viewers the experience of living the daily life of Pompeii just before Vesuvius erupted. The exhibition includes examples of almost every type of artifact discovered in the buried city, drawn primarily from the collection of the National Archaeological Museum in Naples, Italy, and the Antiquarium at Pompeii. The range of the more than 300 extraordinary objects includes gold jewelry, silverware, sculpture, mosaics, frescoes, paintings, tools of bronze and iron, and simple pottery cooking vessels. Special features of the Boston exhibition will be a reconstructed Pompeian garden portico which will give visitors an idea of the original setting of sculpture and painting, and an elegantly frescoed room.

The Museum of Fine Arts will also stage two related exhibitions: Visions of Vesuvius — European and American paintings that depict eruptions of Vesuvius and the destruction of Pompeii; and "The Pleasures of Ruins" — a selection of prints, drawings, and photographs by European artists which document the ancient ruins of Italy, Greece, and Egypt.

A self-paced, audio tour of the Pompeii AD79 exhibition will be available during the exhibition's stay. The carry-through Acoustiguide tour lasts an average of forty-five minutes and enriches the viewers' understanding of the history of Pompeii and the significance of the works on view. There is a $2 charge for the Acoustiguide.

As its part in welcoming Pompeii AD79 to Boston, the Museum of Science is preparing a coordinated program of demonstrations, films, and exhibits to run concurrently with the major exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts.

To handle the large crowds expected to visit the exhibition during April, May, and June, and up to July 16, the Museum will issue numbered entry passes when regular Museum admission tickets are purchased at the Huntington Avenue entrance. The number on the pass will tell each ticket holder approximately when he can expect to enter. In the meanwhile, visitors can stroll throughout the Museum as monitors throughout the building will keep them alerted to the time of entry.

To ease transportation and parking, the Museum will furnish free, shuttle-bus service from Copley Square every ten minutes. Additional parking in the vicinity of the Museum will provide space at a modest fee.

A special multi-trunk telephone has been set up to handle inquiries about Pompeii AD79. Call 267-0600 for information.

To hear recorded information about the exhibition call 725-3010, the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs twenty-four hour Pompeii information line.

Mayor Kevin H. White has declared May as "Pompeii Month" for the City of Boston. The city and the Museum extend a warm welcome to the people of Boston to experience this extraordinary exhibition.

Museum admission tickets: $1.75 weekdays; $1.25 Sundays; free Tuesday nights; free to children under sixteen and to senior citizens on Friday.

GET YOUR STICKER!

Spring registration began last April 1st and ends May 15th, and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey has some timely advice to offer about stickers.

"I think it is easy to see that the best way is to have your vehicle inspected at the beginning of the inspection period," he said. He noted that inspection stations are usually swarming with last-minute inspections at the end of the period but there is seldom a wait during the first several weeks of April.

Mr. Mackey also said that Registry inspectors would continue stringent monitoring of inspection stations to see that all inspection regulations and procedures are complied with.

"During the fall inspection period, 149 stations were suspended and numerous others were issued warnings," related Mr. Mackey, and he said that the state's 4,200 inspection stations will be subject to "audits" by Registry inspectors.

Supervisor of Vehicle Inspection Ernie Sabatino echoed the Registrar's advice adding that "motorists are obligated to have all required equipment in proper working order." Supervisor Sabatino said that all exterior lights will be checked as well as front and rear windows, wipers, brakes, horn, tires, exhaust system, front-end suspension, and steering parts. Inspector Sabatino also said that failure to display a current sticker will result in court action.

CHILDREN WHO CARE

Lung Associations across the country get letters. Like this one:

"Dear American Lung Association,

I would be very thankful if you could send me booklets and any kind of information on smoking. I am an eleven-year-old girl who has many loved ones who smoke I would really like them to stop, especially my father, who is the most important one.

I think smoking is the worst habit in the world. It is terrible. It would make me very, very happy if they could stop. It is very important to me. I am doing everything I can. I hope the booklets will help. Every little bit counts. I need all the help I can get. Thank you very much."

Such letters are heartwarming and heartbreaking. Too many parents who smoke do not appreciate the distress they cause their families, particularly their children, and the very real harm they inflict on themselves.

Quitting smoking is not easy for everyone, but the deep concern of the children is difficult to resist for long. Last January, when the United States Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare announced a greatly increased, anti-smoking campaign by the government, he told how he had quit smoking: "Two and one-half years ago my son Joe, who was then eleven years old, told me that the best birthday present I could give him would be to stop smoking. I set about then to give up cigarettes. And the best present I could give Joe turned out to be one of the hardest things I have ever tried to do. Eventually I quit, on October 21, 1975."

To reach children in their earliest school years, the American Lung Association recently joined forces with the government to design a health curriculum for youngsters in kindergarten through third grade. One aspect of the project will be stressing the disastrous effects of smoking and teaching young children to respect their own bodies.

The American Lung Association of Boston — the "Christmas Seal" people have lots of information to help people — including parents — quit smoking. Because they care about every breath you take.

AND THEN THERE WAS LIGHT!

In a shivery dramatization of the birth and death of the universe, the new Planetarium program at Boston's Museum of Science takes a far-reaching look at an ever-fascinating topic.

"The Beginning and the End," presented through June 19, uses the voices of actors of The Newbury Street Theatre, Boston, to intone phrases from the cosmology of several cultures. The criss-crossing voices emanate from a deep blackness that fills the Planetarium dome. As the universe stirs into clouds, thunder and lightning, a fireball flashes. "And then there was light!" resounds through the theater.

The program considers the recent work of scientists studying rocks on earth and on the moon, as well as the discoveries made through powerful telescopes and radio astronomy. In an eerie way, the expanding universe revealed by these instruments also projects the viewer into time past. The Planetarium estimates the lights of some galaxies as taking almost 15 billion years to reach earth.

An intense sequence of the program simulates the cosmic nucleus that exploded into energy and the resulting ferment in which matter finally predominated, some millions of years later.

If in a now unimaginable future, matter in the universe rushed together under an ever-increasing gravitational force, the universe would disappear in a big crunch, a kind of inverse big bang, the Planetarium postulates. Matter would be transformed into energy.

Whether the universe rebounds from such a cataclysm into an unpredictable new entity, or even whether its present expansion will reverse cannot now be predicted. The theory of continuing expansion, which the Planetarium illustrates in a sky of diminishing gas and stars leads full circle to the darkness that preceded the beginning.

The Planetarium program is given daily and Friday nights. The fee is 50 cents above Museum admission.

YOUNGSTERS: GET INTERESTED!

Mayor White encourages youngsters to participate in Youth Games tryouts.

Mayor Kevin H. White announced recently that open tryouts will be held soon to select a team to represent Boston at the twelfth annual United States Youth Games in Detroit on August 2 through 6.

Originally called the Eastern Youth Sports Festival, the games were conceived in 1966 by city officials in New York, Washington, D.C., and Boston to bring together boys and girls from different parts of the country in competition and friendship.

Since that initial year, the Youth Games have continued to grow. This year fourteen cities will be represented: Baltimore, Md.; Birmingham, Ala.; Detroit, Mich.; East Orange, N.J.; Newark, N.J.; Paterson, N.J.; Richmond, Va.; Worcester, Mass.; New Haven, Ct.; Springfield, Mass.; New York, N.Y.; and Boston, Mass.

The Boston team is supported by private contributions. Major contributors are: Coca Cola, I.B.M., Raytheon, New England Telephone, the Boston Globe, the Shawmut National Bank, and the Prudential Insurance Company.

Mayor White said: "Boston is proud to have been an original member of the United States Youth Games program and is pleased to remain a strong supporter of the games this year. I encourage youngsters to participate in the tryouts, and I look forward to Boston fielding a strong team."

Tryouts are for both boys and girls, aged nine to fifteen, in basketball, bowling, swimming, tennis, and track and field.

The following is a list of scheduled tryouts:

— Track and Field — May 3 at 10 a.m., at Franklin Park's White Stadium in Dorchester.

— Tennis — Applications must be picked up at Franklin Field Tennis House on Blue Hill Avenue in Dorchester before July 7. Tryouts will be held July 10 at 9 a.m., at the Franklin Field Tennis House.

— Boys' Basketball — April 30 at 1:30 p.m., at the Shelburne Recreation Center, 2730 Washington Street, Roxbury.

— Girls' Basketball and Swimming have not as yet been scheduled.

For further information and schedule updates contact Willis Gibson or Lamonte Newsome at 725-4850.

SUMMER JOBS FOR HUB YOUTHS

The City of Boston will accept applications for general laborers under the youth, summer jobs employment program May 1, through May 18, Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., at Room 111, Boston City Hall, first floor.

Applications for skilled positions under the youth summer employment program, including lifeguard, clerical, and "special" (youth counseling) will be accepted now through April 28 at the same times at the same office.

The prerequisite for consideration of every summer job candidate is Boston residency. Proof of Boston residency, which must be presented with the application, can be a school enrollment card ID, or a postmarked letter. No applications will be considered without proof of residency.

Applicants for jobs as general laborers, which represent 75 percent of the available summer jobs, must be sixteen years old or older, and need no specific skills. Laborers will be selected through a lottery on June 1, and at subsequent lotteries if needed. Winners in that drawing will be notified about their specific jobs by postcard beginning June 8. Summer employment begins July 1, unless otherwise specified.

Skilled positions open under the summer jobs program include: lifeguard, clerical, and "special" youth counseling.

To qualify for consideration for the lifeguard post, applicants must be Boston residents, eighteen years old or older, and hold 1978 certificates in Lifesaving and Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation. Applicants with past lifesaving experience will be given preference.

Applicants for the clerical positions must be Boston residents, eighteen years old, or older, with at least some office or clerical experience. Applicants for this position must type at least forty words per minute, and will be tested on typing speed prior to employment.

The category of "special" encompasses youth counseling and supervising. Applicants for this job must be Boston residents, eighteen years old or older, and possess the requisite educational and/or experience in youth counseling work.

The skilled positions will be filled by city personnel department screening.

For more information on summer youth employment, call 725-3373.

FISHERMEN: BE PATIENT!

Quabbin Reservoir, scheduled to be opened for public fishing at 6 a.m., on Saturday, April 15, will remain closed for an indefinite period, Metropolitan District Commissioner John F. Snedeker said on April 12.

The reservoir, one of the most desirable fishing areas in New England, is still covered by ice in more than half of the sections set aside for fishing, Commissioner Snedeker said. "In view of this fact," he noted, "we have deemed it inadvisable to open on schedule."

The MDC will make an announcement as soon as it is practicable to open the reservoir for fishing.

MAYOR HAILS UDAG DECISION

Calls $10.4-million, UDAG awards significant victory for Boston Plan.

Mayor Kevin H. White, on April 6, said that the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development's decision to award two Urban Development Action Grants (UDAG), totaling $10.4 million, to the city is "a significant victory for Boston and for the Boston Plan."

Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Secretary Pat Harris has announced that Boston will receive $8 million for Layfayette Place and $2.4 million for the Charlestown Navy Yard development.

"The competition for UDAG grants from other cities was tremendous," Mayor White said. "we have learned that the average amount of money granted any city was $4 million. So for Boston to receive $10.4 million is extraordinary."

"Obviously, we are disappointed that HUD did not fund our proposal for Blue Hill Avenue this first quarter," the Mayor said. "But we are encouraged by their interest in the area and by their decision to work with the city on improving the proposal and possibly funding it in late June."

The Mayor explained that, "apparently, industrial and commercial projects, that could be under way immediately with high levels of private investment were favored this round. We are optimistic that neighborhood reclamation projects such as that recommended for Blue Hill Avenue will have a better chance in the next round."

Mayor White said the $10.4 million announced today would benefit the entire city by spurring development that will eventually lead to the creation of 4,400 construction jobs and 2,100 permanent jobs and add a total of $5 million to the Boston revenue base.

The $8-million investment in Layfayette Place for the construction of a 900-car, parking garage, will round out a development begun with a $24-million investment by Jordan Marsh Company for a new store and will pave the way for the construction of a new hotel in the area. Jordan Marsh Company, the Mayor added, is a major Boston employer. Over 40 percent of its employees in the downtown store are Boston residents.

The construction of the garage will create 1,400 construction jobs and 800 permanent jobs. Upon completion, it will be owned and operated by the city and generate annual municipal revenues of approximately $3 million.

The $2.4 million for the Charlestown Navy Yard will be used for street and site improvements, Phase II construction of a waterfront park, clearance, and demolition of selected buildings. It will kick off the first phase of major redevelopment that will lead to the eventual investment of $100 million by Societe Generale Immoilaire of New England for housing and light commercial activity at the former naval base.

Over the ten-year period anticipated for redevelopment, an average of 300 construction jobs per year and 1,300 permanent jobs will be created. Upon completion, the development will generate approximately $2 million annually in property taxes to the city and $1.6 million in tax revenues for the Commonwealth.

Chock Full of News*

The April issue of "Boston Seniority," a monthly tabloid published by Mayor Kevin H. White's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly, offers a wide variety of news and feature articles of particular interest to older Bostonians.

The news in this month's sixteen-page, free copy of "Boston Seniority" focuses on the projects funded under the $2.6 million earmarked for elderly neighborhood improvement programs, the status of the federal mandatory retirement revision bill, and the fight to legislate a classification amendment to offset the effect on homeowners of 100 percent court-ordered valuation.

The feature articles cover the spectrum of elderly concerns from a new, burn-prevention program aimed at older Bostonians, to the necessity of drawing up a will, to the intricacies of Medicare coverage.

The cover story this month deals with the efforts of seventy-year-old Corinne Alleyne to film oral history interviews with her Roxbury neighbors who recall the neighborhood in its earlier days.

Articles on plant care and the theater, photos, and a listing of elderly-directed events round out the April issue.

"Boston Seniority" is available through the local Little City Halls, church groups, and neighborhood supermarkets.

BOSTON'S LANDMARKS

*Donald McKay House
78-80 White Street, East Boston*

The designation category of Landmark was given to the Donald McKay House on May 10, 1977.

The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Vertuccio, 80 White Street, East Boston.

The Greek Revival frame house, in the northwest corner of East Boston, is significant for its association with Donald McKay, the nineteenth century shipbuilder.

McKay, a Canadian, moved to East Boston in 1843, and built his house the next year. Nearby he established his shipyard, where in 1850 he designed the clipper ship, a major influence on the development of the international maritime industry. Of the thirty clipper ships built in East Boston, most notable was the "Flying Cloud," famous for its record-setting, eighty-nine-day voyage from New York to San Francisco via the Cape of Good Hope. This speed record stood the challenge of steam-driven ships for twenty-three years.

Much of the development of East Boston also stems from McKay's success. Bustling with shipbuilding activity and other related industries, the East Boston waterfront drew craftsmen from New England and Canada, and afforded jobs to unskilled laborers as well.

The house itself is a good example of Greek Revival vernacular architecture, with the broad gable end of the house facing the street. Distinctive to this house is a columned side porch. McKay possibly designed this feature with the aid of a handbook or of another architect to honor the original thirteen colonies.

The house is the private residence of its owners.

CONSOLIDATED REGISTRY ASSISTANCE TO COMMUNITIES

Traffic Enforcement Program Successful

By any standards, there has to be a slight epidemic of "writer's cramp" among some Boston Police Patrolmen and Registry Inspectors. This is because of a "crackdown" on traffic violators launched over six months ago by Boston Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan.

During the past six months of the program, the cooperative efforts of Boston Police and members of the Registry's new twenty-five-man CRAC (Consolidated Registry Assistance to Communities) unit have produced over 63,000 citations for traffic violations. This is about 53,000 more than were written in all of 1976. Traffic enforcement in Boston has been lax in the past for a variety of reasons.

The greatest obstacle the Boston Police have had to overcome before initiating an effective traffic enforcement program was a lack of manpower. When manpower is short, assigning personnel to cover traffic violations is low on the list of priorities compared to more serious crimes.

But Commissioner Jordan nonetheless wanted to ensure that moving violations which occur in an officer's presence result in some type of enforcement action ensuring."

Enter the Registry of Motor Vehicles!

Prior to August 1, 1977, the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau and the Registry had explored ways to make use of available Federal Highway Safety Funds.

Research revealed that police departments in many Massachusetts communities were experiencing the same manpower problems as were the Boston Police. Thus, it was decided that Consolidated Registry Assistance to Communities (CRAC) was the answer to the question of how to increase traffic enforcement. The feeling was that if police in Massachusetts cities and towns were given enough specially trained personnel, the number of moving violations could be reduced, as well as the amount of personal and property damage caused by traffic accidents.

Officially, the purpose of CRAC is "to insure the maximum safety of the motoring public" by assisting the various municipalities in "a total traffic enforcement effort" thereby "assuring prompt and decisive action against the traffic offenders who would needlessly jeopardize the lives and safety of fellow travelers." Thus, twenty-five Registry inspectors were selected and trained, and twenty-five cruisers were purchased. On August 1, 1977, Registrar Alan Mackey assigned the CRAC unit to duty, monitoring areas in Boston where moving violations were believed to be most flagrant and where the rate of accident occurrence is high.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Jordan created and trained a sixty-man Mobile Operations Patrol with Captain Robert H. Bradley as commanding officer. The patrolmen assigned to the revamped traffic enforcement duty were given in-depth instructions, above and beyond what they were required to know already, in motor vehicle law and enforcement procedures. They were also shown safe and proper ways to stop and approach violators.

From the CRAC point of view, the program is a complete success. Registry CRAC team members have written 26,186 citations in Boston during the period from August 1, 1977, to March 1, 1978. As Registrar Mackey is on the doorstep of assigning the CRAC team to other communities in the Commonwealth who have requested assistance, plans to double the size of the CRAC team are being processed.

So, if you are a careful driver you will be pleased to know that a meaningful effort to enforce traffic laws and reduce accidents is taking place. In fact, State Insurance Commissioner James M. Stone cited "increased enforcement" as one reason why automobile insurance rates were going down.

But, if you are careless or sloppy in your safe driving habits, beware!

CITY WIDE CLEANUP: ENCORE

Second phase of massive city spring cleanup, "Be a City Slicker," begins.

Mayor Kevin H. White on April 21, announced the schedule for the second phase of the city's massive spring clean-up campaign, "Be a City Slicker."

Said Mayor White, "During this phase of the cleanup — public works crews will concentrate for one week in each section of the city. The co-operation of all neighborhood residents is vital to our efforts. Litter bags will be available at the local Little City Halls. Public works employees will be cleaning residential streets as well as major thoroughfares. Vacant lots will be cleared of accumulated winter debris."

The schedule for the City Slicker week in each neighborhood is:

Week of April 24 — Roxbury, Jamaica Plain.

Week of May 1 — Hyde Park, North Dorchester, Franklin Field.

Week of May 8 — South End, South Dorchester, Mattapan.

Week of May 15 — Charlestown, East Boston, Allston-Brighton.

Week of May 22 — Back Bay, Beacon Hill, North End, Fenway, Bay Village.

Week of May 30 — West Roxbury, Roslindale, South Boston.

The clean-up task force includes more than 350 public works employees manning eighty trucks, and fifty sweepers. They will be joined by 150 CETA workers assigned through the Mayor's Office of Public Service for the cleanup. The Traffic and Parking Department will be replacing street signs damaged over the harsh winter.

To facilitate the city street-cleaning efforts, the Public Works, Traffic and Parking Departments, and the Police will cooperate to enforce the street-cleaning ordinances.

The evening prior to the street cleaning of each neighborhood, police will issue "facsimile tickets" to cars parked along roadways targeted for cleaning. The tickets will warn residents of the imminent cleaning, and advise them to park their cars elsewhere that day or face a fine.

Additionally, another warning will be issued by patrolling police car loudspeakers, urging residents to move their cars for the impending street cleaning.

Community trash dumpsters will be temporarily positioned in each neighborhood during each clean-up week for residents to dispose of the rubbish accumulated over the winter.

City crews will also be completing the general sprucing up of street lights, poles, and traffic meters, as well as readying other city properties for spring.

LIKE GARAGE SALES? HERE'S A "MUST"!

Opening Saturday morning, May 6, to the fanfare of the Used Sackbut Quartet, the fifth annual Giant Garage Sale at Boston's Museum of Science offers an unrivaled assortment of memorabilia, collectibles, and usable household articles culled from the greater Boston area.

The free musical performance sponsored by the Boston Chapter, International Trombone Association, climaxes National Sackbut Week in Boston, which coincides with Garage Sale dates of May 6 and 7. Hours of the sale, which benefits the Museum, are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to familiar garage sale fare such as appliances (large and small), furniture, toys, games, and sports equipment, the sale features many off-beat items.

They include an original Paul Szep cartoon, dinnerware from Shreves, and inflatable boats. The Museum itself has donated a shoe molded from the one that walked on the moon, together with Kapton-H (last in the world!) used to make astronaut suits. Also donated is a mock-up of the Tyrannosaurus Rex exhibit with a Perry Wilson painting in the background. Other unusuals include an antique Graflex camera, an Atwater-Kent radio, first model made, and a preradio crystal set, plus an iceboat on wheels and four parachutes.

Items for donations may still be brought to the Museum, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Pickup of large items may be arranged by calling 723-2500, ext. 259. All donations are tax deductible.

There is a nominal charge of 25 cents for adult admission; parking is free with purchase of $5 or more.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to match challenge grants the Museum received from the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities. Reaching their goal of $30,000, and matching these grants in part, actually will enable Service League members to contribute $40,000 to the Museum.

SENIOR CITIZENS: WELCOME

The Boston Children's Museum salutes senior citizens with Grand-folks' Day on the first four Wednesdays in May.

From 2 to 5 p.m. on May 3, 10, 17, and 24, senior citizens and accompanying children will be admitted free.

Like the museum's younger visitors, senior citizens will find lots of fascinating activities. You can try out a Japanese bed in the Japanese home; see the Museum's family of animals in Living Things; make a movie in Zoetropes; and play games on a computer.

One exhibit that's sure to delight seniors is Grandmother's Attic. Here you can find articles from your own youth that are sure to recall the "good old days" when bread was ten cents a loaf and Saturday afternoon movies cost a nickel. Remember the treadle sewing machine on which mama used to whip up a pretty new dress or mend a pair of torn pants? And the icebox — what a treat it was to get a chip of the cold stuff from the back of the iceman's truck on a hot summer day. What about knickers from the 1920s and food rationing coupons from the 1940s? All these things and many more can be seen in Grandmother's Attic where nostalgia and memories abound.

The museum is on the Jamaicaaway (Route 1) by Jamaica Pond. By public transportation, take the Arborway car on the Green Line to Burroughs Street in Jamaica Plain.

Senior citizens in Boston can make group reservations and arrange for group transportation via the Senior Shuttle by calling Jill Anderson at the Commission on Affairs for the Elderly, 725-4366.

FIELDS CORNER LITTLE CITY HALL GETS NEW TRAILER

Mayor Kevin H. White recently announced the purchase of a United States government surplus trailer to replace the trailer currently housing the Fields Corner Little City Hall.

The new trailer, 12 feet by 65 feet, is larger than the existing 10-feet by 45-foot trailer which has been located at Fields Corner since the Little City Hall program was established there on October 3, 1968.

The new trailer was purchased from the Federal Aviation Administration for $300.

Mayor White said, "This new trailer is a symbol of the Little City Halls in their tenth year of operation. The program that began here in Fields Corner in 1968 has grown dramatically, providing a wealth of services to this neighborhood — and so, the housing for the program, too, must grow. This new trailer will help the Little City Hall staff better respond to the complex problems, concerns, and demands made of this neighborhood."

The ten-member Fields Corner Little City Hall staff is headed by Manager Michael Feeney and Assistant Manager Margie Burke. In addition to the regular Little City Hall services, Fields Corner provides a Vacant Lot/Open Space Management program, a consumer advocate and a CETA Outreach worker.

SNOW EMERGENCY, FEBRUARY 6-10, 1978 (AMENDED)

To: All Department Heads.

From: John E. Murphy, Personnel,
Richard F. Meyer, Labor Relations.

Because of the severity of the February snowstorm, the unprecedented problems resulting from the storm, and the Governor's declaration of a State of Emergency, the city has determined that no non-emergency, regularly scheduled employee will suffer loss of pay for any day commencing February 6, 1978, and ending February 10, 1978, for absences caused by the storm.

In order to effectuate this policy, the payroll for the period in question should reflect a normal workweek. Those employees who performed services in excess of their normally scheduled shifts should be compensated for overtime pursuant to the applicable, collective bargaining agreements.

The city recognizes the special efforts required of those who traveled to work from Tuesday, February 7, through Thursday, February 9, and in recognition of that effort will grant equal time off for hours worked that were not compensated as overtime up to eight hours for each of those days. This time will be taken prior to June 30, 1979, subject to scheduling approval by each department.

The policy of excused absences shall not apply to emergency service employees who did not report to work on Friday, February 10. Those employees will be allowed to charge their absences to accrued vacation leave or future vacation accrual if none presently exists.

It should be emphasized that the policy contained herein is the direct result of the seriousness of the recent snow emergency and the Governor's declaration of a State of Emergency which has no precedent in the recorded history of the city. Absent a recurrence of a disaster of the same magnitude and a similar declaration, employee absences will not be excused and additional time off will not be granted.

The policies contained herein shall not apply to uniformed officers of the Police and Fire Departments. Staffing decisions for those officers shall be consistent with past practice.

RICHARD F. MEYER,
Supervisor, Labor Relations.
JOHN E. MURPHY,
Supervisor, Personnel.

WHAT AM I BID?

A public auction of unclaimed and damaged merchandise will be conducted by the Boston Post Office on Thursday, May 4, at 9 a.m., South Postal Annex, 45 Dorchester Avenue, Boston, Mass., Postmaster Philip I. Sullivan announced on April 17.

Items for sale will include books, appliances, jewelry, tools, clothing, household accessories, and numerous other items. In addition, a limited amount of surplus office equipment will be offered for bid.

This merchandise may be inspected the day before the sale, Wednesday, May 3, 1978, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sale on auction day will be by lot number only and no examination of merchandise will be permitted.

All articles will be sold on an "as is" basis and no refunds will be made. Payment must be made in cash, and merchandise must be removed either during the sale or immediately after the sale.

The postmaster advises customers mailing packages to use fiberboard containers strong enough to withstand the weight of the contents, and to cushion the contents to make sure they do not move in transit. Package closures should be reinforced with a pressure-sensitive, filament tape instead of cord, string, or less substantial type tapes, in accordance with the Postal Service's new packaging requirements.

UMTA AWARDS $6.3 MILLION FOR "T" PROJECTS

An additional $6,320,000 in federal aid allowing the MBTA to continue technical studies in connection with the Southwest Corridor Development Project and the northwest extension of the Red Line has been approved by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA), Robert R. Kiley, chairman of the MBTA announced recently.

The additional aid, to come from the Interstate Transfer Fund, will provide 80 percent funding for some $7.9 million worth of technical studies in the Authority's Unified Work Program. Coupled with 20 percent MBTA bond funds, the new federal aid will be used to:

1. Continue preliminary engineering and design work for the relocation of the Orange Line from South Cove to Forest Hills, until UMTA approves a pending $485-million, capital grant application for the project, possibly in the spring, so that construction can begin next year. The estimated cost of the engineering phase of the Southwest Corridor Project is $7,145,000.

2. Undertake, at an estimated cost of $505,000, the second phase of the replacement transit improvements study that has been going on in the South End, Roxbury, Dorchester, and Mattapan sections of Boston to develop service plans for after the razing of the Orange Line elevated structure.

3. Undertake at UMTA's request, a more intensive analysis of low-cost transit service options for the Red Line northwest extension beyond Alewife Brook Parkway at Route 2, including a greater planning effort with abutting communities to avoid adverse impacts of the Alewife Station and parking garage. This analysis is estimated to cost $250,000.

CLEAN AIR WEEK

We may all be able to breathe clean air for at least one week this year — if lung associations have their way.

Clean Air Week, sponsored by the American Lung Associations and lung associations across the country, will be celebrated May 1 through May 7. Urging drivers to kick the car habit will be the focus of the first day, "Park It Day." Lung associations are asking everyone to leave cars at home and use public transportation or some nonpolluting means of travel — such as bikes, shoe leather, horse and wagon, or stilts.

According to the American Lung Association, every day cars spew out more than 200,000 tons of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen oxides. Lung associations are concerned about damaging effects of these pollutants on everybody's lungs, especially children's lungs because their airways are narrower and their breathing rates are higher than those of adults. Both these factors increase the damaging effects of pollutants on little lungs.

"Sun Day," which will be the focus of Wednesday during Clean Air Week, will be sponsored by the same group that conceived Earth Day in 1970. Some lung associations plan to join in the day's festivities featuring solar fairs, sunrise services, special teachings, and tours of solar homes. Solar energy is a renewable, nonpolluting source of power.

"The air we breathe belongs to all our citizens," says a proclamation from the American Lung Association announcing Clean Air Week, "and the quality of the environment affects the health and well-being of everyone."

Pollution contributes to the development of lung disease and worsens such chronic conditions as emphysema, asthma, bronchitis, and lung cancer.

To join the Clean Air Week celebration, contact the American Lung Association of Boston — the "Christmas Seal" people. They care about every breath you take — all year long.

MUNICIPAL COURT, DORCHESTER DISTRICT

JOHN E. MURPHY, JR.,
Supervisor of Personnel.

DEAR SIR:

On August 10, 1977, Helen Dooley was appointed as an administrative secretary in the Dorchester District Court.

Prior to this appointment, Mrs. Dooley worked as an executive secretary to the First Justice for three years. In addition to the usual routine office duties, she handled the daily appointment of counsel to represent indigents; the review of attorney bills for all four Justices; the daily attendance records and personnel increments and extensions for the Judges and Probation Departments; and all requests for continuances in criminal matters.

In April of 1976, the office of the executive secretary of the Supreme Judicial Court requested the participation of the Dorchester District Court in a pilot project involving the use of Massachusetts Court Budget book. Because of her statistical know-how and ability to learn quickly, Mrs. Dooley was appointed as budget coordinator for the entire court, responsible for the preparation and submission of monthly budget summaries to the S.J.C. She has attended several workshops and conferences on her own initiative in this regard.

Previous to her court appointment, she was employed for several years in Boston at T. B. Donnelly & Co., C.P.A., Northeastern Insurance Agency, and Burke, Monaghan, McGrath, Attorneys-at-Law.

Mrs. Dooley received a B.S. degree in accounting from Simmons College, 1952, and attended two years at Boston College Law School, 1954-1956. Her background and education have made her an ideal candidate for the position she now holds, and I feel a step-rate increase under Rule 15F would fairly compensate her for her tireless efforts in meeting the increased demands upon her time as additional duties are added.

Because of this prior service and her outstanding qualifications for the position, it is requested that her first-year, second-year, third-year, fourth-year, fifth-year, and sixth-year increment be determined under rule 15F of the Compensation Plan for Suffolk County Employees.

Very truly yours,

PAUL H. KING,
First Justice.

OLD STATE HOUSE

Here "the child Independence was born" according to John Adams, our 2nd President. Built in 1713, it was the seat of the Colonial Government and the center of activity for such patriots as James Otis, John Hancock, Samuel and John Adams. It was known as the Town House until Massachusetts became a state. Just outside, the Boston Massacre occurred. The Declaration of Independence was first read in Boston from the East balcony, and President Washington here reviewed a parade in his honor in 1789. It was here, too, that John Hancock served as first governor of the Commonwealth.

Open Monday through Saturday, 9 A.M. to 4 P.M. Closed Mondays, December through April.
